

They'll Do It Every Time

Writer Warns New York Visitors To Dodge Convention of Pun Preservers

By H. D. QUIGG United Press Correspondent

New York — (U.P.) — Beware of entering the city of New York next month. SPRPFH will be here, in convention.

That's the Society for the Preservation and Revival of Pun as a Form of Humor. They are just awful people.

They go for puns and word-play in general. They're no good for humanity. Avoid them like the plague. The black plague. The things they do to the English language shouldn't happen even to Pidgin English. They're no good, I tell you.

For instance: One there was two diplomats having a conference at Summit, N.J., naturally. There was a British diplomat, Ronald, and a Russian diplomat, Rudolph.

As they emerge from the building, he hear Ronald say: "I say, old chap, it seems to be showing."

"Nyet," says Rudolph. "It's raining."

"Oh, no, I say, really, it's snowing."

"Rain," says the Russian. At this point, Ronald's wife says to him: "Pay no attention to Rudolph, dear. He's right."

"What?" says Ronald. "Him right? Why should I listen to him?"

"Because Rudolph the Red knows rain, dear," says the wife. See what I mean? These people are a nuisance.

They tell about the gigantic, almost extinct mammal from Australia called the rary that created such a sensation in England. This rary was shipped to London for a zoo, but it proved too big and cumbersome for caging, so the zoo gave it away.

The fellow they gave it to tried keeping the rary in his garage, but its head stuck out one end and its tail the other and it caused all kinds of commotion, what with people staring and dogs barking.

Finally the man decided to dispose of the rary. He hired a big dump truck, put the rary in it, and headed for the White Cliffs of Dover. When they got there, the rary wary, said to the man:

"What goes on here? What are you going to do with me?"

"I'll tell you," said the man, "we're going to raise this truck and tip you right over the cliff."

"Goodness gracious, how far is it down there?" asked the rary. "About 350 feet," said the man. The rary stared down the cliff.

"It's a long way to tip a rary," he said.

And then there was the African king who decided his subjects were killing too many lions. He proclaimed a law forbidding lion killing. The subjects, who always had considered lion killing great sport, loyally obeyed the law. Soon they were knee deep in lions. The situation got so bad that the citizens rose up in anger and threw the king out of office.

That's all for today. I feel rather numb.

FACE-LIFTING SUGGESTED Karlsruhe, Germany — (U.P.) — A little face-lifting can not only be worth dozens of hours on the psychiatrist's couch, but it's a lot less expensive, the German Therapists Congress was told yesterday. A Berlin plastic surgeon said "woman is today so embroiled in the battle for existence that she cannot perform her work if she has an inferiority complex about her face."

Gloria, who someday hopes to become a teacher, has been named an honorary teacher in the Baltimore school system by Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro Jr. He said the child has done much to enhance the prestige of modern education methods with her "charming personality and ability."

The friend is Mrs. L. D. Heavener, who lives on a farm adjoining the family home of Gloria's grandparents, the Rev. and Mrs. Vivian T. Keys, at Gap Mills, W. Va. Gloria and her grandparents spent the week end at Gap Mills, returning to Baltimore Monday.

Mrs. Heavener said Mrs. Keys told her it definitely was decided that Gloria should try to double her winnings on the program. The girl has lived with her grandparents since her parents were divorced several years ago.

In And Around Gold Hill

Gold Hill—Mrs. Delos Walker, her two daughters, Dixie and Linda, Mrs. Lawrence Willis, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Walker, and her daughter, Chris Ann, Klamath Falls, recently returned from a trip North where they visited with a niece, Mrs. Art Emmens, and a sister, Mrs. Elinor Roney, both Vancouver, Wash. They also visited with another sister, Mrs. Mildred Patterson, Salem. Mrs. Ruby Quackenbush has purchased the John Steiber home in Gold Hill and plans to take possession sometime in September. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Thorne and son Marvin are on a vacation trip to Nebraska to visit relatives and friends. Hal Bishop, Gold Hill artist, will leave for Reedsport soon where he will do some sign work for the Richfield Oil company stations. Mr. and Mrs. Lester Parker and daughter Linda have returned from a vacation to Heppner, Ore., where they visited his two brothers, Frank and Loyd Parker and families. Jim Parker of the Old Stage rd. received a broken rib recently when he rolled out of bed.

"Prince Albert," the bantam rooster which won the fourth annual rooster crow staged in Rogue River June 18, died Sunday at the home of his owner, Albert Harrison Jr. Mrs. Jack White, daughter, Sharon, sons Robert and Garry, and Mrs. White's nephews, Terry and Steven Poe, Downey, Calif., who are visiting here, all went to Lake O' Woods to camp out for a few days.

FAMILY MISHAP Mendon, Vt.—(U.P.)—The Timothy Murphys recently cut short a Florida vacation when notified that their daughters, Julia and Jean, were hurt in automobile accidents. A short time later, another daughter, Helen, fractured her ankle and a son, Timothy, suffered hand burns while burning rubbish. The Murphys are keeping their fingers crossed. They have two other children.
