Lick Astronomer May Have Detected Birth Of Two New Stars; Unique Astronomy Event

Mt. Hamilton, Calif.—(U.P.)—Dr. George H. Herbig, astronomer in the University of California's Lick Observatory here, raised the possibility today that he had detected the birth of two new stars, a unique event in the history of astronomy if confirmed.

"Our understanding of what is taking place," Dr. Herbig said, "could hardly be more incomplete, but it may be that we have witnessed the opening phase of an episode in stellar evolution."

About 1600 Years Ago

Astronomers use of the words "recent" and "birth," is, of course relative. The actual birth of the two new stars would have occurred about 1600 years ago.

the time it takes light to travel from the Orion nebula to the earth.

The "new" stars, according to Dr. Herbig, are in the Orion nebula. They belong to a classification known as "T Tauri" stars. They are so rare that few of them are in the solar system's neighborhood. They were named T Tauri stars because the long known variable star T Tauri is of the same type.

Dr. Herbig suggested that his findings may provide important support for the idea of a contin-Union in Dublin, Ireland.

Two Types of Evidence

Dr. Herbig based the possibility that he had detected the birth of two stars on two types of evidence:

1. Two photographs, taken the International Astronomical delivery today at a meeting of ual birth of new stars, and may help to explain how these stars are formed. His findings were reported simultaneously here and in a paper prepared for seven years apart, of the same point in the Orion nebula, the first showing three stars and the second, five stars. All were embedded in a dark cloud of dust and gas like raisins in a pudding.

2. Evidence accumulated by astronomers for years indicates that stars so embedded in gas and dust have been formed recently out of the condensation of material in the gaseous streamers.

Gold Hill — Pre-registration for pupils attending the first grade at Gold Hill school is set for Friday, Sept. 9, it was announced today by Gilbert A. Mack, principal. Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Mack requested that pupils be accompanied by their mothers or fathers, and that they bring a birth certificate and medical examination record with them.

Mrs. Wilda Franks and Mrs. Barbara Toner will be in charge of registration.

Registration and classes for all other grades will be on Monday, Sept. 12. School hours of 8:30 a.m. to 3:10 p.m. will be maintained that day.

Lunch Program

The school lunch program will be operating again this year. Charges will be 25 cents for pupils and 30 cents for adults. Schedules for the school's three buses will be the same as those followed last year, although adjustments may be made later. The school's new 66-passenger bus is expected to go into service later this fall.

Improvements at the school include a reroofing job on the south side of the gymnasium, and tiling of the first and third grade rooms.

Plans for the new Gold Hill first and second call for completion as soon as possible, probably late this fall or early winter.

Queries Answered Regarding Credit Control For Loans

Answers to many questions regarding credit controls on GI home loans were given today by S. T. Brannock, officer in charge of the Medford office of the Veterans Administration.

The credit control order of July 30, 1955, requiring a two per cent down payment and limiting the maturity of such loans to 25 years was not retroactive, Brannock said.

Exempted from credit controls are those new and existing houses for which VA received requests for certificates of reasonable value (appraisals) prior to July 30 and houses for which FHA commitments had been issued, and for which VA received appraisal requests prior to September 30.

Brannock explained that the appraisal request is the first step in the GI home loan procedure.

Extensions of certificates of reasonable value on properties exempt from credit controls will not subject the units to down payment and maturity requirements, he said.

However, veterans will be required to pay closing costs in cash on any exempt property for which a certificate of reasonable value was extended.

In multi-home projects, Brannock said, substitution of houses on lots selected by veterans will not subject the property to credit controls if both the house and lot are covered by appraisal requests received by the VA prior to July 30.

Brannock said the new credit controls will not apply to GI loans made solely for the replacement of reconstruction of residential property that has been destroyed or substantially damaged by flood, fire or similar disasters.

Neither do the new requirements apply to repair, alteration or improvement loans, Brannock said.

He added that VA could not grant exceptions where a veteran signed a contract prior to July 30, 1955, but for which request for appraisal was not received prior to that date.

The two per cent down payment requirements must be met in every case by a payment of cash. An equity in land is not acceptable under VA regulations, Brannock explained.

Brannock emphasized VA can exclude homes not affected by FHA credit controls only if requests for GI appraisals for those homes are received by VA on or before Sept. 30, and VA can obtain satisfactory evidence of their exclusion from FHA credit controls.

All Grades Start Sept. 9 At EP

Eagle Point — Eagle Point schools will open Friday, Sept. 9, with full day sessions for both grade and high school students. Busses will run on the same schedule used at the close of school last spring, according to G. D. Hall, superintendent of schools.

Registration for new students at Eagle Point will be held Sept. 9, at which time fees will be payable.

Fees include a $5 book rental fee, $1.50 student activities ticket, 50 cent deposit on a locker key, and $1.50 down payment on the school's annual if desired. An additional $1.50 is charged when the annual is delivered.

Course Fees

Hale said if students wish to take metal shop there is a $4.50 fee, and for wood working shop the fee is $2.

He pointed out that books cannot be issued until fees are paid.

First grade students must bring birth certificates and have had a physical examination. Hale said parents of first graders who did not have physicals during the pre-school clinic should make arrangements with family physicians to have physical examinations prior to opening of school.

Sprague River Man Held in Slaying

Klamath Falls —(U.P.)— Marcellus John Norwest, 26, of Sprague River, Ore., was scheduled to be arraigned in Klamath County Circuit Court today in connection with the slaying of Jackie Howard Jones early Wednesday morning.

The body of Jones, a 24-year-old Chiloquin logger, was found on a dirt road in Chiloquin about 2:30 a.m. Wednesday. He had been shot through the left shoulder with a .30-.30 rifle.

Norwest and Leroy (Buzz) Warley were taken into custody by Chiloquin police after they went to the police station to obtain aid for the dead man.

Norwest told police he and Jones had quarreled over possession of a case of beer, and that he pointed the rifle at Jones in an attempt to frighten him. He did not know the gun was loaded, he said.

District Attorney Richard Beesley did not indicate the severity of charges he would bring against Norwest. Warley was held briefly by county officers on an open charge, but was then released.

Police said Jones was on parole from the Missouri state prison, where he had served time for auto theft.

Police Report Two Minor Accidents

Two minor accidents were reported to state police yesterday.

About 6:20 p.m. yesterday, cars driven by Ezra Edward Weaver, 71, of 1025 West 11th st., Medford, and Phillip Forest Holt, 34, of 2630 Tennessee rd., Medford, collided about a block north of the Mason Erhman rd. on Highway 99.

Police said Weaver turned left off Mason Erhman rd. and when he pulled from the northbound left lane into the right lane, the cars collided.

A logging truck and trailer driven by Jack Elmer Lane, 18, of 809 Beach st., Ashland, was driven into the right ditch on the Green Springs five miles east of Klamath Junction about 7:30 p.m. yesterday when the truck motor failed leaving the vehicle without brakes.

Police said the motor died when Lane attempted to get the two-speed axel back in gear after it jumped out earlier. Lane pulled the vehicle into the right ditch to stop the truck. Three peeler logs fell off onto the highway. The logs were removed by a passing jeep, police said.

There were no injuries in either accident.
