Funeral Wednesday For Ashland Man; Children Live Here

Ashland—Funeral services for Lee F. Conner, Ashland, will be held Wednesday, July 20, at 1:30 p.m. in Litwiller's Mountain View chapel with Bishop Collins Hassel, of the Ashland Latter Day Saints church, in charge. Interment will follow in the Mountain View cemetery.

Mr. Conner died Saturday while attending an auction sale in Phoenix.

He was born in Memphis, Mo., on March 14, 1886. In 1909 in Beaver, Okla., he married Mamie Pate, who survives. The couple moved to Talent in 1927 from Idaho, moving to Ashland the same year. They resided in the Green Springs area for many years.

Children Survive

Beside Mrs. Conner, survivors include four sons in Ashland, Clifton J., Samuel L., Donald L. and Francis K. Conner; a son and daughter in Medford, Mrs. Geraldine Disrude and Richard N. Conner, and another daughter, Mrs. Donas Ridenour, Modoc Point. Another son, Jack Conner, died in a logging accident in 1943.

There are also surviving 18 grand children; three brothers, R. E. Conner, Talent; Lynn, a twin of the deceased, Farnsworth, Tex., and Clyde, Beaver, Okla.; two sisters, Mrs. Lou Shockley, Beaver, and Mrs. Edna Armstrong, Clinton, Ariz.

Hersa Wheat Funeral At Ashland Tuesday

Ashland — Funeral services for Hersa Luvina Wheat, 84, who died Friday in San Francisco at the home of a daughter, will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. in Litwiller's Mountain View chapel with the Rev. J. C. Whitsett officiating. Interment will follow in Mountain View cemetery.

Born in Paris, Mo., on May 10, 1871, Mrs. Wheat was the mother of four surviving children, Mrs. Cathryn Anderson, San Francisco, with whom she was living; William Fred Wheat, Medford; Harold H. Wheat, Dunsmuir; and Maj. Robert L. Wheat, Washington, D.C., and three grandchildren.

She was a resident of Ashland for a number of years before moving to San Francisco.

Funeral Rites Thursday For Ex-Local Resident

Grants Pass — Funeral services for Arthur Henry Wissing, who died here Sunday, will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday, July 21, at the L. B. Hall funeral home with the Rev. Robert Neal, of the First Christian church, officiating.

Mr. Wissing lived in Medford between 1912 and 1925, then moving to Grants Pass. He was born in Brookville, Kans., Nov. 12, 1876. Survivors include the widow, Ellen Wissing, Grants Pass; a son Carroll Wissing, San Francisco; a brother, Jake Wissing, Brookville, Kans., and two grandchildren.

Interment will follow the funeral in Hillcrest Memorial park, Grants Pass.

Small Business Loans Procedure Is Speeded

Portland — John G. Barnett, branch manager of the small business administration, has announced that the agency's field offices can now make direct business loans up to $10,000 without prior approval of the Washington, D.C., office. Loan processing time, now cut down to approximately three weeks, is expected to be further reduced.

The regional office for Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Alaska, is in the 905 Second Avenue building Seattle 4, Wash. The Portland branch office is at 520 S.W. Morrison st.

Substitute Teacher Requirements Listed

Teachers who wish to serve as substitutes in Jackson county schools next year must register teaching and health certificates with the county school superintendent.

State department of education special substituting certificates may be secured by qualified teachers by applying to the department, division of teacher certification, 106 Library building, in Salem, Mrs. Una B. Inch, county rural school supervisor said.

District 20-30 Club Convention Held Here

About 75 delegates from Portland, Salem, McMinnville, Klamath Falls and Medford, Ore., and Tulelake, Calif., attended the mid-summer educational meeting of the northwest district of 20-30 clubs here Saturday and Sunday.

The Saturday session, at the Medford hotel, included an educational meeting for incoming officers. A laides' no-host luncheon featuring a fashion show, was held at noon.

Attorney Speaks

John Dellenback, a Medford attorney, was speaker at the Saturday banquet. He discussed service clubs, pointing out that since they grew up in this country, the benefits to communities include both direct and indirect influences, as well as building character for members.

The more obvious of the direct benefits, he said, are contributions of time and money to civic functions and charitable purposes. The indirect benefits, Dellenback added, are as important as the others, but are not so readily apparent. These include the building of good citizenship and a better understanding, aid toward checking delinquency, and providing a stimulus for group effort in the achievement of ideals, the speaker said.

Dellenback stated that service club work is a rewarding experience and helps mold and build character for club members. The members, he said, must be unselfish enough to give a great many hours to service work, rather than to their own desires.

