

Labor Delegates Ask Highway Aid Program at Final Session

The 53rd annual convention of the State Federation of Labor wired the Oregon delegation in congress requesting support of the federal highway aid program at its last session Friday.

Midway through the morning, a telegram reached the convention from the State Building Trades Council asking the federation to send the wire. With unanimous approval, the action was taken.

Nomination for federation of officers included: President, incumbent J. D. McDonald, Portland; first vice-president, incumbent Cecil Jones, and Jerome McCabe, both Portland, and H. E. Barker, Salem; second vice-president, incumbent Alice Westling, Portland, and Ann Chambers, Oregon City; executive secretary, incumbent James T. Marr, Portland.

Cravy Named
Charles W. Cravy, Medford, was the sole nominee for executive board member from District 10, covering Jackson and Josephine counties.

Others named were: District 1, Mike Steele, Portland; District 2, Eli McConkey, Astoria; District 3, F. J. A. Boehringer, Salem; District 4, Joe L. Willis, Eugene; District 5, T. J. Cruickshank, Coos Bay and Robert J. Caley, Roseburg; District 6, C. D. Long, Klamath Falls; District 7, J. L. Ross, Milwaukie; District 8, Verma Coffinberry, Pendleton; and District 9, Tom Swift, West Linn.

A referendum election for officers and board members will be held in each local union and the final vote tallied within 60 days.

Two Defeated
Of the 40 resolutions acted upon in the final two days, only two were defeated.

One supported a broader manual arts and crafts program in public schools, which delegates thought could be better handled on the local level. The other authorized a study to be made of public opinion of labor.

Measures favoring federation acquisition of the Labor Press; requesting that Fir-Tex Insulating board company of St. Helens and Marex Bakery of Gresham be put on the official unfair list; condemning Bend Teamsters Local 321 for crossing a picket line; and protesting the national AFL jurisdiction, all were referred to the executive

Neighbors Assist Burned-Out Couple On Blackwell Hill

Residents of Blackwell Hill, friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Jo Robertson are attempting to obtain materials for rebuilding the Robertsons' house, which was burned down last Sunday morning with all its contents.

Cause of the fire is not known, according to F. J. Floyd, Central Point, who reported the neighbors' action. It was discovered early Sunday morning when they smelled smoke. They awoke to find the house ablaze and had time only to snatch up their sleeping three-year-old son, and get out in the night clothes they were wearing.

The Big Y Market, where Mrs. Robertson is employed, their employees and patrons, have contributed generously with cash and other items.

Clothing Needed
Nearby neighbors took the Robertsons into their home and supplied them with emergency clothing. However they are in need of both clothing and household furnishings, and anyone wishing to aid may bring donations to Mrs. Doris Christopher, route 1, box 390-A, Central Point, or call Gold Hill 5-9353.

This address is on old Highway 99, across the street from Phelps cafe.

Christopher and Jesse Littlefield are soliciting lumber yards, saw mills and hardware merchants for materials for rebuilding the house.

Mrs. Lena Larricks is planning a "Pounding" party, where each guest will bring as a gift a pound of some food or other items.

Mrs. Robertson wears size 12 dress and size 5 shoes. His sizes are, shoes 9, pants 32-34, shirt 16. The little boy wears 7 1/2 shoes, clothes size 4. Beds and bedding are also needed, as well as furnishings of all kinds.

Old Papers Found Behind Mirrors; Officials Listed

Paul Selby, whose glass shop is at 303 North Bartlett st., last week received a large old mirror to resilver. In the process of taking it from its frame, some old newspapers were found, used as backing.

They turned out to be two copies of the "Southern Oregon Monitor," of 1895.

The yellowed papers were four pages each, and much of the editorial content was clippings from other papers, short stories of fiction, and articles with a "moral."

They were published in Medford, which was then only about 13 years old.

Official Directory
In the April 19 issue, there is an "official directory," showing the names of public officials. These included G. H. Haskins, mayor; B. S. Webb, recorder; Charles Strang, treasurer, and councilmen J. R. Wilson, C. J. Howard, J. W. Lawton, and E. W. Star.

Marshal was William Churchman and street commissioner was F. Amann.

State senator was S. H. Holt, and the three representatives from this district were J. A.
