Ice cream and coffee will be furnished by the club and dancers are asked to take either cakes or pies for refreshments. Doug Fosbury, Medford, will do the calling.

Obituary

ETHEL CRAIG
Funeral services are pending at Perl funeral home for Ethel M. Craig, 64, who died at her home on Beall lane today.

From Bay Area—Mr. and Mrs. M. Monette and children, Phillip and Denise, San Francisco, left this week after visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kerr, 14 Almond st. They are en route to Canada and plan to visit here in September on their return.

Baby Chokes—The city police department was contacted by the fire department yesterday morning after receiving a call for a respirator from Mrs. Katherine B. Cook, 1222 Locust st., who said her three-week-old baby was choking and couldn't get its breath, according to city police records. An officer was immediately dispatched to the Cook home, but on arriving the baby had regained her natural color, police said. The baby was then taken to a family doctor for further examination by her mother.

Bad Checks—Walter R. Young, of the Medford Stationery, 210 East Main st., reported to the city police yesterday that two checks drawn on the First Security Bank of Utah, Main Branch, Salt Lake, had been returned marked "unable to locate," according to city police department records. The checks were for $110 and $25 each, police said. Bette A. Boyle, manager of the Jackson Hotel, 108 South Central ave., also reported taking a fictitious check on the Utah bank for $60, but not cashing it. Both checks were passed and signed by the same man, police said.

From Port Townsend—Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Smith and daughter, Lynette, recently arrived in Medford from Port Townsend, Wash., and are living temporarily at the GeBauer apartments. They are one of about 18 families now arriving here in connection with the employee-owned Medford Veneer and Plywood company.

The occasion will be in observance of the second anniversary of the organization of the Jeans and Janes Square dance club. Ice cream and coffee will be furnished by the club and dancers are asked to take either cakes or pies for refreshments. Doug Fosbury, Medford, will do the calling.

OSC Experts Study Weather Controls In Central Oregon

Corvallis—Science is still hopeful that it can put reality into man's long-nurtured dream to do something about the weather. But Oregon State college meteorologists say such research is needed before such efforts as cloud seeding will give controlled weather changes.

The OSC researchers have just completed a four-year study of commercial cloud seeding in Oregon's dryland wheat area of Sherman, Gilliam, and Morrow counties. Their conclusion: no definite increases in rainfall due to seeding.

The study was made by Russell Lincoln, Fred Decker, and John Day in the 2,642,000 acre Tri-county region where rain-makers have been seeding clouds with silver iodide since 1950. The team of researchers armed themselves with 20-year weather records for the area prior to 1950 before starting their intensive four-year observation.

Average rainfall from 1930 to 1950 had been 10.5 inches during the 10 months, September through June, when cloud seeding is practiced in the Tri-county area. Yearly variations were wide, however, during the 10-month periods: 5.8 inches in 1938 compared to 16.6 inches in 1947.

Reports from regional weather stations, along with actual rainfall measurements in nearby unseeded areas, gave a computed average natural rainfall of slightly under 11 inches for the four test years.

The scientists measured 11 items used to compute natural rainfall, allowed statistical margin of error, and figured 12.60 inches of rain must fall before it could be credited to anything but chance. Actually, only 11.58 inches fell during the seeding season—one inch under the total needed to credit it to anything but nature.

It is quite probable, meteorologists say, that weather conditions are rare when man can make clouds release or withhold hail. But they believe the Tri-county study has provided a good tool for measuring present cloud seeding methods.

Kreisman Article Set for Publication

Ashland—Dr. Arthur Kreisman, professor of English and chairman of the division of humanities at Southern Oregon college has been notified that his article, "Some Thoughts on Teaching Method," will be published by the graduate school of Oregon State college in their quarterly magazine, Improving College and University Teaching for the month of August.

Emphasis has been placed by Dr. Kreisman on the broad aspects of "method" as distinguished from devices, procedures, and other concrete manifestations of the teaching process. He discusses this distinction from the viewpoint that only a person who thoroughly understands how a particular subject is learned can teach it with any great success. This means that the teacher must be a master of the subject in the deepest sense.

Rogue River Sets Opening of School

Rogue River—Rogue River schools will open Friday, Sept. 9 with a full day session for all students. The buses will operate on schedule similar to those followed at the close of school last spring and the lunch room will be open.

Registration for all high school students, for first graders, and for all students who are new to the district this year will be held during the week of Aug. 28-Sept. 2 in the high school office.

The hours will be 10 a.m. noon—Monday through Friday, Aug. 29-Sept. 2; 1 p.m.—Monday and Wednesday, Aug. 29-Aug. 31; 5-7 p.m.—Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 30-Sept. 1.

At the time of registration high school students should plan on paying a registration fee of $9.75. This consists of a $5 book fee; a $3.50 student body ticket; and a $1.25 towel fee. The fee may be paid later, but books cannot be issued or the benefits of the other portions of the fee enjoyed until payment is made.

Vernal Taylor Named Ranger at Applegate

Vernal E. Taylor has been assigned to the Rogue River National forest as ranger of Applegate district. Forest officials announced today. He fills the position held since 1946 by Lorán J. Cooper who was retired last month.

Taylor has served for a number of years as district ranger on the Ouachita National forest, Arkansas. He started his Forest Service career in 1934 soon after he was graduated from the University of Washington college of forestry.

During his college years he worked on the Olympic Forest and for several lumber companies in Washington State. He is en route to Oregon this week from Mena, Ark., and is expected to report for duty at Star Ranger station on Sept. 1. He is accompanied by Mrs. Taylor, two sons, and one daughter.

Advertising helped make the difference

FOODS USED TO BUY refrigeration in fifty pound pieces. Frozen foods were unheard of... an impossibility... and that drip pan under the ice box always seemed to be overflowing. Today, a silent, white-enamelled ice man stands in millions of kitchens.

But to mass produce millions of refrigerators, manufacturers must be able to sell them by the millions. Only by advertising can a manufacturer talk to millions of people at one time.

ADVERTISING TELLS the story of new refrigerators... and helps sell them. The more it sells, the more must be made—keeping the production lines and the jobs going. The result: newer, better appliances at prices more people can afford to pay. Advertising helped make the difference—in refrigerators, and in our American way of life.
