

Medford Library's Open Hours Will Change on Monday

On Monday, Sept. 19, open hours of the Medford Public Library will be changed.

The adult department will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The junior department will open at noon each day except Saturday and close at 5:30 p.m. each evening except Tuesday. Saturday hours will be from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Tuesday hours will be from noon to 9 p.m.

For New Books

The purpose of the new schedule is to put more new books into circulation as quickly as possible, according to Librarian Miss Helen Webster. More than 300 new titles are now on order, with shipments being received daily. There are also on hand many books that have been donated to the library which will be placed on the shelves just as quickly as they can be processed for circulation, she said.

The work of preparing the books for use of Jackson county readers is done by Mrs. Evelyn Graham, classifier, Mrs. Charlene Tarvin, cataloging clerk, and Mrs. Phyllis Morse, processing.

Frantic Efforts Made To Revive Dying Las Vegas Hotel Business

Editor's note: One of the most amazing business phenomena of the decade has been the mushroom growth of Las Vegas into the gambling capital of the world. But in recent months there have been reports of faltering business. The United Press, in a two-part series, details the picture in Las Vegas today and its possible future.

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer
Las Vegas—(U.P.)—Las Vegas, the glittering Monte Carlo of America, has so changed that even Frank Sinatra has climbed aboard a camel to try to lure customers back to one of his dying hotels.

This scene occurred at Las Vegas' first "re-tread" opening, when a hotel which opened its doors only last May already had to have a second

Parakeet's Memory

Thwarted by Change

Oswego—(U.P.)—It took Mrs. Harry Meyer of Lake Grove months to teach McGee the parakeet to repeat the family telephone number, Blackstone 1-2465. Then the telephone company changed the number to Neptune 6-2465. McGee greeted the news with stunned silence.

Mourners

Over 50,000 people mourned at the recent funeral of Carmen Miranda in Rio de Janeiro. This brings to mind the funeral of Florence Mills. Thousands of her people were at the cemetery when Florence was buried. As the coffin was lowered into the grave they sang "Bye, Bye, Blackbird."

Please Note

What are your eccentricities, if any? One of mine is that I always have my watch five minutes fast. Maybe it is silly. But I think it gets me places on time. I haven't missed a train, plane or first race in years.

Asking

Queries from clients, Q. Where in New York City did Father Tom Burke preach? A. At the church of St. Vincent Ferrer, Sixty-ninth st. and Lexington ave. . . Q. Who will win the Marciano-Moore fight, or are you afraid to get out on the limb? A. Marciano will win in eight rounds or less. . . Q. Was Fannie Brice married two or three times? A. I believe it was three—first to a man named White from Springfield, Mass., second to Nicky Arnstein and third to Billy Rose.

Horses & Women

Have you recently noticed a woman wearing a wedding ring on her right hand? If so, was she a smart looker? She might have been a divorcee who wishes to indicate she is in the mood for another marriage. An eminent expert on the subject of etiquette says that wearing a wedding ring on the right hand by a divorcee indicates she will consider a second husband. By the way, a bachelorette who can't get a husband is, upon reaching 25, considered a spinster or an old maid. What is a divorcee, who would like to get a husband but can't, called?

Among the Married

Twin beds or a double bed? Which is better for the married? Dr. Marie Stopes, author of "Married Love," does not favor either. She is for separate rooms. The wife, says Doctor Marie, should have a room of her own.

Construction Starts On Office Building

A two-story office building is being constructed at 11th st. and Central ave. for M. M. Huggins, General Petroleum distributor. Cost of the structure has been announced as $100,000.

The building will be of New Orleans style architecture, the only one of this type in southern Oregon. It will have an area of 6,200 square feet.

Features of the building will include refrigerated air conditioning, with a combination air and hot water heat. The exterior of the building will be of masonry construction of a special type of pumice block.

Each of the downstairs offices will have individual doors, and a paved parking lot is planned adjoining the building. T. J. Hight will be agent for the building. Contractor is Armin Richter.

MONROE FAN

Albuquerque, N. M.—(U.P.)—Someone who broke into a trucking company office here took only several Marilyn Monroe calendars showing the movie star in her famous nude pose.

Premiere

The Dunes Hotel never got off the ground following its first opening six months ago. The Sands Hotel was asked to take over The Dunes on a lease at $1,250,000 a year, and last week end, "The Sands married The Dunes," as the ads said.

The flashy premiere—the most colorful and also most weird Las Vegas has seen—is indicative of the change in Las Vegas.

The Dunes is not the only new hotel that has failed to rake in the expected millions at the gaming tables. The seven-story, lush Riviera had to be taken over by a group that formerly ran the successful Flamingo. And that group already has asked The Sands to take the Riviera off its hands.

The Royal Nevada not only has changed owners once, but the new handlers already have tried in vain to lease the hotel to the veteran Desert Inn. The inter-racial Moulin Rouge also had to bring in new capital and has hired veteran showman Gene Mann to hype up the shows.

The hoopla re-opening of The Dunes marked the first round in a battle to get Las Vegas out of a recession that has hit some of the expensive hotels on the suburban "strip," which is county territory outside the city proper. With Frank Sinatra, one of the owners, as the headliner of the show, The Dunes had a busy casino at its "reopening" for the first time since it was built.

How to revive a dying hotel is an interesting process. The Sands' press agents drew up a 200-page book of instructions and plans for the re-opening of The Dunes, and I managed to steal a look at this fascinating document. It included such suggestions as the construction of a 14-foot long Alladin's lamp on the lawn of the hotel.

"People can write wishes on cards, and place them in the lamp," the publicity manual said. "This will add a touch of the Far East, and, besides, we'll get a mailing list for the hotel."

The Sands-Dunes previous publicity feat was staging the Dick Haymes-Rita Hayworth wedding. The re-read job on The Dunes, observers figure, may last longer.

Charging Horses

Visiting press and stars invited to The Dunes were escorted off the plane by a row of harem girls and two Negroes, listed on the program as "nubian eunuchs," waving long fans. The ceremonies featured Sinatra on his lurching camel, three white Arabian horses charging through a canopy of spears, Arabian costumes for all the native musicians (local 807) playing oriental music beneath an Arabian tent.

A true Arab would have wilted in his burnoose to see it. But the event was the opening of a drive by Las Vegas to woo back its once-booming business.

What is happening to the other hotels in Las Vegas. Is the land of cactus and roulette wheels fizzling into the most expensive ghost town in history? Has the boom of new hotels gone too far or will Las Vegas continue as the lushest resort town in the country?

Tomorrow: The future of Las Vegas.
