

Artists Plan Two Shows

Two art shows are slated in August by the Southern Oregon Society of Artists. First is the annual show which the group sponsors at the Jacksonville jubilee set for August 6 and 7, and the other is the fourth annual Greenwich Village show to be held August 21 at the old city park on West Main street in Medford.

Plans for the shows were made during a meeting July 13 at Mon Desir dining inn.

Mrs. Charles Todd of Camp White is general chairman for the Greenwich village show and the event will be arranged by Mrs. Todd and her committee.

The Jacksonville jubilee show is open to all artists interested in entering and a fee of 50 cents will be charged per artist for hanging the pictures.

Harry V. Marx became an active member during the meeting.

Pictures voted on at the meeting were "Bend in the Road," by C. P. Henderson, which will be picture-of-the-month for the exhibit at Barker's store show windows; "Mt. Shasta," by Mrs. Elizabeth Sheffield, Puruckers, Piano house exhibit; and "Emigrant Lake," by Mrs. Effie White, and "Light and Ruins," by John Ahern, both for the Burgess Paint store showing.

Officers Elected By Beagle Club At Annual Picnic

Other officers elected are Homer Browner, vice-president, and Mrs. Charlotte R. Sweet, secretary and treasurer.

The afternoon was spent in visiting and George Loftin reported on progress of the group in regard to the prospect of drilling test wells for oil in the Beagle district. The next annual meeting is set for the third Sunday in July, 1956, in Grants Pass park.

Entertainment was furnished by Mrs. C. R. Alexander and her string orchestra.

Contemporary Design For Furniture Said Most Popular Now

Chicago — (U.P.) — American homemakers prefer contemporary furniture, to the traditional. And the preference, growing steadily year by year, was born nearly a quarter of a century ago in the need for simplicity that arrived with the depression of the 30's.

A spokesman for the American furniture mart here said 60.8 per cent of the pieces shown at the last market were of contemporary design. And, he added, to be shown means to be bought.

The remainder of the furniture displayed fell in the traditional categories such as early American and French provincial, with none showing a marked attraction for the buyers.

Contemporary furniture, he said, is middle-of-the-road. "It's neither radical nor reactionary and certainly not screwball modern," he explained.

As an example, he showed a dresser in contemporary design and described it as having "square, tailored lines, a light finish, with no dust-catching decorations."

Such pieces, he said first came to public notice at the Century of Progress exhibition in 1933-34, during the lean years, and have been demanding more space in furniture departments ever since.

They were a natural development from the depression-born need "to cut down on excessive decoration," he added.

Tummers to Give Dinner for Cast

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Tummers will entertain members of the Oregon Shakespearean festival company at a smorgasbord dinner tonight at their inn, Mon Desir, near Central Point. About 70 are expected to attend.

The Tummers plan to make the event an annual one, to be held shortly before opening night each summer.

New York — (U.P.) — A quick-to-make cocktail accompaniment: season cream cheese with chili powder to taste. Shape the cheese into small balls and roll them in grated raw carrot. Serve on toothpicks.

So You Think You're Busy? Read This

Burbank, Calif. — (U.P.) — Mrs. Irene Woods, 41, who has had six children in five years and 11 months, is so busy with the kids she doesn't have time for a household schedule.

The Woods house, she said, sometimes "needs a little dusting" but the children outrank housework. The offspring, all single births, are Scott, 3 months; Dale, 1; Bruce, 2; Dennis, 3; Charlene, 4; and Charles, nearly 6, who is the only one attending school.

"It's a full-time job," she said. "Sometimes the house needs dusting, but the housework will keep, and my children come first."

"If I watched the clock and thought that it was time to do this and then time to do that, I'd have to interrupt one job to do another."

The clan's father, Charles, complicates the household routine since he is a restaurant cook and works different hours each day.

"This makes a schedule all but impossible," she said, "except that we try to have dinner together every day."

Mrs. Woods frequently does two full-sized laundries daily, budgets the family paycheck for a half dozen quarts of milk each day and doesn't buy anything resembling a luxury item.

MEDFORD (OREGON) MAIL TRIBUNE—THREE

Jaycettes Hear Talk on Fashions

The exciting "new" in fashion this year is fabrics, according to Mrs. Bert Pree, speaking before the Medford Jaycettes at their meeting Wednesday evening. "Cottons don't look like cotton and materials that appear to be silk actually are not," Mrs. Pree said.

Dark cottons for fall were the feature attraction of Mrs. Pree's collection. These were shown in one-piece dresses, dresses with jackets, lightweight suits and tunic ensembles. Members modeled the fashions with many of them trying out styles they had never worn before when Mrs. Pree urged the girls to try something "different" when selecting dresses.

Mrs. Pree also told the group what happens at a buying mart and the background of what happens before clothes arrive in the stores. She also answered questions from members concerning styles.

During the business meeting members discussed plans for a swimming party in August. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Charles Shepherd and Mrs. Tom Reeder. Mrs. Bruce Cyphers was hostess for the group.

Bray and the host brother are retired Methodist ministers, and the Rev. Aubrey O. Bray is an active Episcopalian pastor in the southern California city.

Among the three of them they have spent 149 years in the ministry.

Know the Butcher, Says Food Expert

Boston — (U.P.) — One expert in the culinary arts says there is an easy way for Mrs. Housewife to insure herself a good cut of meat at the market — know the butcher.

And, there are other ways the homemaker can save money says Mary Carter, director of foods research for the Sheraton hotels chain.

Just use common sense in shopping and food preparation to put the holiday-deflated budget back into shape, she advised.

Miss Carter, fortyish and a graduate of the New Jersey College for Women, said many women overcook food.

"Don't cook food too long," she said. "It only ruins the taste of a vegetable or a perfectly good cut of meat."

"If you cook only the exact amount required and season to taste, you'll save fuel bills and eliminate left-overs," Miss Carter said.

The food researcher says every housewife should insist on a balanced menu for her family. "If you serve plenty of fresh fruit and vegetables, though, you won't have to do as much planning," she added.

"Everyone should have an egg and at least a pint of milk a day," Miss Carter said.

Miss Carter estimates she spends three weeks of every month preparing or serving food. And her favorite dish—roast beef, rare.

"Roast beef doesn't take much imagination to prepare, but I just love it," she exclaimed.

Miss Carter has been working with food ever since she was graduated from college. She joined the hotel chain last year.

After years of trying to please the palate, Miss Carter's enthusiasm for cooking hasn't dimmed a bit.

"With me, cooking is a creative art," she says.

Raisins for cakes and breads will be plump and juicy if soaked in warm water before being added to batter or dough.

Glove Buyer Declares Hands Getting Bigger

Sydney, Australia — (U.P.) — Women's hands are getting bigger all the time—at least in Australia.

That's the verdict of W. T. Brown on retiring at 82 after 16 years of glove-buying and 57 years with a big Sydney department store.

"Years ago," said Brown, "size six was the most popular women's glove. Now we sell more of the six and three-quarters, and sevens."

Brown's theory is that the bigger hands are a result of "all this carrying of parcels our womenfolk have to do these days."
