Talent Elementary Schools Offering Training in Music

Talent—An expanded program in comprehensive music training, both instrumental and vocal, is offered to pupils of Talent grade school, school officials have announced.

Ralph Carroll, band instructor, trains elementary pupils in grades five to eight in beginning band. Students are given both sectional and complete band instruction, and most are able to enter the main band by late in the second term of school. The school has a limited number of instruments for pupils who are financially unable to purchase instruments of their own.

Carroll augments his program by training the fourth grade flutophone band. These fourth graders learn to read and play simple music and master the fundamentals of required self-discipline in working together as a complete musical unit.

The vocal program, under the direction of Mrs. Dennis Hannan, is designed to train pupils to sing for pleasure, along with learning necessary requirements of reading music, and breath control. This program is available to all students in the elementary grades. Pupils learn to sing by rote in the first two grades, but by the end of grade three they begin reading music. Groups are kept small and taught in reasonably short periods to provide an ideal learning situation.

The third grade Harmonica Kats will again be directed by Mrs. A. W. Wheeler and Mrs. Floyd Young. The Harmonica Kats form a musical novelty group that learns to play the harmonica for pleasure only.

Where the Fit is Guaranteed

find I can answer it without violating the Hippocratic injunction—Do Good If You Can But Do No Harm. That gives me a smug feeling that I'm helping some poor soul to gain better health.

But when I pull out the letter that shouldn't have been written to me at all, I'm annoyed. First, because the letter asks for advice about the diagnosis or treatment of the correspondent's ailment or disease, which is not in my province. Second, because the scrounger clutters up the mail and takes the time of my assistants. And third, because that kind of critter can and often does make a tremendous squawk to publisher or editor about Brady's racket. It is worthy of note that some such letters are thrown out because they go over my head.

This one, for example:

The Russians are now claiming that they invented Alka-Seltzer in the thirteenth century.

This is positively silly because no one ever even burped until we invented foot long hot dogs in 1604.

KoKo Says:

Do you wear corrective shoes? This Edwards corrective oxford is fine for school or play.

My doctor tells me I have sugar in my urine and he has put me on a low salt diet. Already I'm lost—I haven't the faintest idea why the doctor prescribed low salt diet.

Since this dignified old gentleman would be appalled to learn that I take an occasional—and I sincerely mean occasional—glass of beer or a Tom Collins.

(Just how often is occasional, I wonder.)

I turn to you for a bit of private advice. . . . You mean you want me to help you deceive your doctor? Even if I answered your query, Mr. Nitwit, it could do you no good and it might do you harm.

The answer to your first question: Could beer, or gin mixed with tonic, sugar, lime, etc. cause sugar to appear in the urine?—is that it would depend on the amount of carbohydrate in your diet, your carbohydrate tolerance and on the amount of sugar (blood sugar) you burn at work or play.

The answer to your second question: May malt beverages or liquor be taken in moderation by one on a low salt diet?—is that no matter what ails you or whether you have enjoyed good health up to now, malt beverages or liquor in moderation can't do you any good. And only the doctor who prescribed the low salt diet can tell you whether you can safely take malt beverages or liquor in (say it with a silly grin) "moderation."

From all I have been able to learn the low salt diet is beneficial only for persons who habitually consume too much salt in or on their food.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Lucky the Youngster

About two years ago you gave us a fine talk on temperance, titled "Lucky the Youngster Who Takes the Pledge," where we obtained printed pledges (R. E. G.)

Answer—I was a lucky youngster, thank God. Mother, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Band of Hope and the sainted Miss Lottie Berner, 50 years teacher of the Chapel Street school. The W. C. T. U. supplies printed pledges—inquire of the president or secretary of your local W. C. T. U. We four Brady boys didn't sign anything—we merely gave

Mother our promise not to use alcohol or tobacco before we were 21, and of course we kept the promise. Even a parent today are seldom capable of insuring such respect. Why not? Look at the magazines, movies, television, billboards.

Aching Elbows and Knees

I have learned a good deal from your fine column in the three years I have been reading it—and not only about health. Especially grateful that you taught me painlessly how to avoid some common grammatical errors. . . . My husband has a lot of trouble with his elbows and knees aching. . . . (Mrs. P. D.A.)

Answer—Thank you, Ma'am. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and
