Peron's Journey Into Exile Postponed

Argentine Demands For Restrictions On Freedom Studied

Buenos Aires—(U.P.)—Deposed President Juan D. Peron's journey into exile is delayed by Argentine demands for restrictions on his freedom once he reaches refuge in Paraguay, semi-official sources reported today.

Peron remained aboard a crippled Paraguayan gunboat for the ninth straight day while Paraguayan and Argentine diplomats sought to hammer out an acceptable solution on the future of the overthrown dictator. Argentine naval and air craft maintained a close watch over the gunboat Paraguay anchored in Buenos Aires harbor.

Provisional President Eduardo Lonardi promised to render Peron harmless. Diplomatic sources said the delay in granting Peron a safe conduct pass stemmed from negotiations over the details of his residence in exile in neighboring Paraguay.

The informants said the Lonardi government is demanding that Peron be confined to the Paraguayan city in which he is interned. The demand was said to be based on fears that if Peron is permitted to move freely through Paraguay he could institute a plot to regain his lost power and prestige.

Foreign Minister Mario Amadeo conferred with Ambassador Juan Chavez of Paraguay Tuesday. Amadeo told newsmen later that the "Negotiations for Peron's safe conduct continue favorably and I am confident they will have a happy conclusion."

When and if the negotiations are concluded, Peron is expected to sail into exile aboard the Paraguay or its sister ship, the Humaita. The Paraguay is so badly in need of repairs that it may not be able to make the 900-mile upriver trip to the Paraguayan capital of Asuncion.

Lonardi announced he was preparing a general amnesty decree that will permit many anti-Peronists to return from exile and wipe out political convictions and charges against others.

The country's return to normalcy after the fateful past week was underlined by the ending of the curfew in Buenos Aires Tuesday night. Rosario, Argentine's second city, scene of die-hard Peronista demonstrations, also was reported quiet.

Siskiyou Supervisor Raps Jail Labor Use

Yreka — Use of prison labor for construction of two Siskiyou county buildings has been protested by County Supervisor W. A. Barr. The proposed buildings are an administration office for the sheriff's department and a county hospital annex.

In a letter to the county board of supervisors, Barr declared that the board would be embarrassed by use of prisoner labor. He pointed out that union labor might refuse to cooperate on a building where jail labor is employed.

Barr said he did not believe jail inmates should be used in the building trades in competition with workers who earn their living and pay taxes to the county.

Chamber's Annual Membership Drive Spurred by Flight

The membership committee of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce, spurred by the offer of three free round trips to Hawaii by air as top prizes, has been active in the annual membership campaign in recent weeks, the chamber office said today.

Ken McDonald is chairman of the committee, and reported that Mrs. Bert Pree and W. R. Mitchell so far are leading in the competition to sign up new and delinquent members of the chamber. One point is awarded for each $25 in membership dues brought in. So far 45 points have been accumulated, representing more than $1,000 in dues.

Any chamber member is eligible to participate in the competition, McDonald explained. The chamber's goodwill flight to Hawaii will leave Nov. 5, and the party will remain there a week, returning Nov. 13. Reservations for the flight are being taken at the chamber office. The trip will be by a chartered Transocean airlines aircraft, and will go to Honolulu direct from the Medford airport.

That song about a girl named Linda was popularized by Buddy Clark, not Vaughn Monroe as I stated. Speaking of girls named Linda there has been a hurricane so named. The 1955 list of future hurricanes are named as follows: Janet, Kate, Linda, Bartha, Nellie, Orva, Peggy, Queenie, Rosa, Stella, Trudy, Ursula, Verna, Wilma, Xenia, Yvonne and Zelda.

Among the Married
Why are trombone players so difficult to break into matrimonial harness? It is said to be even more difficult to make a good husband out of a trombonist than a saxophonist. The first husband of that curvaceous band canary, Doris Kappelhoff, professionally known as Doris Day, was a trombonist. Their marriage was brief. However, in the case of Doris, hope triumphed over experience so she married another trombonist. That marriage also ended in divorce. That cured Doris. So she married her manager, Marty Melcher, and not only acquired an excellent husband but saved 10 per cent in commissions.

Asking
Queries from clients. Q. Note reference to something Judy Garland "sang in 1938 when she was 12 years old." Wasn't she older at that time? A.—Miss Garland was 16 years old in 1938. . . . Q.—How about the claim that in a photo finish the camera favors the outside horse? A.—That is a belief that will not down. I continually hear it voiced. The camera people state it is definitely not so. How about some statistics revealing the number of times the outside horse has been the winner in a photo finish as compared to the inside horse?

Sidelights
For manager of my all time team of ballplayers born under Leo I have selected Charles Dillon (Casey) Stengel, whose birthday is July 30. . . . To the long list of members of large families who achieved fame and fortune must be added the name of Sarah Bernhardt, nee Rosine Bernard. Sarah was the 11th child of her parents' 14 children.

In A Few Words
Ed Howe once said: "If you want to know how old a woman is, ask her sister-in-law." . . . As for who first voiced the sad saying, "Nobody loves a fat man," it was Maclyn Arbuckle portraying the sheriff in the stage play "The Roundup." Incidentally, Maclyn was not related to Roscoe Arbuckle.

Suggestion
When visiting a restaurant for the first time don't fail to ask to see the kitchen. One glimpse of the lack of cleanliness in some kitchens will cause you to depart quickly and thus avoid the danger of food poisoning. This is especially true of some of those so called "quaint little places" with a foreign atmosphere.

Literary Note
The top money earner among authors currently writing in the English language is Sir Winston Churchill. From his history of World War II he has already collected over $1,500,000 with more money rolling in daily. That one work will net Sir Winston about $2,000,000.

When it comes to continuous smoking it is difficult to top a British pipe addict. At a night club at Juan les Pins on the French Riviera I saw an Englishman smoking a pipe while dancing the rumba. . . . Get it right, Fay Templeton was the star of the original production of "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway." George M. Cohan was not in it.

The possibility of inflation in this country continues to be discussed. Have you considered the horrors of inflation? In Germany, before World War I a man could retire on the income of 50,000 marks and live very comfortably. Then after the war, inflation hit Germany. And so what? Why, sir, 50,000 marks was not enough money to buy a half pound of butter!

Explosion of a hydrogen bomb is as mild as the falling of a feather compared to energy released by an exploding star, says the National Geographic Society. One such supernova provided 10 septillion (one followed by 24 zeros) times more energy than the bomb.

Multnomah Jury Studies Testimony In OLCC Hearing

Portland — (U.P.) — The Multnomah county grand jury today was considering testimony taken during a hearing into practices of the Oregon Liquor Control Commission.

The hearing ended yesterday and District Attorney William B. Langley said the grand jury would end its term of duty tomorrow.

The hearing concluded on a political note as one of the witnesses said he had been told Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton's interest in the investigation was political.

Frank M. Bartholomew, director of Continental Detective Service, said an attorney who had done much of Thornton's investigation of the OLCC told him that "all they were interested in was to raise a political stink."

The attorney, Leroy Skousen, said "I have never made such a statement to Bartholomew." He said he would be willing to deny the story under oath.

Thornton also denied Bartholomew's statement.

Other witnesses heard yesterday included John Delaney, former club operator; Gene Rossman, executive secretary of the Oregon Licensed Beverage Association, and Robert McKee, Portland attorney hired to investigate Knox law violations.
