Murder Suspected In Woman's Death

Hemet, Calif. — (U.P.) — The body of a woman was found at the foot of an embankment off a lonely road about 20 miles from here and sheriff's investigators said she had been murdered.

"It's murder, we're positive of that," said Sheriff's Lt. Gene Ulrich of the Hemet substitution of the Riverside county sheriff's office. "We can't tell immediately what caused death because of the decomposed condition of the body."

The woman, attractively dressed and with a large piece of costume jewelry around her neck, had been dead about a week, according to Deputy Coroner James Bird.

She was about 40 years of age, had brownish-gray hair and weighed about 135 pounds. No identifying papers were on the body.

Two Marines and their wives from Camp Pendleton, Calif., spotted the body at the foot of the embankment on Cahulla road, about midway between here and Palm Springs. The Marines had stopped their car to look at a squirrel which darted down the embankment.

Deputies said evidence indicated the body had been thrown from the top of the embankment and landed almost 30 feet from the roadway. They said they were sure two persons must have been involved in the death.

One man couldn't have thrown the body that far alone, Ulrich said.

Prospectors Rest After Ordeal

Vancouver, Wash. — (U.P.) — Two adventuresome old prospectors who miraculously survived six days in the wilderness around Spirit lake were resting comfortably in Vancouver Memorial hospital today, weak but apparently unharmed.

A 40-man rescue crew hacked its way through dense woods yesterday bearing the men out in stretchers to a waiting ambulance. Al Robbins, one of the three men who originally found the prospectors Saturday, led the rescue party out.

The oldtimers, 70-year-old Charles Dickens, San Diego, Calif., and Charles Allger, 85, Tacoma, Wash., set out a week ago Sunday with little more than a geiger counter between them.

Allger told one of his rescuers he had $100 in his pocket but that he couldn't eat it or buy coffee with it. He said that, although they had no matches to build fires, they managed to stay alive by eating berries and sleeping under fir boughs during the long cold nights.

He said water was no problem. "We were wet all the time." Both of them decided they couldn't go any farther Friday after Dickens fell and injured his leg. So they stayed right where they were in the Clearwater area wilds until they were discovered just before noon Saturday.

Former Sailor Carries Bride Onto U. S. Soil

Los Angeles — (U.P.) — William J. Walls, San Diego, Calif., made sure his Japanese bride knew she was "home" when she carried her down a gangway across the "threshold" onto American soil.

Walls, 24, and his bride, Okiko, 19, of Sasebo, Japan, arrived here yesterday aboard the Santos Maru a freighter. They were married in Japan last May after a two-year romance which started while Walls was stationed in Sasebo with the United States Navy.

Navy regulations first prevented their marriage. Her parents also objected because she was only 17, Walls said. After his discharge from the service, Walls returned to the United States. He said he saved all of his earnings as a San Diego aircraft worker and then returned to Japan in April to marry Okiko.

State-Wide Milk Price Increase Seen

Portland — (U.P.) — A Portland newspaper indicated Saturday that state-wide increases in milk prices appeared likely by Oct. 1.

The Oregonian said producers were pushing hard for a price boost on grounds that lower prices and higher feed and labor costs had squeezed all the profit out of milking cows.

The newspaper said its survey of the industry showed that distributors also claimed they were losing money or just breaking even.

Oregon milk producers planned to hike prices one cent Sept. 16, but the increase failed to materialize when it became apparent that Portland prices would not rise. Most southern Oregon prices are already 1 to 2 cents higher than the Portland market.

A recent Oregon State College report on milk production cost indicated that producer costs were up 5.9 per cent while milk prices were down 4.55 per cent.

Arraignment Due In Abortion Death

Philadelphia — (U.P.) — A bartender and his blonde beautician wife faced arraignment today in a heavily-guarded courtroom on charges they performed the abortion that killed heiress bride Mrs. Doris Silver Ostreicher.

Milton Schwartz, 49, and his wife, Rosalie, 42, are charged with abortion resulting in death, accessories before the fact of abortion, conspiracy and perjury.

The pretty, honey-haired bride died last Aug. 24th in the Schwartz's $40-a-month flat in North Philadelphia only a short time after she and her mother left their $70,000 ranch home in suburban Melrose Park.

The death took place exactly two months after she had eloped with Miami Beach, Fla., motorcycle policeman, Earl Ostreicher. Her parents opposed the marriage and the girl left Ostreicher shortly before her death.

The victim's mother, Mrs. Gertrude Silver, 49, wife of a one-time butcher who amassed a fortune of more than $2,000,000 helping to build the Food Fair Stores, Inc., supermarket chain, also was charged as an accessory before the abortion and conspiring with the Schwartz couple. Mrs. Silver was released earlier on $1,500 bail pending her release from a mental institution where she was confined with "bereavement shock."

Jet Expert Sets Sail For Home in China

Los Angeles — (U.P.) — Dr. Hsue-shen Tsien, former head of the jet propulsion center at the California Institute of Technology, was en route by ship today to Red China where he said he will try to help the "people build their nation so they might live with honor and happiness."

Tsien, 46, considered one of the top authorities in the jet propulsion research field, had been under deportation order for five years. The order was implemented last week in what was believed to be part of a swap arranged by the Red Chinese when they freed 11 American airmen.

Tsien was accompanied by his wife and two children when they left aboard the President Cleveland from nearby Wilmington on Saturday.
