Mission School Opening Today On SOC Campus

Six delegates from the Woman's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist church, Medford, are attending a school of missions and Christian service on the campus of Southern Oregon college July 18-22. The school will offer training in the four study books to be used in the local societies. Two of the studies are the interdenominational books "Indian Americans" and "The Christian Mission in a Revolutionary World" which will be used in many of the churches this coming year.

Sessions each evening at 7:30 p.m. will have Dr. Gertrude Boyd Crane of Pacific university as speaker. In addition Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. the movie "Songs of the Shining Mountains" will be shown and Wednesday at 8 p.m. the group will visit the Shakespearean theater. Thursday at 8 p.m. Miss Violet Crandall, missionary from Africa, will speak to the students. These evening sessions are open to all interested persons and will be held in the recreation room of Susanne Homes hall on the Ashland campus.

Those attending from Medford include Mesdames L. B. Pierce, Floyd Lewis, Jennie Lawless, Oscar Anderson and Harry Meyers, and Mrs. O. P. Taylor who is registrar for the school. Mrs. A. S. Feller from Camp White will attend, as will Mrs. Everett Faber, Central Point, who is chairman of the school. Mrs. E. M. Tilton of Roseburg is dean. Mrs. W. B. Landrum from New York, field worker for the Woman's division of Christian Service, Methodist church, Mrs. E. Goulder, Salem, Mrs. F. R. Sanders, and Mrs. J. W. Bunch, Forest Grove, are on the teaching staff.

LEARNED LESSON

Dallas, Tex.—(U.P.)—Theo Alexander's efforts to break up an argument between two women in a Dallas bar early Sunday cost him a cut scalp. When efforts to calm the women failed, Alexander drew a pistol and fired at the ceiling. A piece of the ceiling hit him on the head and it took two stitches to sew up the cut.

MUSIC LOVERS IN DARK

Chicago—(U.P.)—A power failure disrupted a concert for about 10,000 music lovers in Grant park Sunday night when it blew out the lights during a rendition of "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks."

Festival Progress Is Theme Of Sixth Annual Bard's Heyday

Ashland — Almost 400 Shakespearean festival fans, company members and festival officials gathered at the Shakespearean theater in Ashland yesterday evening for the sixth annual Bard's Heyday, sponsored by Tudor guild. Games and entertainment booths were in the old English fair theme, supper was served by Omar's restaurant and the program which followed was keyed to the 20th anniversary which the festival is observing this year.

Angus Bowmer, founder and producing director of the festival, spoke of the first festival plays given in 1935 as part of Ashland's Fourth of July program. Because the promoters were doubtful that the plays would be a box office success, 42 rounds of boxing were planned also as evening entertainment. To the surprise of the committee, the boxing lost money but the two plays were so successful that they made enough money to cover the losses.

Mr. Bowmer introduced various festival officials and directors who reviewed the progress in their departments and spoke of this year's plans and plays. This included Bill Patton, general manager; Richard Graham, actor and program director; Anita Fowler, Palo Alto, Calif., festival photographer; James Sandoe, University of Colorado, H. Paul Kliss, Portland, and Donald Loper, Stanford university, who are directing this year's five plays; Dr. Margery Bailey, Palo Alto, academic advisor and education director for the festival; Frank Sullivan, Denver, technical director and Ed Brubaker, Pennsylvania, assistant technical director and stage manager.

The program, with Harry Skerry as master of ceremonies, opened with four pantomime skits given by festival actors. One entitled "Poolroom Solitude" given by Robert Stattel, Floral Park, N.Y., and Tom Luce, Palo Alto, won first prize. Other participating in the skits were Joan Kugell, Natick, Mass.; Ted D'Arms, Princeton, N.J.; Irene Baird, Arlington, Va.; Abe Kallish, San Francisco, and Anne Sandoe, Director Sandoe's eight-year-old daughters.

Brad Curtis, Chico, Calif., sang ballads to guitar accompaniment and Bill Oyer, Hollywood, repeated the monologue which he gave as one of his audition numbers.

Visitors Here

Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Magee, Long Beach, Calif., and their grandson, Russell Gregg, arrived Sunday to visit with the Magees daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Allen Jr., 48 Windsor avenue, and two granddaughters, Kathleen and Jean Allen.

The Magees recently returned from an extensive tour of the south and southwest. They expect to be in Medford for several weeks.

Hornbrook

Hornbrook — Visiting this week at the home of Mrs. Mary Kurt and son Carl are her sisters, the Misses Kate and Maggie Bailey, Ft. Jones.

Tuesday they were all guests at the Alex Rutledge home at a dinner honoring Anne Rutledge on her 11th birthday.

Mrs. Lorin Cummins and children, Jennifer and Lorin Howard, returned this week from Seattle, Wash., where they visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Howard.
