

Indian Chieftain To Speak Tonight At Open Meeting

The present-day status of the American Indian will be discussed at a meeting set for tonight at 8 o'clock at Medford Church of the Nazarene. Speaker will be Dr. S. Ramar S. Bull, grandson of the famed Indian leader, Sitting Bull, and his appearance here is sponsored by Medford Council of Church Women.

Known as Chieftain White Feather, the speaker has devoted himself in recent years to Christian preaching among the Indians, and to furthering the release of Indians from federal control. Now that this goal is partially achieved, many civic and religious groups are taking a renewed interest in Indian affairs.

A spokesman for Medford Council of Church Women points out that the general public must be aroused to the problems which will follow release of the Indians from controls, and that it is the duty of white citizens to see that the Indians are given the rights which are due them, to see that job opportunities are open to them and that they are properly educated.

Dr. Bull will come to Medford from Klamath Falls, where he is making a series of talks in churches. Because the Klamath Indians are among those to be released from controls within four years, civic leaders and welfare agencies are already preparing for that time, it is stated. The American Friends Service committee plans to send two welfare workers to the Klamath area to work among the Indians, it is stated.

Anyone interested is invited to attend tonight's meeting.

Society and Clubs

Mr. and Mrs. Don Soule, members of the Shakespearean Festival company, are shown here during a party given last Sunday at Mon Desir inn for the company by Mr. and Mrs. Alex Tummers. Mr. Soule plays leading roles in the festival, and is cast as Theseus in tonight's opening production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Mrs. Soule works in the box office. The Soules are from Madison, Wis.

First Session At Low Echo Ends Friday

Girl Scout Camp Low Echo ended its first two-week session with a gala party Friday night, according to a report from the camp. Many Medford girls participated in earning badges and taking out of camp hikes.

Girls from numerous Oregon and California areas as well as two scouts from the Panama region were in camp during the last session.

Medford scouts who were awarded the swimmer's badge by the waterfront director, Miss Joan Dean, were Joyce Heaton, Penny Linn, Annice Black and Betty Kyker. The badge requirements include nine swimming and safety techniques.

After two weeks practice, many Medford girls passed the boaters badge requirements. They were Lorraine Scalberg, Penny Linn, Sue Gilman, Valery Ottoman, Lynn Latham, Ann Matthews, Janet Scalberg, Karen Carpenter, and Barbara Gordon.

Under the direction of Miss Marriane Johnson, hiking counselor from Sweden, several organized hikes were taken out of camp. Melissa Jennings and Ann Denman each led hikes to Lake Harriet. Campers were Helen Goff, Lorraine Scalberg, Ann Matthews, Penny Linn, Valery Ottoman and Karen Carpenter. Isobel Car and Mary Lou Neville were assisting counselors.

Miss Johnson conducted a shorter hike to Four Mile ditch. Campers making the trip were Ann Manno, Linda Jo Walterman, Judy Sims, Roberta Willott, Martha Sanborns, Joyce Heaton, Pamela Gilkison, Betty Kyker and Barbara Baccus. Jane Killingsworth and Norene Simonson, camp counselors, also accompanied the group.

Thursday a troop of nine climbed Mt. McLaughlin. Medford campers and counselors on the hike were Susan Gilman, Janet Scalberg, Elaine Williams, Pat Read and Barbara Roach.

During the session each camp unit took short game hikes. Each of these had a theme such as Alice in Wonderland, Robinson Crusoe, and Treasure Island. During the walk the girls were stopped at intervals to perform one camp craft skill. Hiking games were added to the camp program by the hiking counselor.

Actress Suzan Ball Taken From Hospital

Hollywood — (U.P.) — A "seriously ill" Suzan Ball continued her determined battle against cancer at an undisclosed location today following her discharge from City of Hope Medical Center at nearby Duarte.

The 22-year-old actress, who last year lost a leg to the disease, was released from the medical center Saturday night. She left quietly in an ambulance for an undisclosed location.

The center announced Miss Ball had "shown improvement" but her condition still was regarded as "serious." Spokesmen said she was returned to the care of her physician.

Miss Ball entered the center July 5 for diagnostic studies into a cancerous condition that had spread to her lungs. At one stage of her confinement she was feared near death.