The evening concluded with a dance for members and former members.

The convention business meeting was held Sunday morning, at which time Salem was selected as the site for the next district convention in January. Bill White, past president of the Portland club, was elected district governor, succeeding Howard Elwood, Salem. John D. Watkins, past president of the Medford club, was named lieutenant governor. Watkins also was the convention general chairman.

Officials Visit

Visiting officially at the session included Leonard Carlson, Medford, past international president; Norm Morrison, Sacramento, northern California district governor; R. P. (Dad) Shimmin, Phoenix, Ariz., the "international ambassador of goodwill" of the 20-30 clubs. He has averaged three meetings per week for the past two years, and has travelled some 66,000 miles visting clubs.

Jim Campbell and Andy Gidlof, members of the Woodland, Calif., 20-30 club, also attended.

A Nichol's Worth of . . .

Comment On This and That

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Feature Writer

Kitimat, B. C.—(U.P.)—We were lounging on the patio of the spiffy Rod and Gun Club, worrying down tall, cool ones when Ken Brumley showed up.

Harman Nichols

Ken is editor of the weekly Kittimat Northern Sentinel, which reports the doings of folks connected with the brand new smelter plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada.

After introductions, the squire of these parts, hardly a spit and a mountain from the Yukon, flashed Don Spaulding of Nation's Business and this correspondent a green eye. The editor spoke:

"How I envy you guys! Here I die of boredom while you cover big doings in Washington, belly up to the bar with big shots, write your own tickets, and . . ."

Writing Own Ticket

"Just a cotton-picking moment," butted in Don. "Let me set you straight. Sometimes, big doings melt down to little doings, same as do knitting bees and horse-shoe matches up here. And nobody bellies up to a bar in Washington, not even the wheels. It's agin' the law. And just try writing your own ticket, mister."

"Yeah," put in the country editor, "but look at the fun you have watching history being made. Fine clothes; fat living."

"Listen, friend," I said, "you got it made. History in the making sometimes makes a noise; and loud noises make you rocky. You can put your paper to sleep and come out here and look at the beautiful mountains. You can watch the Kitimat river lick the rocks and run down to provide power that one day will give you folks the biggest aluminum smelter plant in the world. And clothes, man! Let's shed and trade. You're cool in that short-sleeved sports shirt and no coat. In Washington a man is stared down if he so much as loosens his neckwear. If you want to trade lots, kit and kaboodle, Don and I will draw up a contract here and now on the back of this cocktail napkin."

Modern Plant

Indeed, Ken, as editor, has it made. The outfit which owns the Northern Sentinel already has contracts for much of the commercial printing for Alcan, which prefers to go native on such things. And they are Ken Brumley's contracts. If he doesn't get a fat commission he ought to. He works in one of the most modern weekly plants I've ever seen. High speed job presses, two up-to-date linotypes, a fine crew in the back shop and up front.

As we were waiting for another round of the cool stuff, Ken coughed and hemmed and asked how would we like to write a few hundred guest words for that week's issue? Impressions and that sort of thing. We said we would and away we went to his plant to turn out labors of love, via hunt and peck.

"Guess you're right," the squire said. "And thanks. I got it made—at least for this week. Your copy will just fill the current issue. Let's go fishing."

Ken caught his supper in a couple of minutes. Don and I got on a yacht and went up the river a piece to Kemano, B.C., to take a look at a lady bear.

Special Education Director To Visit

Mason McQuiston, state director of education for slow learning children, will confer the week of Aug. 9 with parents desiring to enroll children in new classes this year in Phoenix, Mrs. Una B. Inch, county rural school supervisor, said today.

Mrs. Inch said two classes will be organized this year. One will be for children between 12 and 16 years of age which will be held at Phoenix, and the other for 8 to 12 year olds which will be held at Talent.

Karl Hayes, director of the county-wide program, will be in charge, and will be assisted by a teacher for children between eight and 12 years old. .

Mrs. Inch said additional information may be obtained from Hayes, telephone Medford 2-9684.

Woman Seeks Assistance In Locating Relative

Jackson county Sheriff Howard Gault has received a letter from Mrs. Pearl Davis of Gladstone, Ill., asking help in locating her sister, Mrs. Virgie Earley, who was last known to be living in Medford.

Mrs. Davis said she and her brother, whom she did not name, were unable to locate Mrs. Earley when their mother died recently. Mrs. Davis said her sister's husband's name is Frank, and that last she knew, Mr. and Mrs. Earley purchased a home here.

Gault said any information concerning either Mr. and Mrs. Earley may be directed to the sheriff's office.
