

Peron Cannot Win in Long Run, Expert on Argentina Declares

(Editor's note: Why are there repeated revolts against President Juan D. Peron of Argentina? How long can he survive them? How does he keep some of the officers of the Argentine Armed Services loyal to him? The following dispatch answers those and other questions about the civil war now raging in Argentina. The writer is an expert on Peron and Argentina. For the last 12 years he has lived in Buenos Aires where he made his headquarters as United Press vice-president and general manager for South America. He knows Peron intimately and is widely acquainted among the men who surround him. Last week he reported to United Press world headquarters in New York as vice-president and assistant general manager of the U.P.)

In the long run President Juan D. Peron of Argentina cannot win.

Even if his troops crush the present rebellion, his power will continue to decline. Somehow and some way in the near future Peron will cease to be the dictator of Argentina.

Every revolt against him—and there have been a half dozen in the last four years—chips away some of the foundation of his power. Eventually the structure will collapse.

Cause Simple

The underlying cause for the repeated uprisings against Peron is simple. The people are tired of being ruled by a dictator. They are tired of being spied on. They are tired of having their mail opened and their telephones tapped. They are tired of having friends and relatives arrested without being able to find out where or why they were jailed.

Under Peron Argentina has become a thorough police state. There is no free press. Most of the newspapers and all of the radio stations long ago were taken over by the government. There are no civil liberties. Peo-

Library Junior Department Has Busiest Summer

The junior department of the Medford Public library has completed the busiest summer in its history, it was reported last week.

A total of 26,755 books were borrowed from its shelves during the months of June, July, and August of 1955, or 4,000 more than during any previous summer. Not only books of stories, but biographies and scientific works, have been popular, according to Mrs. Nora McKay, head of the department.

New Hours

Beginning on Sept. 19, with the opening of school, new opening hours will be observed. The junior department will be closed until noon every morning of the week except Saturday, when it will open at 10 a.m. Closing hour each day is at 5:30 p.m., except on Tuesday it will remain open until 9 p.m.

Assisting Mrs. McKay in the library for younger readers will be Mrs. Florence Perkey and Miss Mary Fredenburg. Miss Carolyn Mae Clogston, who during the summer months, has been assisting in the department returned to her studies at the University of Oregon.

Nixon Caricature Out of Exhibition

San Francisco (U.P.)—An complimentary caricature of Vice-President Richard M. Nixon has been removed from exhibition by officials of the San Francisco Art Festival.

The cartoon, captioned "Dick McSmear," was drawn by Victor Arnautoff, an art instructor at Stanford University. It pictured the vice-president wearing a black mask, holding a pumpkin in one hand and a red-daubed paint brush in the other.

There were immediate artistic rumbles about "censorship" and "freedom of expression," but J. D. Zellerbach, president of the Art Commission, said he had the cartoon removed on the protests of private citizens.

Zellerbach said that "while I defined the right of artists to uninhibited self-expression," he felt that no public official of any party should "be the subject of a caricature displayed at an art exhibit financed by all the people."

The cartoon was priced at $25.

Police Chief Warns Owners To Remove Keys from Cars Parked at Home, On Street

Medford Police Chief Charles Champlin has urged residents to remove keys from automobiles when they are parked, whether on private property or public streets.

Champlin noted that since Jan. 1, this year, there have been nine cases of stolen cars in Medford—a relatively small number compared to thefts in other cities the size of Medford. But of the nine stolen, at least three vehicles had the keys in them.

Car Badly Damaged

The most recent such case involved a car which was taken from in front of a local east side residence by what Champlin termed a "joyrider." The foreign made vehicle was returned to the same position—damaged badly from being rolled over by the "joyrider."

Another "joyrider" took a vehicle out of a southwest Medford residence driveway, drove it about 100 miles, and returned it to the driveway the same night it was taken.

In the northwest section a car was left parked on the street with the keys in it. A "joyrider" utilized it for about three hours before returning it to the almost same position.

Champlin noted that keys also are left in vehicles on some local used car lots. Recently a car was taken from a lot and recovered in Klamath Falls the next day.

Locks Important

The police chief stressed importance of having ignition locked when keys are removed. He noted that some name-brand vehicles are made with three positions—"off," "on," and "lock." If the ignition is in the "off" position, the switch may be turned "on" without use of a key, but cannot be turned "on" from the "lock" position without a key.

The theft of a car which was left in the "off" position was reported recently. The car was taken from downtown Medford, and recovered later the same day on the east side.

Another case of car theft this year included one taken from on South Riverside ave. and two days later returned to within a block of where it was taken. The subject, police said, was left in the car asleep with the keys while the owner went into a business establishment on business.

