

Salk Anti-Polio Vaccine Program Stalled in About Half of Cities

By UNITED PRESS
The Salk anti-polio inoculation program has slowed down so that only about half the nation's communities have gone ahead with the second shots or plan to do so during the remaining summer weeks.

A shortage of vaccine, the scattering of children on their summer holiday, the vacation absence of doctors, nurses, teachers and clerical help and a reluctance on the part of many parents to go ahead with the second shot in the polio season are the reasons.

The United Press polled its bureaus across the nation to find out what the countrywide situation is.

It discovered that, in general, the Western states are tending more to go ahead with completing second shots than other sections of the country.

In New England the situation is simply that the states have not received sufficient vaccine yet for second shots.

In California, on the other hand, 31 of the 58 counties already have completed the second shots. Los Angeles, however, has not yet decided whether it will finish the program.

Second Shots in Texas
Texas is going ahead with second shots. Fort Worth is the only big town there to hold out for fall inoculations. Houston had planned a mass vaccination in the city's ball park but now has decided to distribute the vaccine to 24 clinics instead.

Illinois has called off the entire program until "after Nov. 1 or later." Chicago administered the first shot, then decided not to give the second because of polio incidence in summer. The stocks of vaccine have been put in storage.

In the southeastern states, the majority of communities are going ahead with the program. Georgia reports, however, about 40 per cent absenteeism on second shots. Inoculations in Louisiana dropped from 37,019 the first time to 52,500, due mostly to the difficulty of getting children together.

Michigan will go ahead as soon as it gets sufficient vaccine. The state legislature voted $2,000,000 to give all children free shots. State Health Commissioner Dr. Albert Heustis said "we are not afraid of the vaccine and apparently Michigan parents are not afraid of it either."

New York has not received enough vaccine to go ahead. In New Jersey many communities have postponed the program until after the polio season.

'Wait and See' Attitude
In Indiana most towns are adopting a "wait and see" policy. Of 30 counties offered vaccine for the second round, 10 turned it down because of children being on vacation.

In Nebraska, Dr. Edwin Lyman, Omaha health director, is making no plans until more vaccine is received. "Residents are confused and disgusted with the way the vaccine situation has been handled," he said.

In Iowa only two counties have completed second shots. Des Moines health groups recommended postponement until fall.

North and South Dakota are going ahead. Most communities in Pennsylvania will give second shots as soon as they get vaccine.

But in Minnesota, Tennessee, Maryland, Delaware and most of Ohio the program will not be resumed until schools reopen. St. Louis is another of the big cities which will wait until autumn.

The Washington, D. C., Medical Advisory Committee recommended against giving shots in the polio season. Also officials in the capital felt they could round up only about half the children.

M. M. HUGGINS
Assumes OSC Alumni Job

M. Huggins Takes Over New Job as OSC Alumni Leader

M. M. Huggins, Medford, recently assumed his new duties as president of the Oregon State College Alumni association. Dr. A. L. Strand, president of OSC, has announced.

Huggins was elected president of the association and its board of directors this spring, but did not take office until July. He comes to the top alumni post after serving as vice-president.

He has been General Petroleum distributor for the past five years.

Huggins graduated from OSC in 1938. He was active in the dedication program for Parker stadium, new OSC football field, last year.

He attended Castle Rock, Wash., high school. After attending OSC he took graduate work in business at the University of Minnesota before going to the army.

During World War II he served with the 32nd Infantry division as a second lieutenant. Military decorations he received include the presidential citation and the distinguished service cross.

H. F. Thomas of Valsetz is new alumni vice-president, and A. H. Smith, Corvallis, treasurer.

Serving with Huggins on the alumni board will be Mrs. Freida Blakely, Virgil Cavagnaro and Robert Conklin, Portland; Joe Oliver, John Day; John Becharas, The Dalles; John Hackenbrook, Coos Bay, and Carle Abrams, Salem.

Student members of the board are Johnnie Rice of Corvallis, OSC student body president, and Janet Skinner of McMinnville, president of Associated Women Students.

Fire Burns Water!

Yes, forest fires not only destroy timber, they seriously damage our water supply, too. When the forest floor and trees are burned, rainfall does not seep into the soil to reappear as clear pure streams. It is lost in flood run-off. Such water is heavily silted. It pollutes streams, fills reservoirs with mud, and kills fish. Water is already short in many areas and becoming so in many others. So protect our forests—an important factor in our water supply.

REMEMBER, ONLY YOU CAN PREVENT FOREST FIRES!
