

City Designated Emergency Blood Collection Center

Dr. Edwin R. Durno, Jackson county civil defense medical chairman, reported to the Jackson county medical society at a recent meeting that training in the technique of procuring blood will be obtained by local physicians and nurses rotating through the Red Cross mobile collection unit.

Medford Blood Center

Medford, Dr. Durno noted, along with Klamath Falls and Coos Bay have been designated as blood collection centers during emergencies, and that local physicians will be educated in procuring techniques of the bloodmobile.

The society also announced that Dr. Theodore P. Barrs of Washington, D.C., is en route to Medford to establish a practice in anesthesiology.

Dr. Jack Ingram, Medford ear, nose and throat specialist, presented a paper, "Diseases of the Ear, Nose and Throat Caused by Nerve and Blood Vessel Disorders."

Guests Present

Several guests were present, including Dr. Thomas Bolton, orthopedic surgeon; Dr. Andrew Bulkley, pediatrician; Dr. Daniel Boals, anesthesiologist; Dr. Laurel G. Case, general practice; Dr. Lee Harlow, dermatologist; Dr. Robert Jackson, obstetrician and gynecologist at Medford clinic; Dr. Stanley Brown of Gold Hill; Dr. John Reed, general surgeon, Ashland; Dr. W. Roney, Dr. John Waterman, child psychiatrist of Portland, and Dr. William Todd of Camp White.

Crash Near Arlington Kills Washington Man

Arlington — (U.P.)—One man died and two others were injured Friday afternoon when a car-trailer slipped onto a soft shoulder near here and caused the car pulling it to swerve into the path of an oncoming auto.

Frank Meehan, Richland, Wash., died at 6 p.m. in The Dalles general hospital. He was driver of the car pulling the trailer.

In serious condition at the same hospital were Douglas P. Bolton, 46, Warm Springs, N.M., driver of the other car. Bolton's wife suffered less serious injuries.

Meehan, a security guard at the Hanford atomic works in Richland, Wash., was scheduled to retire in 30 days.

Comic Book 'Elves' Assists Training in VA Domiciliary Here

Camp White — The Veterans Administration has issued four comic books as training manuals in the better hospital housekeeping program now under way.

The lessons are presented with cartoon drawings accompanying the text and four characters — Dusty, Sweepy, Moppy and Waxey.

These four were introduced to the domiciliary Friday at a showing of the characters, projected on the screen in the theatre, and synchronized with dialogue reproduced in the control booth.

Training Program

The show was held morning and afternoon as part of the training program for the benefit of members and employees. It had an "electric" effect in the morning, dusting and sweeping for inspection and the buildings were shining as a result.

The event was arranged by Personnel Officer Heitkemper and presented by Al Birman and Jim Rea, projectionists of special services.

These four elves have much to do with the appearance of VA installations and have a ruling part in the daily routine, as every veteran who has ever visited a hospital or home will testify.

"This visual aid on housekeeping techniques has been developed for the Veterans Administration by a nationally known consultant in the field of housekeeping management," Dr. Joel T. Boone, former chief medical director, explains.

Importance Stressed
"Hospital housekeeping is a most important phase in providing medical services," Dr. Boone states.

As an example, this advice is given by Dusty:

"Don't get 'pinched' while dusting; this pure carelessness. You need all of your fingers, so don't lop them off while dusting an electric fan."

Pipes and radiators can be "hot stuff" and burns from them can be painful.

Don't over-reach. Avoid a wrenched back by stretching carefully when dusting in high places.

Remove articles from top surface before dusting.

More Elaborate View

Sweepy gives a little more elaborate review of his department, with diagrams covering the scientific method of sweeping a floor. Here is what he says

1,000 Expected at Fall Ceremonial Set for Oct. 8-9

Nearly 1,000 persons are expected to attend the annual fall ceremonial of the Far-Western Temple association of Nomads of Avradaka and Dramatic Order of the Knights of the Khorasan, to be held in Medford Oct. 8 and 9, it was announced Saturday.

Fuhat Burkan Temple 224 will be host for the gathering, for which delegates from some 43 temples and 35 santhas from the 11 western states and three western provinces of Canada are expected.

Registration

Registration for the gathering will be at the Medford hotel both days. A parade of Nomads and DOKKies will be held at 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 8, and a banquet will be held at the Jackson hotel that evening. At 8:30 p.m., the ceremonial will be held at St. Mary's school.

Among the dignitaries attending will be Imperial Prince Raymond E. Schilling, Butte, Mont., Imperial Secretary Carl R. Mitchell, Cincinnati, O., and others, including District Deputy Imperial Prince H. S. Willenbrink, Yreka, Calif.

about handling a broom:

Want a backache, Stoop when you sweep, and you will get one in a hurry. The short three foot stroke should be used only where you cannot use a longer stroke. The six foot stroke and a straight back makes the job a lot easier and a lot faster, too.

