

Siskiyou County Prisoners To Build Jail, Hospital

Yreka — Construction of a Siskiyou county sheriff's office, jail, and hospital annex to house 36 beds will be done by utilizing prison labor under the supervision of Al Giordano, Yreka contractor.

Construction plans were announced by the board of supervisors this week.

Will Save $25,000

Giordano proposed using prison labor under supervision, pointing out it would save Siskiyou county taxpayers about $25,000. The board of supervisors rejected single bids submitted for construction of the jail and hospital.

The bid for the jail totaled $32,306, and the hospital construction bid was $154,528.75. Giordano agreed to build both structures for $131,000, which includes $12,000 in salary but no architect's fees.

Joe G. Allen, chairman of the board, said a written agreement with Giordano will be drawn up later, and that salary will not start until Jan. 1.

The county planning commission recommended earlier this year that construction of the buildings should not exceed $104,000.

The jail building will include offices for the sheriff-coroner, his deputies and file rooms. Construction of the building will get underway by Oct. 1, and be completed before Jan. 1 when the hospital annex construction starts.

The jail will be built of concrete block, frame and stucco.

Bulganin Writes On Disarmament

Paris — (U.P.) — Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin has sent President Eisenhower a long letter aimed at breaking the deadlock over world disarmament, authoritative sources said today.

Soviet Charge d'Affaires Alexander Anikine delivered a copy of the letter this morning to French Premier Edgar Faure along with a note calling attention to it. British Prime Minister Anthony Eden got a copy last night.

French sources said the Bulganin letter to Mr. Eisenhower covered 11 pages. It was one of the first major Soviet diplomatic moves to prepare the way for the Big Four foreign ministers conference in Geneva next month.

Faure was reported to have looked with favor on the Soviet move. But the French Foreign Office did not release the text of either the letter to Mr. Eisenhower or the covering note.

It raised immediate speculation that Russia is making new proposals to break the deadlock which has continued in the U.N. Disarmament Subcommittee in New York.

The key dispute between East and West always has been over how disarmament should be verified and controlled.

Laughlin Steel Plans Stock Sale

J. N. Laughlin, president of Laughlin Alloy Steel company, announced today that his company had retained Donald C. Sloan and Co., Portland investment bankers, and that $200,000 in non-assessable common stock in the company would be offered for sale in Oregon immediately.

There has been no previous public sale of stock in the Laughlin company, although authorization to sell $299,000 in common stock was received from the corporation commissioner last year, Laughlin said.

Laughlin stated that "a number of local people" had invested privately in the White City operation, dealing directly with him or his associates, but said that until recently no public sale of stock had been planned.

Several Factors "Our decision to change our original plans was based on a number of factors," Laughlin said. "We feel that the market for our product is the most favorable which we have ever seen, and that it is to our advantage to fully capitalize as rapidly as possible and expedite the development of the existing program."

The new building at White City is scheduled for completion this week, and the company's main electric melting furnace is en route from Green & Company, Seattle, and should also arrive within a week, Laughlin said.

Minor Auto Mishaps Reported in County

Two minor automobile accidents occurred yesterday in Jackson county, according to state police.

Two farm trucks collided at the intersection of Madrona lane and Oak Grove rd., at about 10 a.m. One of the trucks, loaded with pears, was operated by Harry Beers, 63, of 2881 Merriam rd., and the other, which was empty, was driven by Lester A. Wilcox, 63, of 2335 Stewart ave., police said. Only minor injuries and no damage were reported.

In the other accident, a pickup truck, owned by Larson May company, rolled over the bank of a private driveway and overturned when the emergency brake slipped, police said. The vehicle had been parked by Robert F. Nichols, 35, of 1155 Janes st., according to investigating officers.

Talent High Sets Testing Program For Coming Year

Talent — All Talent High school students will be given mental ability tests soon after the opening of school as a part of the school's guidance service during the 1955-56 school year, according to E. A. Vinckel, principal of the high school.

In addition, freshmen and students new to the school will be given achievement tests covering the basic skills necessary for scholastic achievement. Throughout the year, special aptitude, interest and inventories will be given to certain individuals and groups.

Aid Teacher, Pupil Achievement tests measuring subjects in all departments of the school will be administered near the close of the school year in order that the progress of the students may be compared with the national average. The information provided should be of assistance to teachers and pupils alike in making educational and personal adjustments, Vinckel points out.

Activities designed to acquaint students with vocational opportunities and available scholarships are planned. In addition, the program of job placement which has been successful in the past will be continued.

For that reason, some of the President's friends attach no significance to his recent golf course remark that the pleasant Colorado air and his successful golf shots are "another reason for getting out."

And nothing, it is said, fires up the Eisenhower ire quicker than asking him whether he will seek reelection.

MEDFORD (OREGON) MAIL TRIBUNE—SEVEN

Back Stairs: Friends Sure Ike Undecided

By WARREN DUFFEE
United Press Correspondent
Fraser, Colo. — (U.P.) — Back stairs at the summer White House.

Friends close to President Eisenhower are convinced that he not only hasn't made up his mind to run next year, but he isn't thinking much about the decision on his current golf-fishing-work stay in Colorado.

They think he'll make up his mind firmly and probably quickly when he feels the time has come to make the decision. Until then, it'll be anybody's guess.

Mr. Eisenhower not only isn't worrying over the decision, he's apparently annoyed by all the editorial speculation over what he'll do. There's much less of that in the West than in the East, where Washington developments loom larger in importance.

For that reason, some of the President's friends attach no significance to his recent golf course remark that the pleasant Colorado air and his successful golf shots are "another reason for getting out."

Mr. Eisenhower's favorite method of cooking mountain trout, vegetable stew and thick steaks have become almost common household knowledge.

But he also showed his adeptness at another favorite dish—fried chicken—the first day he arrived here from Denver for his second round of trout fishing on his Colorado visit.

Byers Peak Ranch of Denver businessman Aksel Nielsen, Mr. Eisenhower turned to the kitchen and brewed coffee and four hours later returned with seven nice trout. But the trout yielded on the evening's menu to the President's yen for fried chicken.

Golf and fishing are the President's most publicized hobbies.

They're also the ones that occupy most of his leisure moments.

But whenever he can, Mr. Eisenhower works in some time at another favorite sport from his Army days—sketch shooting.

Although Nielsen's ranch has no skeet range, it provides plenty of opportunity for target practice with rifle or shotgun.
