Lecture Planned By Dr. Bailey On Villain-Hero

Dr. Margery Bailey, director of education for the Ashland Shakespearean festival, will lecture on "The Villain-Hero" on Wednesday, August 17, at 4 p.m. in the lecture hall of the Ashland Public Library. The address covers Richard of Gloucester (in Henry VI part 3) and Macbeth as favorite types in Tudor drama, replacing the good or heroic man of earlier and later plays. Dr. Bailey believes that the love of violence is not an aberration but a basic instinct, originally developed in primitive life as a necessity for survival. The Tudor deviations from this simple elemental fact provides the dramatic crises in the two plays of this season and of Richard III, to be presented in 1956.

The second library exhibit of the current season is on display in the main lobby of the library; it will be available till August 23, when the third and last exhibit of the summer replaces it. The present exhibit covers the sources of Shakespeare's interests—in his own county life, the science, law and music of his day, the work of his contemporaries, and the importance of "degreed" or caste, as evinced in heraldry. This last division of the exhibit shows the first draft of the coat of arms granted to Shakespeare, and arms of Henry VI, Lennox, Ross and Macduff, all personages appearing in this summer's plays.

On display in the library exhibit are items by the members of the Stanford field course, including the shield worked out for Macbeth by Miss Dorothy Long of Wahiawa, Hawaii, and a miniature tabard bearing the arms of Henry VI, worked out by Mrs. Betty Jayne Walters of Ashland. The students' notes on their research in establishing the arms as represented accompany the items.

Santa Barbara Music Festival Receives Award

Santa Barbara — The Pacific Coast Music Festival of Santa Barbara has received a special award from the American Composers alliance of New York for its service to music-makers and music patrons in programming a number of important works of new music.

Leopold Stokowski will conduct the Festival Orchestra, a group of outstanding musicians from Southern California hand-picked by the maestro, in four outdoor symphony concerts here Sept. 10, 11, 17 and 18. This third annual Festival will be held in the Sunken Gardens of Santa Barbara's famous Spanish courthouse on two Saturday and Sunday afternoons. In the five days intervening, the Paganini Quartet, the Musart Quartet and the Roger Wagner Choral will present concerts in the Lobero Theatre.

Stokowski explained: "I have chosen works from the finest composers of the past, but selected those compositions less familiar to the public. And I have chosen from the works of our contemporary musicians because unless we play them, they will also be unfamiliar."

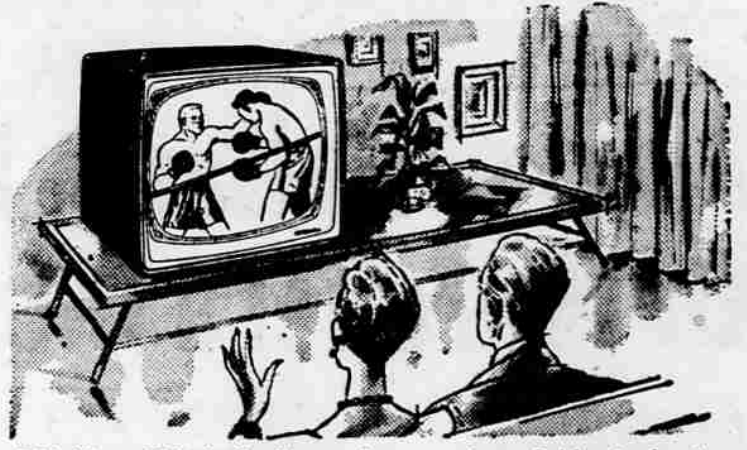

The new music selected includes the world premiere of Henry Cowell's "Hymn and Fuguing Tune, No. 10," for oboe and strings; an American premiere for "Malinconia," for string orchestra, by Theodor Berger, one of the foremost of Austria's contemporary composers and the western premiere of "Concerto No. 5," for strings and solo piano, by Alan Hovhaness of the Boston Conservatory.

Other works, rarely heard in the West, are by Darius Milhaud, Ernest Bloch, Igor Stravinsky, Bela Bartok, Ralph Vaughan Williams, William Schuman and Charles Ives.

Stokowski will balance the contemporary music with a few familiar and several rarely heard works of 17th and 18th century masters — J. S. Bach, Handel, Mozart, Gluck, Corelli, Cesti, Vivaldi, Purcell, Locke, of New England in the late Colonial and post-Revolutionary days, when the settlers were cut off from the musical life of Europe. These will be sung a cappella by the 160-voice Festival chorus being trained by Stokowski.
