

Building Projects At Oregon Colleges Receive Approval

Portland—(U.P.)—Long range building projects at University of Oregon, Oregon State college and Portland State college won approval of committees of the State Board of Higher Education here yesterday.

Among the projects given the green light after preliminary studies was a $1,000,000 students' center for Portland State college, an expansion of the original plans for a $550,000 center planned earlier.

Higher Student Fees
Increased student fees would pay for the enlarged project that would include a book store, dining facilities and student meeting rooms at the metropolitan-type school.

A new dormitory to accommodate 304 men students at Oregon State college was given committee approval. It would cost a total of $1,345,000 or $3461 per student. It would be a five-story structure.

At the University of Oregon, new men's dormitories featuring four three-story units and one four-story unit with a one-story dining room was approved to serve and feed 328 students. It would cost $1,570,000 or a per student cost of $3567.

Other projects approved by the committees were a $770,000 extension to the administration building at the University of Oregon; architect's plans for expansion of the architecture of allied arts building at the University; cafeteria for the new dental school at Portland, to cost $47,325; remodeling of the president's home at Oregon College of Education for $8500; purchase of 500 movable seats for Southern Oregon college and financing for a heating survey at Eastern Oregon college.

Enrollment Increased
Prospective enrollment for all state higher education schools, which was estimated at 15,975, or an increase of eight per cent over last year, will be reached and possibly bettered, the board was told. Earl Pallett, board secretary, said Oregon State college looked for 5800 students, 200 over the forecast and that Portland State might reach 3000 and Southern Oregon 750.

Mental Health Group Urges Response To Mail Questionnaires

Salem—(U.P.)—Members of Gov. Paul Patterson's mental health survey committee urged a speed-up of response to their questionnaires when they learned at their meeting yesterday that more than 80 per cent of the questionnaires sent out by the group remained unanswered.

The deadline for returning the forms had been set for Oct. 1. But only 135 of the 779 questionnaires sent out had been completed and received in Portland. Dr. John Waterman of Portland, committee chairman, said.

Shortage of Money
"If people could only realize that every other hospital bed in the United States is occupied by a mental patient, our job would be easier," Rep. Edwin Cone of Eugene, a committee member, said.

Melvin Murphy of Portland, executive secretary of the Oregon State Mental Health Association, said "what is happening in this case goes to point up the shortage of money with which to let the public know of the tremendous size of the problem of mental illness."

Dr. Waterman reviewed several letters from supposed respondents who had declined to fill out questionnaires because the subject was "out of their line."

Actually, Dr. Waterman stressed the men and women to whom the questionnaires were sent were carefully selected "and their answers, therefore, would be of immense value."

Killer Escapee Gives Self Up

Tacoma—(U.P.)—Harvey J. Collins, the convicted Samurai sword murderer who escaped from the Pierce County jail here with six others Sunday night surrendered voluntarily last night in a surprise move.

Collins, 29, admitted killer of three, telephoned the sheriff's office from the home of a friend and said he wanted to give himself up "but he didn't want any rough stuff."

Sheriff Harold Bird and two detectives took Collins back into custody.

Three of the convicts are still at large.

The seven escaped from the jail by slugging a jailer and sheriff's radio operator, then commandeering the car of a minister's daughter. Three were recaptured within 10 hours.

Still on the loose were Charlton Jordan, 21, a Negro convicted of rape; Clifford Blanchfield, 29, who was awaiting trial on burglary charges, and Edward Bisig, 26, accused of forgery.

The committee decided to send out follow-up letters this week, reminding recipients of the forms that the material would have to be received in Portland by Oct. 1 to have it incorporated into a regional mental health survey report to be presented in November at the western governors' conference in Colorado.

Legislators Tardy
Only nine of 90 legislators who received the forms in August have returned them. Only two of 34 county judges have completed the forms and only 41 out of 350 elementary and secondary school educators have filled theirs out and mailed them back to the State Board of Health.

Purpose of the survey is to obtain information which can be used as a basis for recommendations to the governors with a view toward improving mental health training and research in the west.

Cream must contain at least 18 per cent butterfat, according to federal standards.

Prison Board Wants Part in Future Transfers

Portland—(U.P.)—The Oregon Prison Association served notice on the State Board of Control today that it wants to be represented at any future hearings on transfers of Oregon convicts to out-of-state prisons.

The association yesterday passed a two-fold resolution in connection with the recent transfer of Alcatraz federal prison of Donald Everett (Punchy) Bailey, so-called "boss con" of the Oregon penitentiary.

The resolution also demanded to know what the future policy of the board of Control in such transfers would be.

First of Kind
Association directors pointed out that Bailey's transfer was the first of its kind under a new law permitting the Board of Control to board convicts at other prisons that will accept them. They called Bailey's transfer a precedent.

The Rev. Rene Bozarth, Gresham, president of the association, contended that Bailey's transfer would cost state taxpayers an excessive amount and other directors claimed Bailey would lose visitation and rehabilitation rights at the federal penitentiary.

Yesterday Warden Clarence T. Gladden said the transfer was necessary to end troublemaking at the Oregon prison and that Bailey would be better off at Alcatraz.

Men in Regular Army Eligible for Schools

Only regular Army personnel will be sent to Army school courses of 16 weeks or more, effective immediately, it was announced here recently by Army recruiters.

More than 100 courses are available to regular Army personnel, including helicopter mechanic, airplane mechanic, automotive metal body repair, diesel engine repair, welding, machinists, radio repair, radar repair, guided missiles, telephone installation and repair, public information, social workers, and stenography.

Further information may be obtained from Sgt. I-C Warren M. Long, Army recruiter, Medford post office building.

Russia Promises To Quit Finland Base

Moscow—(U.P.)—A Finnish delegation headed by President Juho Paasikivi took off for Helsinki today with a Soviet promise to pull out of the big Porkkala naval base on the Baltic.

The delegation included Premier Urho Kekkonen, defense minister Emil Skog and former Foreign Minister R. Svento.

The Finns wound up five days of negotiations in which the Soviets agreed to return the Porkkala base. The two countries also agreed to extend their 1948 treaty of friendship and mutual assistance another 20 years.

Bee's Business
Providence, R. I.—(U.P.)—Agriculture Director John Rego of Rhode Island says persons chased by bees should contact local authorities instead of his department. Rego says he is only interested in the health of Rhode Island bees, not how they spend their time.
