Search Ordered For Missing Yacht

Honolulu — (U.P.) — The Coast Guard ordered an expanded air-sea search today for the yacht South Wind, believed to have been last seen 180 miles north of Kauai Island yesterday.

The 39-foot ketch, one of the 50 boats that took part in the trans-Pacific yacht race, carries a crew of seven. Her skipper is E. R. Gallaschn, Monterey Park, Calif.

Five long range planes from the Coast Guard, Navy and Air Force were to join the Coast Guard cutter Gresham in a search for the South Wind.

An Air Force weather plane photographed a yacht 180 miles north of Kauai, but the Coast Guard said it might have been one of two other yachts that sailed from Kauai last week.

Early today, the Gresham reached the position of the South Wind as reported on Monday, the last time the boat was heard from.

Officials of the yacht race believed the South Wind made a navigational error and has been off course for some time. The yacht is well provisioned and can stay at sea for several weeks without undue hardship.
