

Shish Kebab is a dish with an intriguing name that's made easily by broiling alternated chunks of lamb, green pepper and onion on skewers.

It never fails to impress guests and it puts a party on a merry footing, especially when everyone constructs and grills their own kebab. Perfect accompaniments are rice, a green salad and goblets of cool, sparkling beer.

SHISH KEBAB

2 pounds lamb shoulder or leg of lamb
1/2 cup sliced onion
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 teaspoon crushed rosemary

4 tablespoons salad oil
4 tablespoons vinegar
4 green peppers
8 small onions

Cut lamb into 1 1/2-inch chunks, removing bone and most of fat. Place lamb in bowl with sliced onion, salt, pepper, rosemary, salad oil and vinegar. Cover and let stand in refrigerator at least 1 hour or overnight. Cut washed green pepper into 1 1/2-inch pieces. Peel onions and cut into halves. Alternate marinated lamb chunks, green pepper pieces and halved onions on 4 metal skewers. Brush with additional salad oil. Broil about 15 minutes, turning to brown evenly. Makes 4 servings.

Tulelake Entertains 19 Stranded Teachers

Tulelake, Calif. —(U.P.)—Nineteen teachers from Iowa stranded here since their bus broke down last Monday have been royally entertained by local residents.

While the touring teachers have waited for new parts to be flown from their home state, they have been treated to a round of picnics, swimming parties and sight-seeing trips.

Dr. and Mrs. Martin Grant head the group, which is from the Iowa State Teachers college at Ames. The group is on a six-week tour of the Northwest studying natural history for college credit.

ADD MUSTARD TO RICE

New York — (U.P.)—When ham slices are on the menu, try serving a side dish of rice flavored with mustard. Prepare precooked rice according to package directions but before serving, add 1 1/2 teaspoons butter and 3 to 4 teaspoons prepared mustard. Mix lightly with a fork and serve hot.

Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Correspondent

Hollywood—(U.P.)—Susan Hayward's next picture unveils her as a husky-voiced blues singer, but the red-haired star modestly thinks she's a one-picture crooner.

Susan, back at work for the first time since her recent suicide attempt, surprised Hollywood—and herself—by coming forth with an amazingly good voice.

MGM had planned to have a professional singer dub in Susan's voice for the film of singer Lillian Roth's life, "I'll Cry Tomorrow." But musical director Johnny Green tricked Susan into a voice test—and she was "so exciting" she'll do her own warbling.

"Just for Laughs" "It's probably just for this picture. I'm a dramatic actress and I doubt if I'll sing again," the star insists. "This is just for laughs."

Director Danny Mann, however, thinks this picture "will mean another career for Susan in musicals and on the stage if she wants it." Susan's throaty voice, according to "rushes" of her musical scenes, sounds like a young Sophie Tucker. Green calls Susan a "female Al Jolson."

It was Green who asked Susan to sing a sample record that the studio could use in finding a similar voice for the dubbing.

Tricked by Green "She said she'd do it only if I promised never to play the record for anybody, and if we'd record it alone in my office," Green says.

"She sang, 'Let's Fall in Love'. After she became relaxed, I flicked on the recorder. I broke my promise and played the record for studio chief Dore Schary. He was so impressed we delayed the picture two weeks so she could take singing lessons."

"She agreed to sing if we hired a stand-in singer in case she changed her mind. But she didn't."

New Type Biographies

"I'll Cry Tomorrow" is another news-maker because it illustrates a new trend in film biographies. They used to be white-washes of celebrities' lives.

But "Love Me or Leave Me" was a frank account of singer Ruth Etting's life. "The Girl in the Red Velvet Swing" pulls no punches about Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. And now "I'll Cry Tomorrow" follows the true story of Miss Roth—her fight against alcoholism, her life on skid row, the beatings from her husband.

Studios have discovered audiences are tired of sweetness-and-light yarns that cover up true drama.

Minister Here Wins In Sermon Contest

Portland — Dr. Raymond E. Balcomb, minister of the First Methodist church of Medford, has won first place in a sermon contest for Methodist ministers in Oregon, Washington, and Idaho, according to Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland area of the Methodist church.

Dr. Balcomb will preach the winning sermon, "The Only Problem in the World," at the Graduate School for Ministerial Training, the College of Puget Sound, Tacoma, Wash., on Tuesday, July 26. The sermon was previously preached in the First Methodist church, Medford.
