Tony Trabert Penn Champ

Haverford, Pa. — (UPI) — Torrid Tony Trabert, 24-year-old Wimbledon champ from Cincinnati, racked up another title today in his campaign for world tennis leadership.

Trabert, who won 24 of his last 25 tournaments, defeated Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, Sunday, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3 for the 56th annual Pennsylvania state lawn tennis championship at Merion Cricket club.

The Trabert-Seixas combination proved too tough for Hal Burrow, Charlottesville, Va., and Straight Clark, Philadelphia, in the men's doubles title match as the Davis Cuppers breezed to a 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 victory.

Rain forced postponement of the mixed doubles final. Miss Althea Gibson, New York state champion, and Kurt Nielsen, Denmark, were leading Yola Ramirez, Mexico City, and Sam Giammalva, Houston, Tex., 5-4, when play was halted.

Roseburg Legion Subdues Albany; Duroscher OK'd

By UNITED PRESS
The Dalles and Roseburg will play for the 1955 Oregon American Legion Junior baseball championship.

The Dalles walloped Porter-Scarpelli of Portland 11-0 yesterday as hurler Denny Peterson held the Grant high club to only two hits.

Roseburg made it two in a row over Albany with a 10-8 victory yesterday at Albany. The Roseburg club scored twice in the 11th inning for the win.

Roseburg got a boost to its title hopes when State Legion Chairman Fred Peterson ruled its star hurler, Jerry Duroscher, was eligible. Duroscher had played in the Southern Oregon semi-pro league, causing a protest. Duroscher was the winning Roseburg hurler yesterday.

DUNPHY TAKES CROWN

St. Moritz, Switzerland — (UPI) — Christopher Dunphy of Palm Beach, Fla., won the international amateur golf championship of Switzerland yesterday by defeating Jack Minger, Dallas, Tex., 3 and 2.

Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY

Hollywood — (UPI) — On television sets around the country a "new" favorite with the kiddies is an antique movie series of the 1930's, "Our Gang Comedies," featuring a cuddly little girl called Shirley Jean.

While that child star is finding new fame with the small fry, the grown-ups can get a look at the present day Shirley Jean—doing

TIE FOR MEDAL
Astoria — (UPI) — Bob Anderson of Astoria and Mike Ierulli of Oswego tied for medal honors in the men's 40 to 50 years division with 73's yesterday as the eight-day Oregon coast golf championships got underway. Lillian Schassen of The Dalles led women qualifiers with a 62. Men under 40 and men over 50 hold qualifying play today with match play starting tomorrow.

FAMED MARKET BURNS
New York — (UPI) — A spectacular fire swept through the famed Fulton Fish Market early today, doing considerable damage to an unused pier and a number of occupied fish stalls.

bumps and grinds in a downtown burlesque theater.

The cute child star with the spit curls has grown up to be a slinky striptease dancer known as "Gilda."

Films Immoral
"People are so amazed to hear I went from movies into burlesque," admitted Shirley Jean, or Gilda, as she sat in her modest dressing room backstage of the grind house on Main st.

"Well, I'll tell you, I prefer burlesque because it's not so immoral as the movie business."

"Hollywood has turned into a rougher game than ever. Every girl is fair game. In the stripping profession, you get somewhere through your talent, not through somebody you're friendly with. When you get on that runway you have to hold your audience or you're a dead pigeon."

"I'm making more money than I did in movies. I like live audiences and I want to be a star. Burlesque is the only field of live show business left that you can't see on TV."

Shirley Jean says she's 24 now. She was a star of "Our Gang" for five years, along with Spanky McFarland recently seen on the George Gobel show. Farina (now touring with a small band), Alfalfa (the portrayed a 100-year-old Indian in a recent Robert Mitchum movie, "Track of the Cat"), Darla Hood (now a singer) and Jackie Cooper (still in show business.)

Graduates to Rooney
She then graduated to the Mickey McGuire comedies starring Mickey Rooney. Shirley played Tomboy Taylor in a top-knot and plaid jacket for nearly three years.

At 12 she was a dancer in such musicals as "Meet the People." She appeared in many Donald O'Connor pictures. A year and a half ago she began to train at the Folies theater here as a stripper, and since has toured the country.

She is billed as "Gilda and Her Crowning Glory" because as she strips she lets her long blonde hair fall below her waist. "Many adults come backstage after the show to get my autograph for their children who watch the 'Our Gang' comedies on TV," she smiled.

"I don't think the kids would mind if they knew what I do. I like burlesque. It's what a person is, not what they're doing. There are a lot of idiots who are secretaries."

