

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman E. Johnson, 915 Beekman street, are shown here during one of two parties given to observe their silver wedding anniversary. One was given by firemen at the Westside Fire department building, where Mr. Johnson is employed as a city fireman, and the second was a buffet supper at the Johnson home.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman E. Johnson, 915 Beekman street, were honored at two events in observance of their 25th wedding anniversary. Both were surprise events.

The first was given August 1, at the West Side Fire department station where Mr. Johnson is employed as a city fireman. Several couples attended and refreshments were served.

The other party, August 3, was in the form of a buffet supper with Mrs. Truman Nelson, Mrs. W. R. McDonald and Mrs. Herb Robbins as the hostesses. About 10 couples attended, and the party was held at the Johnson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were married at Atlantic, Iowa, August 2, 1930. They moved to Oregon in 1937 and have lived in Medford since that time. They have a daughter, Dolores.

Multi-Purpose Dusts for Roses In Research Stage

Washington—(U.P.)—The Agricultural Research Service has come up with six multi-purpose dusts to gladden the hearts of rose fanciers.

The dusts protect roses from most insects, mites, and diseases.

None of the dusts answers the dream of growers for a one-shot dust or spray powerful enough to protect the plants against all their flying, crawling, parasitic, and disease-causing foes. No such "dream dust" is in sight, but the ARS scientists say the new multi-purpose dusts do much to solve rose-pest problems.

The dusts, developed at the research center at Beltsville, Md., are relatively safe and easy to use. All contain five per cent DDT and one per cent lindane as insecticides, plus other ingredients, that gives the mixture fungicidal and mite-killing power. Each dust has been successful in preventing damage by such common rose insects as aphids and leafhoppers, spiders, mites, and blackspot and mildew diseases.

FROSTY PICKUP

New York—(U.P.)—Here's a cool pickup for a warm day. Mix ¾ cup (a 6-oz. can) of quick-frozen concentrated orange juice with ¼ cups cold water and add 2 pint of vanilla ice cream. Beat 1 minute with rotary egg beater or in an electric blender. Serve in tall glasses. For variety, you can substitute 1 cup pineapple sherbet for the vanilla ice cream.

Some of the mixtures contain sulfur, a tried and true insect annoyner and sometimes destroyer.

Drain 1 package of frozen strawberries and add enough of the juice to moisten 1 eight-ounce package of cream cheese. Add the frozen berries and mix thoroughly. Use generously.