Take Keys, Return

Juveniles, in another case, removed keys from a vehicle on a used car lot during daylight hours, and went back during the night and took the car. The vehicle was recovered the next day in Klamath Falls with the two boys who took it.

A car was stolen from another downtown parking lot early one afternoon and returned late the same afternoon by youths. One of the youths was given the keys and permission to have gasoline put in the vehicle at a nearby station, according to police records. The vehicle was gone about four hours, and a car theft report filed.

Champlin pointed out that car thefts cannot be entirely stopped, but residents might assist in decreasing the number of thefts by removing keys, and removing other items which would tempt thefts.

Some Unpreventable

Some cases cannot be prevented, he said, like one in which an Air Force man wired around the ignition. The car, which was stolen from a used car lot, was recovered in Canyonville. The same person stole several other vehicles in the state, and papers are being prepared to extradite the Air Force man from California to face charges here.

In addition to the nine "founded" car thefts, there have been eight "unfounded" cases reported to Medford police. "Unfounded" cases include those in which people forget where they park their vehicles, and other cases where there was no actual intent to steal.

One of the cases included a case of mistaken identity in which a party drove a car identical to one parked next to it in a parking lot. Keys from one fit the other, and the party noticed no difference in the vehicle.

'Human Fly' Escapee Held at Fort Lewis

Fort Lewis, Wash.—(U.P.)—A 24-year-old AWOL soldier who Friday morning made a daring "human fly" escape from the sixth floor city jail at Portland, Ore., was held for Portland police here Saturday.

Jerry Keith Fry surrendered to Army officials here apparently in the hope of beating a 180-day assault and battery term in Portland. Fort Lewis authorities, however, said they would turn Fry over to Portland police. No extradition procedures would be necessary.

Fry, a "locked in" trusty, climbed out a sixth floor window, and inched along a narrow ledge 60-feet above the ground to a fire escape, down which he descended before police could be alerted.

In Portland, police said Fry faced an additional one-year sentence in the county jail for his escape.

TO CONDUCT CLASS—Dr. S. Rudisill, pictured above, will conduct an institute on family life at 8 p.m. today in the Zion Lutheran church. He is on an extended tour of the Pacific coast, which he started in Sitka and Juneau, Alaska, in August. He will visit Washington and other Oregon and California points. The institute in the local church is open to the public and all those interested persons are invited.

Lutherans Observing Radio and TV Week

The congregations of the Lutheran church (Missouri synod) of which St. Peters Lutheran church, 1020 East Main st., is a member, are observing Lutheran radio and television week, beginning today, according to the pastor, the Rev. Kenneth Korby.

This synod is sponsor of the well-known television program, "This Is the Life," which is now telecast over 264 stations, and also the sponsor of the "Lutheran Hour," now broadcast over 1,250 outlets throughout the world, in 56 different languages.

Mr. Korby left today to conduct a series of evangelism services at Redeemer Lutheran church at Gresham. He is one of a group of pastors helping to conduct this series in the larger Portland area. He expects to return Thursday.

Plans Complete for UMC 'Kick-Off' at Medford 'Y' Monday

A "kick-off" dinner at the YMCA 6:30 p.m. tomorrow will formally launch the United Methodist Crusade for 1955. The dinner is free and opens the annual UMC drive scheduled to close Nov. 7.

After the dinner a torch in the city park will be lighted to burn continuously until the crusade's end.

Second Meeting Planned

Division leaders, section heads, and solicitors are expected to attend, with presidents of boards and agencies, their officers and executives invited. Though the five colonels and co-chairmen of the Home Fund drive are invited, they and the solicitors, not yet appointed, will have a private kick-off meeting Oct. 24.

The Rev. George R. V. Bolster will give the invocation and benediction, and M. M. Huggins will present the aims and goals of the campaign. John R. Dellenbach will address the group on "Life in a Vacuum," and a skit, "Do Well vs. Mean Well," will be given.

Contribute Dinner

Ray Sorensen and Tony Manno are in charge of dinner arrangements. Firms contributing the dinner and decorations include Blake Moffitt and Towne, Zellerbach Paper company, Snider's and Jorgensen's dairies, Beck's and Fluhrer's bakeries, Rogue Valley Green House and Florists, and Nescafe Coffee company.

Eight girls from the eighth grade Tri-Hi-Y will serve.

Goal $109,000

The Crusade is beginning its third year, shooting for a goal of $100,000, some $7,000 over last year's quota. The organization distributes funds to 24 charity agencies in the county.

Following the dinner, supplies for the King Arthur, Lancelot and Lion Hearted divisions will be distributed to their section heads and solicitors.
