Water Committee Calls for Reports

Yreka — The recently appointed Yreka water committee held its first meeting this week, and called for a series of reports from city officials on various aspects of the city's acute water shortage and how it can be alleviated.

State Sen. Randolph Collier was elected chairman of the group.

The committee went on record as favoring a city council plan to attempt placing an underground dam across a subterranean waterway near the city's north well to increase the supply of water for the well.

The underground dam is expected to be only a temporary help, and the committee will study other proposed long-range solutions. Among the reports it asked are those giving the city's financial position, its bonding capacity, present water supplies and facilities, and other pertinent information.
