Foreign Ministers October Meeting Also To Be Test

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Correspondent

Washington—(U.P.)—First test of the Geneva conference goodwill comes in five weeks when the United Nations picks up the disarmament question again. It has been in deadlock.

The Big Four jointly recommended that the subcommittee of the U.N. Disarmament Commission resume in New York on Aug. 29.

Beyond that is the sterner test of an October meeting of the foreign ministers in Geneva. The foreign ministers will have all problems of the summit meeting before them.

But disarmament is part of the basic question of security which divides East and West and contributes so much to their mutual doubts. The instructions of the Big Four to their disarmament subcommittee representatives were significant.

They were, specifically, that the French, British, Russian and United States subcommittees "take account in their work of the views and proposals advanced by the heads of government at this Geneva conference." The language represents an effort to pass on to the subcommittee members the geniality and appearance of mutual trust which was achieved among the Big Four.

Acid Test Ahead

If the Geneva atmosphere is to dispel the foggy suspicions in which the disarmament subcommittee has so far breathed uncomfortably, the August 29 and subsequent meetings should at least give a hint of better times to come. On the other hand, the meeting might prove the contrary.

A 10-year-old record of high hopes and disastrous disappointment is sufficient evidence that any hint of a changed Russian attitude toward the basic problems is of vital importance in judging the real worth of the Big Four meeting.

President Eisenhower returned from Geneva an international hero. But he made no cracks such as British Foreign Minister Harold McMillan's "There ain't gonna be any war." In his first work day at home the President informed congressional leaders that there had been no secret agreements at Geneva. There was no qualification in that assurance.

Mr. Eisenhower has and did, however, qualify all of his expressions of satisfaction with Big Four achievements. They decided nothing except that certain problems urgently required solution and that their respective foreign ministers and appropriate U.N. bodies now shall undertake to solve them.

Just over 10 years ago it was quite different. President Roosevelt had returned from Yalta at which—as at Geneva—the Big Three had issued a joint statement which makes for some sad reading today, as for example, the Big Three pledge to assist the liberated peoples of Europe "to solve by democratic means their pressing political and economic problems." Josef V. Stalin signed that and other commitments upon which his government neither made good nor even acknowledged.

Republican and Democratic congressional leaders alike applauded the Yalta achievements. Former President Hoover, likewise believing that the Russians would keep their word, said the agreement "comprises a strong foundation on which to rebuild the world." The agreement never had a chance by reason of Communist double talk and double dealing.

FDR reported to Congress that the Yalta meeting was a "successful effort by the three leading nations to find a common ground for peace." He also believed the Russians.

Mr. Eisenhower had not committed himself. He hopes for the best and has considerable confidence in his new Russian friends. But he acknowledges that his hopes and confidence must yet be underwritten by events.

SUSPECT IN MURDER—Washoe County Sheriff Wally Toussaint (left) leads Harvey Bimstein to cell in Reno, Nev., after he was picked up as a suspect in the doorbell-robbery-murder of a nineteen-year-old son of a Southern California baking company executive.

Murder Indictment Faces Four Youths In 'Doorbell' Death

Los Angeles —(U.P.)— District Attorney S. Ernest Roll said he would ask the county Grand Jury today to indict the teen-age son of a millionaire and three others in the "doorbell" slaying of Frederick Winter Heinz, 19.

Roll said he would ask for indictments against Eric Newton Bass, 16, son of Newton T. Bass, wealthy Apple Valley, Calif., real estate operator; Harvey (Rocky) Bimstein, 23; John Hurney, 18; and Neal Cook, 25.

Shot at Door

Heinz, son of a bakery firm executive, was shot fatally with a .380 automatic before the eyes of his family when he answered the doorbell at the family home in nearby Pacific Palisades last Saturday night.

After shooting down Heinz, the two men forced their way into the house and stole watches and wallets from Heinz' father and brother-in-law.

Bass and Bimstein were arrested last Sunday by Reno, Nev., authoritis who said Bimstein admitted firing the shot that killed Heinz.

Waited Outside Home

Hurney and Cook, transients held in county jail here, told Roll they met Bass and Bimstein in a downtown Los Angeles hotel and waited outside the Heinz home while the other two entered.

Hurney and Cook were arrested near the Heinz home. They claimed they were on their way back to the scene of the shooting when arrested "to see if we could help the guy who was hurt... we didn't want any part of a murder."

House Debates Federal Highway Expansion Program

Washington—(U.P.)—The problem of how to pay the government's share of a multi-billion dollar highway expansion program confronted the House today.

Before it for debate were three proposals:

President Eisenhower's 10-year, $39,000,000,000 plan to be financed largely by bonds. The Democrats' 13-year, $48,000,000,000 program to be paid for in part by higher gasoline, tire and other highway "user" taxes. And a proposal by a group of dissident Democrats for a 10-year, $33,100,000,000 to be financed out of regular treasury revenues.

Called 'Must' Item

Mr. Eisenhower has called highway legislation a "must" item for Congress to act on before adjournment. Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey prefers the administration's original program, but has said the Democratic tax plan would be acceptable as a second choice.

The Senate earlier rejected the President's plan and passed an $18,000,000,000 Democratic substitute to be financed from the treasury. But Mr. Eisenhower has served notice on the House that he will veto the Senate bill or any other one which does not include some form of self-financing.

Washington Prison Stabbings Revealed

Walla Walla—(U.P.)—Warden Lawrence Delmore of the Washington state penitentiary today disclosed that two convicts were stabbed in two separate week end incidents at the recently riot-shaken prison.

The warden identified the wounded prisoners as J. L. Nordgard, 46, and A. N. Ensenberger, 22. He said both stabbings occurred Saturday and both men were recovered from their wounds.

"We plan an investigation to find out who did the stabbings and why," Delmore said, "but with neither man willing to talk, it's going to be difficult to find out just what did happen."

The stabbings incidents were the first reported acts of actual violence since the penitentiary riot of July 5-6.
