Miss Oregon To Be Guest Of Festival

Ashtland — Miss Oregon of 1955—Dorothy Johnson of Beaverton—will be the guest of the Oregon Shakespearean festival association Saturday evening, at the second performance of the season's tragedy, "Macbeth."

The play was Miss Johnson's choice—and appropriate one, since her "talent selection" for the Atlantic City Miss America contest—in September is Lady Macbeth's famous sleep-walking scene.

Miss Johnson, who has never before seen the scene staged, says she is coming to Ashtland "to see how it's done." While she is in Ashtland, she will be coached in the role by the play's director H. Paul Kliss, with whom she worked at the Magic Ring Theatre in Portland.

Miss Johnson studied drama for three years at the Portland Civic Theater. She was first interested in doing a part from Shakespeare for her talent test by Director Kliss and by Judge Frances Cook of Beaverton, one of the festival's leading ladies in the late 1930's. While in Ashtland, Miss Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Zimmerman of Beaverton, who will accompany her on the trip, will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hardy of Ashtland. Mr. Hardy is Judge Cook's brother.

Business Women Attend Meeting

Mrs. Harriet Watson, president of Medford Business and Professional Women's club, and Miss Laura York, past president of the Oregon Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, returned Sunday evening board meeting held in Bend.

They were accompanied by Mrs. Mae Dawson, Grants Pass, news service chairman for the federation.

Sessions were held at Pilot Butte inn with Mrs. Cora Pirtle, Eugene, federation president, presiding. The Rim Riders' posse served a buckaroo breakfast for the group Sunday morning.

Medford Teacher To Be Speaker For Conference

Mrs. Maxine Smith, Medford, president of the Department of Classroom Teachers of Oregon Education association, will be one of the speakers for the seventh annual leadership conference of Oregon Education association. It will be held August 7-9 on the Oregon College of Education campus, Monmouth.

Also attending from Jackson county will be Roland Parks, Ashtland, who will represent the Oregon High School Principals' department Mrs. Viola Pomeroy, Eagle Point, Department of Classroom Teachers; Lee Ragsdale, Medford Teachers' association; John Stuckey, Ashtland, who will represent Future Teachers of America and DeVere Taylor, Medford, representative of the Jackson County Division of OEA.

Public reaction to the 1955-56 education goals of Oregon's teacher organizations will be assessed by a panel of non-educator leaders at the conference, a release from OEA states.

Keynoting the opening session at the Sunday evening banquet, August 7, will be Rex Putnam, Salem, state superintendent of public instruction. He will speak on the "Meaning and Significance of the White House Conference on Education in Oregon." Miss Martha Shull, Portland, vice-president of the National Education association, will highlight the Monday evening banquet with a talk on "The Work of NEA."

On the Tuesday morning agenda two speakers will share the limelight. James King, superintendent of the Lebanon public schools, will speak about "Professionalism in Teaching," and OEA Executive Secretary Cecil Posey has entitled his address "The Professional Program of OEA and its Relationship to the Local Association."

Cliff Robinson of the Oregon Department of Education staff will be chairman of a Tuesday afternoon panel composed of presidents of OEA departments and chairmen of OEA statewide committees. Members of this panel will tell of the program and plans for educational work by their committee or department during 1955-56.

The three-day session will end Tuesday afternoon with a summary discussion led by Mrs. Antonia Crater, Newberg, OEA president.

Texas Guests Of Relatives Here

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Burrus and two children, Burton Jr., and Elizabeth, Bay Town, Tex., were guests earlier this week of Mrs. J. C. Cass, 1080 South Riverside avenue, and other relatives here. Mr. Burrus is a nephew of Mrs. Cass.

The visitors were accompanied by Mrs. Burrus' nephew, Hays DeHart of North Carolina.

The travelers, who are making an extensive tour of the west, expressed the opinion that Oregon is the most beautiful of all the states they had visited and were especially impressed with Crater Lake. From here they planned to go to Canada.

Motorcade Reaches Mouth of Columbia

Astoria—(U.P.)—An automobile caravan tracing the route covered in 1805 by the Lewis and Clark Expedition, came to the mouth of the Columbia river yesterday evening.

The group, making the trip on the 150th anniversary of the Lewis and Clark trek, started off from Fort Mandan, N.D., on July 27.

The 10-car caravan stopped at Fort Clatsop at 6 p.m. The fort, eight miles southwest of here, was the end of the trek west for the famed expedition through the Northwest.

One of the leaders in the caravan was Mrs. Esther Horne, Wapnetin, N.D., great-granddaughter of Sacajawea, Shoshone guide for Lewis and Clark.

The caravan also stopped at Seaside, where the earlier expedition made sail, and went on to the Clatsop county fairgrounds at Astoria, where Harold Coe, Clarkston, Wash., spokesman for the group, was given the key to the city by Eric Hauke, president of the city council.

Reckless Flying Charged in Dogfights

Bakersfield, Calif.—(U.P.)—An agricultural pilot was accused of reckless flying today as a result of dogfights between planes of rival crop dusting firms over which should dust a cotton field.

Steve Straub, operator of an Agricultural Aviation company, was accused in a complaint of making "fighter passes" on an aircraft flown by Ruben Rhorback, flyer for a rival crop dusting firm. Rhorback signed the complaint against Straub yesterday.

The Kern county sheriff's office and the Civil Aeronautics Authority began an investigation of the incident after witnesses told of seeing the rival planes diving swooping at each other in a battle for business.

Sheriff's deputies said several incidents of this kind have occurred in the nearby Arvin area recently.

Bills on Shellfish Become Effective

Salem—(U.P.)—Three new laws went into effect in Oregon this week calling for changes in commercial use of shellfish.

One permits sale of commercially taken razor clams in all counties of the state for the entire year. Before, sale of commercially caught clams between June 20 and Sept. 20 was allowed only in counties bordering the ocean.

Another law removes the restriction against taking razor clams on land abutting state parks. However, such areas still are kept closed by order of the State Fish Commission. A third law allows harvesting of scallops by the holder of a commercial clam, scallop and mussel license.

Save the half grapefruit shells from breakfast to make this attractive luncheon salad. Scoop out the membranes and line shells with a generous amount of country style cottage cheese. Top with overlapping well-drained canned cling peach slices and sliced fresh strawberries. Garnish plate with a cluster of fresh stemmed cherries.

West Coast Airlines Asks Service Addition

Seattle—West Coast Airlines has filed an application with the Civil Aeronautics Board to extend service to Reno, Nev., from Boise, Ida., and Klamath Falls, Ore., and to connect Klamath Falls and Boise via two new Oregon cities, President Nick Bez announced Thursday.

The airline proposes service between Klamath Falls and Boise with stops at Lakeview and Burns, Ore., and between Boise and Reno via Winnemucca, Nev. Proposed service between Klamath Falls and Reno would be non-stop.

West Coast Airlines presently serves 44 cities along a 2,200-mile route in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.
