

Canooses Make Extended Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Canoose, 55 Ross court, have returned home from extended tour of the United States. The Canoses were in Kingman, Kan., when that town was alerted for tornado danger, and drove through Udall, Kan., after it had been totally destroyed by tornado.

The couple visited friends and relatives in Winfield, Kan., and Joplin, Mo., and continued to New Orleans where they spent a week sight-seeing. They stopped in Biloxi, Miss., and visited the home of Jefferson Davis, only Confederate president of this nation.

Mr. and Mrs. Canoose motored down the west coast of Florida, through the Everglades, across the overseas highway to Key West and up the east coast. In both Georgia and Florida they were interested to see the convict road crews working on the highway under armed guards.

The travelers visited Williamsburg and Jamestown, Va., site of the first English settlement and seat of early U.S. government and then continued to Washington, D.C., where they visited both houses of the Congress and toured the White House and other capital buildings. The Canoses consider the changing of guards at the tomb of the unknown soldier to be the most impressive sight of their tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Canoose visited Niagara Falls, going by the Canadian route, and later went to Dearborn, Mich., where they toured the Ford River Rouge plant, the Ford museum and Greenfield village. They were particularly interested to see the chair in which President Lincoln was sitting when he was assassinated, and learned that he was using a rocking chair because the owner of Ford's theater had brought the chair from his home for the president's comfort.

The trip home was by way of Minnesota and South Dakota, where they visited the Badlands and Mt. Rushmore. In Columbus, Mont., they visited their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Canoose III and daughter, Dorris Kay. Mr. Canoose, a game warden for the state of Montana, had just returned from a trip to virgin territory where 55,000 eggs of the rare golden trout were taken for hatching and planting in other Montana lakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Canoose also visited the Lewis and Clark caverns, the smelter of the Anaconda Mining company, the Little Big Horn country and the site of Custer's last stand while in Montana.

Women Elected To Public Office In Large Numbers

Washington—(U.P.)—More women are holding elective public offices today than ever before, according to Miss Bertha S. Adkins, assistant to the chairman of the Republican National committee.

A total of 323 women are serving in federal state offices to which they were elected, not appointed, she said.

"There are 16 women members of the House of Representatives—nine Democrats and seven Republicans," she said. "In the Senate Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me.) is the only woman right now," she added. Mrs. Smith was reelected for her second term in September, 1954.

"A total of 306 women are members of the state legislatures," Miss Adkins continued. "This is an increase of two over the previous all time high in 1954."

The political line-up for women legislators is: Democrats, 117; Republicans, 186; two without party designation, and one independent.

The first woman ever elected to Congress was Jeannette Rankin (R-Mont.) in 1916. Since then a total of 60 women were elected or appointed to serve in Congress, she said.

The first year of Federal women suffrage was 1920. And 29 women gained office that year in state legislatures. "Since then the number has steadily climbed to the all record high this year of 306 women," she said.

Nebraska adopted a unicameral legislature 19 years ago. This year for the first time a woman is serving. She is Mrs. Kathleen A. Foote (R.)

"Four states—Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia and Oklahoma—have no women state legislators," Miss Adkins concluded.

PARKING STAMP

Washington—(U.P.)—Downtown businessmen here have thought up a new scheme to woo customers, who've been shopping in the suburbs. They plan to provide an hour of free parking. A shopper will be able to park at any lot and then get a stamp at the store to cover the first hour of the parking fee. The businessmen believe it to be the only plan of its kind in the country.

MEDFORD (OREGON) MAIL TRIBUNE—FIVE

Polio Season Rules Listed by Service

By PATRICIA WIGGINS

United Press Correspondent
Washington—(U.P.)—With Salk vaccine running far short of meeting needs, the Public Health Service again is furnishing safety do's and don'ts to follow as this summer's peak polio season approaches.

Whether your child has had one, two or none of the Salk injections, it would be wise to bear the precautions in mind, the PHS says. The tips also apply to adults.

Keep general health as good as possible. Get more rest than usual and avoid over tiring. Eat sensibly.

Don't plunge into cold water when your body is overheated. If you are caught in a rain, change to dry clothes and avoid chilling.

Avoid going to places where you or your children will be caught in a crowd. Don't keep children separated from usual playmates, but when polio is about, bear in mind that it may spread in crowds.

Encourage more thorough and more frequent hand washing in your family. Make sure hands are washed immediately before handling food and always after a trip to the bathroom.

Be suspicious of water supplies you do not know to be safe.

Consult your doctor if any member of the family develops a fever with headache, sore throat, muscle pains or weakness, or stiff neck or back. This is especially important when polio is in the community.

Should one of your family develop such symptoms, put him to bed and keep others, especially children, away from him until the doctor comes.

The Service notes that at its start, poliomyelitis often is hard to distinguish from a severe cold, influenza, or some of the childhood diseases.

In early stages there always is a rise in temperature. Other early symptoms are headache, vomiting, fretfulness, drowsiness, stiffness, pain in the back and neck and sometimes a sore throat.

Because many illnesses, especially childhood diseases, start in a similar way, "chances are good" that your patient does not have polio, PHS says.

But since the medical and nursing care he receives from the beginning many have a "great bearing" on how he comes through the illness if it is polio, do not delay calling a doctor.

Ballerina Teams Entertain at Camp

Camp White—A new type of program was introduced at the domiciliary theatre Friday night when two teams of ballerinas from the Colleen Hope School of the Dance went through their routines in a ballet class conducted on the floor of the theatre.

Colleen Hope has made arrangements to bring the class out as a regular feature of the entertainment program in future.

Old Dining Tables Can Be Made Useful

Detroit—(U.P.)—Your old dining-room table can be cut down to become a large, roomy coffee table.

The round type is best to use, but oblong and square tables also may be used. The coffee table can be used for many things, too, such as to hold potted plants, magazines, newspapers—or even for coffee.

One woman painted her table a glossy black to create dramatic interest, while another bleached the wood when she finished the table. This created a light effect suitable to her blond furniture.
