About 150 teachers from Jacksonville, Phoenix, Butte Falls, Prospect, Eagle Point, and Rogue River schools are scheduled to attend the one-day session.

The program has been planned by a committee of teachers and administrators from the six schools, in cooperation with county schools officials and representatives of the state department of education.

Speakers Listed
Speakers and demonstration leaders will include Miss Mary Bowman, state supervisor of physical education and health, representative of the American Book company; Otto J. Wilda, associate professor of art, Southern Oregon college; Lyle Ashcraft, representative of D. C. Heath and Company; Dr. W. G. Burrows, state hospital psychiatrist, Salem; Mrs. Kathryn Smith, assistant professor of education and director of teacher placement, Oregon State college; Mrs. Eugene Bowman, elementary art teacher, Talent; Dan King, representative of Ginn and Company, and Miss Louene Birch, state health department technician, Salem.

J'ville Schools To Open Sept. 12; Bus Time Unchanged

Jacksonville — Jacksonville public schools will open Monday, Sept. 12, it was pointed out today by Superintendent Clyde Sutherland. Buses will run on regular schedules the first day.

Children in the first three grades may be picked up by their parents at the school at 2 p.m.

Parents of first grade children are asked to accompany their children to school the first day. Each child should have a birth certificate and a health examination report.

Sutherland requested that students new to Jacksonville schools have evidence of their last year's grade placement and promotion.

Enrollment Sept. 12
High school students will enroll the morning of Sept. 12. At that time, they will pay fees amounting to $12.25, and will attend a short assembly meeting. The afternoon will be divided into a full day's schedule of classes, during which students will receive text books and will be informed on future class activities.

The school cafeteria will be in full operation starting on Sept. 12. Charges will be 20 cents for children in grades 1 through 5, and 25 cents for students in grades 6 through 12.

Sacred Heart X-Ray Clinic To Re-Open

The chest X-ray clinic for the public will reopen at Sacred Heart hospital on Thursday, Sept. 8, between 2 and 5 p.m., it was announced today by hospital officials and the Jackson County Public Health association, who jointly sponsor the clinic.

Out-patient clinics at both Sacred Heart and Community hospitals have been closed during the summer, and Community hospital is not scheduled to re-open until later, the X-ray committee reported.

Purpose of out-patient clinics is to reveal unknown cases of tuberculosis, lung cancer, heart conditions and other chest ailments while the disease is in early stages and curable.

Committee Goal
L. O. Boomer, X-ray chairman for the health association said that the committee's goal is to have all adults in Jackson county chest X-rayed each year.

"We are again planning an extensive campaign to X-ray food handlers," he said. "Cases of tuberculosis we have already found through the clinics make the program especially important."

All school personnel including teachers, cooks, bus drivers and janitors are required to have chest X-rays.

X-ray machines are provided by Christmas seal funds, and a small charge is made to cover operation costs. Persons over 15 desiring an X-ray may go to Sacred Heart hospital Thursday between 2 and 5 p.m. No appointment is necessary.

Dead line Sunday classified is at noon Saturday; 10 a.m. Monday for Monday; other days 5:30 previous day.

As We Live

Children's Diseases Belong To Childhood

Children's diseases are usually less severe and have fewer harmful effects in childhood than they do later on. The psychological effects of such diseases must be considered, too.

(Q) "We have an only child, five years of age. My husband insists that we must send him to kindergarten this fall, as there are no children his age near us to play with him. I try to take him to play with my friends' children as often as possible but I agree that the child needs more companionship with other children than this. The one thing that holds me back is his health. He is not robust, and I am so worried that at school he will pick up germs from other children and have measles, mumps, chicken pox, and all the other diseases children get when they are in groups. I feel that if I can keep him away from germs for another year, he may be stronger and better able to stand such diseases. Am I being selfish about this?"

(A) No mother who has her child's welfare at heart is really selfish. However, I think your sense of values is somewhat distorted. The physical damage of children's diseases is likely to be far less than the psychological damage lack of companionship can cause.

A young child is generally not nearly so sick when he has a child's disease, such as mumps or chicken pox, as an older child, an adolescent or an adult. Furthermore, the new medicines do a lot to lessen the severity of these diseases, and some can be prevented. Discuss this with your doctor.

A child who is so guarded that he escapes the diseases of childhood when his contemporaries have them and then contracts them later is likely to be much embarrassed. A high school student, for example, is much more embarrassed when he comes down with mumps than a child is, because he knows or suspects that his classmates feel he has a "kid's disease."

It is always a great satisfaction to a child to be just like his friends. If they have mumps, he wants to have them too, just as he wants to have a bicycle if they have bicycles. Let your child go to kindergarten and be like the other children, even to the point of having the same diseases they have.

15-20 Year Boost in Life Expectancy Seen

San Francisco — (U.P.) — A prominent physicist-statistician predicted today that the average American's life expectancy will be increased by 15 to 20 years by the year 2000.

Dr. Hardin B. Jones, who recently completed an extensive study on longevity and disease in this country and Europe, said that barring an unexpected reversal in the present trend many Americans could expect to live until age 85 to 90 by the turn of the century.

Jones said that if general health conditions continue to improve as they have been, Americans can expect not only to live longer but will enjoy their "bonus" years in better physical shape.

Jones, who is professor of medical physics at University of California, just returned from six months' of research on population trends in the United States and Europe on a Guggenheim Fellowship.