Moppy is proud of his good record. He says:

It just seems like everyone needs a sparkling clean floor. The doctors and nurses need me to keep things good and clean so they can do their jobs better. The patients need me, too; seems they get well faster in a good clean place. And when I do my work well, my fellow workers are more careful about keeping things clean, too.

Skill, Hard Work

Waxy is the last man, and brings the show to a close in these words:

Well folks, that brings me to the end of my lesson on how to wax a floor. I've tried to show you how a real floor artist operates, how he combines skill and hard work to create an artistic masterpiece, and how pride in his work gives him that wonderful feeling of satisfaction that goes with a floor that glows.

On The Side

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Unless you have walked over the Brooklyn Bridge you can't tell yourself a real New Yorker or a genuine Brooklynite. My mother used to sing a song about strolling on the Brooklyn Bridge. It is titled "Danny By My Side." Was written by Ned Harrigan, Tony Hart and Dave Braham. I was much interested to note a reference to this song in "The Merry Partners," the story of Harrigan and Hart brilliantly written by E. J. Kahn Jr. One line goes, "The Brooklyn Bridge on Sunday is known as Lovers' Lane."

Presidents

No President of the United States has, during his term of office, attended a horse race in the past 75 years. So we can feel certain President Eisenhower will not be at the International Handicap at Laurel, Md., next month. However, the Irish-bred horse, Panasleeper, a favored contestant in that classic race, will carry the colors of President Sean T. O'Kelly of Ireland. The Laurel management better have a band on hand to play "The Wearing of the Green" if Panasleeper gets into the winner's circle. And I think he might.

Sidelights

Checked my weight on a health chart. I weight 187 pounds as I emerge from the shower bath. According to the chart that is exactly the right weight for my height and age.

Add members My Name Is a Poem Club: Vanilla Gunilla, Los Angeles. . . Note a reference to a "butternut blonde."

What kind of a blonde is that? It is not included in our Horses and Women Department's list of the 69 different types of blondes.

Asking

Queries from clients. Q. Who starred in the play "The Girl with the Green Eyes?" A. Clara Bloodgood. Was one of Clyde Fitch's best plays. . . Q. Why do you stubbornly insist seven clubs are enough for a golfer when it is generally accepted that 12 are necessary to play the game properly? A. The game can be played easier with 12 clubs, but just as properly with seven; two woods, five irons.

Use of seven clubs makes it more of a game of skill. Using 12 clubs in golf is the same as the use of the lively ball in baseball.

Says She

"Red-haired women are the most conceited of their sex and the excessive attention you and other male writers lavish on them is not helping what has become a boring situation," writes a Boston brunette. "Red-haired women make themselves conspicuous by a lack of style sense and good taste. In this they make a near approach to vulgarity. The red-haired woman's plunging neckline always plunges to the limit. Her bathing suit usually out-bikinis a bikini. She revels in revealing. That shop exclusively for redheads should have a brunette style advisor to give the strawberry blondes a few pointers on what to wear, how to wear it and when."

Asides

Note it said the billing of that picturesque thespian of the yesteryear, Corse Payton, was "the world's worst actor." That's wrong. It was "America's best bad actor." . . . What shape are you in to win a jackpot on a quiz program? I'll give you a simple question as a warm up. Name the 13 original States of the United States of America.

Memory Lane

Have received a picture of the cast of a play presented by the Amsterdam, N. Y., High School graduating class of 1934. And so what? Well, Sir, one of the members of this cast was a handsome young fellow named Isadore Demsky. Now a world famous film star, Isadore is professionally known as Kirk Douglas.

Gary T. Kliever, 17, Dies Saturday

Gary T. Kliever, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kliever, 1324 Queen Ann ave., died Saturday at his home. The boy was washing his car when he was stricken with a heart attack.

Active in Medford high school affairs, the boy was an outstanding student. He would have been a senior student this year. He was a leading contender for the school's golf team and had taken part in the state junior golf tournament.

He also played a prominent part in local Boy Scout work and two years ago attended the national Boy Scout jamboree at Santa Ana, Calif.

Conger-Morris funeral home is in charge of arrangements, which are pending.

Two Men Killed in Union County Mishaps

La Grande — (U.P.)—Two men died in unrelated logging accidents in La Grande area Wednesday and Thursday.

Robert Julius Backus, Elgin, was killed instantly Thursday near Summerville. He was assisting in loading logs on a truck when a hook in one of the logs slipped and the log fell on him.

He worked for D. Regd. Harwood, an Elgin logging contractor.

John W. Clark, 57, died instantly Wednesday when he was struck by logs rolling off a loaded truck north of Enterprise.

Truck driver, Glenn Molvig said he was connecting an air hose when he heard the logs begin to move. He said he jumped under the truck to escape death.

The state industrial accident commission was reported investigating the mishap.
