Grammar Same Now
As in Grandpa's Day

University Park, Pa.—(U.P.)— Professors of English at Pennsylvania State University have come to the defense of young students who are criticized by their elders for faulty spelling and grammar.

Grandpa and grandma weren't much better in their day, the professors pointed out. A report issued by the head of the school's English department in 1889 deplored lapses in grammar, as follows:

"By far the greater number of students have nothing more than a meager knowledge of any language, not excepting English.

"... Our young men begin their college course lame where it is above all things desirable that they should be strong..."

A few years later another department head showed concern about the same problem, writing:

"The question of all others that is at present most troubling the department is how to deal with the marked lack of preparation in English shown by nearly all who enter the college."

Granquist stalled the woman along with small talk, trying to collect his wits and find a way to avert a suicide. Finally, he asked her what was troubling her.

"There are two skunks in my basement and I wish you would get them out," the woman said.

A game warden disposed of the skunks.

Radar Used to Track
Down Smog Chemicals

Los Angeles — (U.P.) — Radar is now being used as a detective to track down some of the chemicals responsible for eye-smarting smog.

Dr. W. D. Hershberger, professor of engineering, has found that the pattern of certain microwaves is changed with the presence of gases thought to be associated with smog.

Dr. Hershberger plans to use radar in both laboratory experiments and in testing the smog as it forms over Los Angeles.

Microwaves will be beamed across the area from stations to special receiving instruments on top of the UCLA engineering building.

Sheriff Startled Over
Troubled Woman's Call

Stillwater, Minn. — (U.P.) — Sheriff Reuben Grandquist's phone rang at 4 a.m. and a woman's voice announced "I can't take it any more; this is the end."

 her.

 get them out," the woman said.

 the skunks.

Research Speeded On The Fantastic 'Ultimate Weapon'

Washington — (U.P.) — Research on a fantastic, ocean-spanning "ultimate weapon" may be hastened by the decision to launch an earth satellite for scientific study.

The weapon, known as the Intercontinental Ballistics Missile, would work on the same basic principle as the satellite.

The United States is known to be developing several types of the IBM, which, when perfected, could span oceans in a matter of minutes and come crashing down on its target from outer space at speeds in excess of 10-000 miles an hour. Russia is working on it too.

Research experts think defense is theoretically possible, but no known defense exists now. Armed with an atomic or hydrogen warhead, it would wreak untold devastation in the target area.

Two Types
 The missile would be aimed something like an artillery shell.
 Scientists believe the IBM can be perfected to hit within a 20-mile circle after a flight of several thousand miles. With an H-bomb warhead, this would be sufficient accuracy.

Two types of missiles may be in early test stages at the Air Force's missile test center at Cocoa, Fla. One is the true ballistics type that streaks out of the atmosphere like an artillery shell at more than 12,500 feet per second.

The other is the jet-propelled type of missile that flies more slowly but can be more accurately controlled all the way to the target. This kind will be able to steer itself by the stars.

Diplomatic and technical arrangements now are in progress to set up a 5,000-mile missile test range reaching from Banana River, Fla., across the South Atlantic to British-held Ascension Island. The missiles will be fired the length of the course but will be armed with test instruments instead of warheads.

Would Speed Program
 One of the problems is the terrific heat created when a missile comes crashing back into the atmosphere after soaring through space.

Another problem which has not yet been solved is that of defense. There can be little or no advance warning of an attack.
 And even if interceptor planes did get up in time, they could not cope with IBM.

Russia is believed on the track of such a weapon. Lt. Gen. Donald L. Putt, Air Force research chief, told Congress last March that Russia has the ability to develop a "surprise" weapon that could tip the military scales "dramatically" in its favor.

Some congressmen have warned that Russia may be ahead of the United States in missile research. They want to establish a "crash" or speedup program, similar to the Manhattan Project which developed the atomic bomb in World War II, to rush the development of the IBM.

High School Students
Building Computer

Buffalo, N.Y. — (U.P.) — Students at Hutchinson-Central Technical High School are building an electro-magnetic computer, more commonly known as an "electronic brain."

Aaron L. Buchman, a mathematics teacher at Hutchinson, is directing the construction of the "brain." He has studied the development of computers since the first commercial machine was produced 12 years ago.

Funds were appropriated by the board of education for the "brain," which is expected to cost about $1,000.

"There will be a big demand for people trained in this field," said Buchman.

"The students would require a great deal of further education before they are trained operators," he added, "but our project will give them a basic grounding in electronic computing."