FBI Prepares Booklet To Acquaint Youngsters With Accomplishments of G-Men

Washington — (UPI) — The poster in the sheriff's office said, "Wanted by the FBI." The picture it displayed was disturbingly familiar to a Midwestern schoolboy who dropped into the office on an errand.

As he gazed at the picture he realized that the fugitive, wanted for armed robbery, was a man who had worked on his father's farm until recently. The youth called the nearest office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. On the basis of his tip the fugitive soon was tracked down, tried and sent to jail.

Valuable Allies
This instance and others like it have convinced the FBI that alert boys and girls can be valuable allies in law enforcement. That conviction, in turn, has been translated into a new 16-page booklet, prepared by FBI director J. Edgar Hoover to acquaint American youngsters with the history, functions and some of the accomplishments of the G-men.

The agency's role in protecting the national welfare in both peace and war, against individual law-breakers and highly organized espionage and sabotage rings, is described in the report.

Established in 1908 as the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice the organization was politics-ridden for the first 16 years of its existence. In 1924 its name was changed to Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Hoover, then 29, was appointed its director by Attorney General Harlan J. Stone. Hoover specified that the organization was to be a career service, composed of agents chosen solely for their ability and good character.

The FBI's rapid rise in prestige and efficiency thereafter was stimulated by its struggle against the big organized gangs of the 1930's the booklet points out. Notorious criminals had to be tracked down and captured in a relentless drive against crime.

Nicknamed 'G-Men'
The infamous John Dillinger fell in a Chicago gutter on July 22, 1934, the loser in a gun battle with FBI special agents.

"Pretty Boy" Floyd and "Baby Face" Nelson, the latter a killer of five FBI-men, were also cornered and slain in the same year. In the same gang-war era, FBI agents got the nickname "G-men." George "Machine Gun" Kelly, wanted for kidnapping, had been traced to a house in Memphis, Tenn. As agents surrounded the house and ordered Kelly to come out, the frightened gangster said, "Don't shoot. G-men; don't shoot!" The name, an abbreviation for government men, has since become an unofficial title for the FBI agents.

During the 1940's public enemies of foreign origin occupied the FBI's attention, the booklet says. Just before the outbreak of World War II, German espionage activity increased sharply in the United States. The largest spy ring was headed by Frederick Joubert Duquesne, a professional spy of 40 years' experience.

One of the ring members was Harry Sawyer, an American citizen trained in Hamburg's spy school. He was paymaster for the spy network and had set up a shortwave radio station for communication with central German intelligence. Contacts were made without difficulty and the radio station was beaming messages to Hamburg.

Message Cleared
One fact concerning this arrangement made the communications of doubtful value to the Germans, however. The station was being operated by FBI undercover agents and all messages were cleared with U. S. Army and Navy Intelligence. Sawyer had informed the FBI of his mission immediately on his return from Germany.

The ringleader, Duquesne, was completely fooled by Sawyer's "double agent" deception, says the report. Duquesne boasted to Sawyer of his ability to dupe the federal men and proudly displayed secret plans for the M-1 rifle, torpedo boats and airplanes. When the network's outlines were clearly revealed, the FBI struck, arresting the 33 ring members late in June, 1941.

More recently, the FBI has battled Communist subversion. Federal undercover agents have joined the party, watched the Communists' moves and arrested scores of top party officials.

Example of Effectiveness
The Rosenberg atomic spy case was an example of the FBI's effectiveness in this fight, the booklet says. Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, executed at Sing Sing Prison for espionage in June, 1953, were part of a large Soviet spy ring attempting to steal U.S. atomic and other defense secrets.

The booklet concludes with a story about the significance of the FBI motto—"Fidelity, bravery, integrity"—and the spirit in which the federal agents do their work.

In Baltimore a G-man was shot while attempting to arrest a notorious criminal. Although severely wounded, he emptied his gun into the assailant. The agent regained consciousness on the operating table of a hospital and asked about the criminal who had shot him. He was told that the fugitive had been killed on the spot. The agent murmured, "May God have mercy on his soul" as he breathed his own last breath.

Eden Praises Eisenhower's Work

London — (UPI) — Prime Minister Anthony Eden returned to London today full of praise for President Eisenhower's positive contribution to the Big Four conference.

The British Prime Minister frankly admitted that Mr. Eisenhower was "in a large measure" responsible for the lessening of tension following his meetings in Geneva with Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin, French Premier Edgar Faure and the President.

Eden reported to key Conservative party leaders on his "cautious optimism" over the international scene that resulted from the conference. He met with Cabinet members at 10 Downing st., this morning following his return from Geneva.

The Prime Minister was reported in favor of making a detailed report on Geneva to the House of Commons Wednesday. But he wants to delay a full question and answer debate until after the House returns from its summer recess in the fall, diplomatic sources said.
