

Nation Must Remain Vigilant Against Reds, Judd Declares

An audience which jammed Rogue Valley Country club to overflowing heard a congressman say last night that Russia is still "on the same act" and that the United States should not relax her vigilance in any way.

because of any apparent change of heart on the part of Russia. Dr. Walter H. Judd, physician, medical missionary and congressman from Minnesota, said "There is only one threat to our security, and that is the avowed purpose of the Soviet Union to conquer the world, an avowed purpose which has just been reaffirmed by both Krushchev and Bulganin."

Dr. Judd, a guest of Rogue River Kudd and Fork club for the opening dinner of the season, declared that the United States had been tricked and deceived by the Soviets many times in the past and that it was time we ceased to be "so naive."

"This is not just a matter of misunderstanding and fear," Judd said vigorously, "and not just a matter of concessions—concessions in the past didn't lead to peace, but led to the struggle we're in now. Never did a country go so far as we did—we went the limit and even offered to give up our super-weapon," he added.

Reasons for Change
The speaker said that Russia's recent change in tactics was due partly to the fact that she has decided Europe can't be conquered by subversion, partly to the fact that the free world had increased its military strength and partly that our alliances were holding together. Russia's scheme is for "truce, trade and to gain time," he said, adding that in return for her apparent concessions we were being asked to give up our atomic weapons.

and program of the Kremlin," he said. "Is it real, or just a tactical shift? We can't be wrong on our decision on this one."

The speaker said Russia made much of taking her troops out of Austria, and then pointed out that Austria still doesn't have either political or economic independence. He said that the Communists were apparently lifting the iron curtain because they found the curtain to be a mistake and that it didn't serve their purpose, not because of any real change in plan or policies.

Congressman Judd added that the Russians always manage to receive major concessions in return for their overtures, and spoke of the return of prisoners as an example. He said Germany's Adenauer had also "given in" in the same fashion.

Dr. Judd said the United States and the free world is at a disadvantage in dealing with a Communist because "we play a different set of rules. Our society is pledged to integrity, theirs is based on deception." He further said the United States makes the mistake of believing that Communism is a political party, much like those of this nation. "We're victims of our type of thinking," he added.

He put forth the idea that Russia doesn't want a war, because that would mean destruction of material things which they need, and said "you couldn't possibly provoke the Communists into war in Europe—they don't want to destroy it, they want to use it."

different set of rules. Our society is pledged to integrity, theirs is based on deception." He further said the United States makes the mistake of believing that Communism is a political party, much like those of this nation. "We're victims of our type of thinking," he added.

The speaker urged throughout his talk that the United States not give up its fight for human rights, and said, "Whenever we have stood firmly for human freedom, we've gained ground; when we've conceded, we lost ground."

He put forth the idea that Russia doesn't want a war, because that would mean destruction of material things which they need, and said "you couldn't possibly provoke the Communists into war in Europe—they don't want to destroy it, they want to use it."

Congressman Judd repeated the idea that the Communists "subvert the weak and divide the strong," and pointed to their activities in southern Europe and northern Africa at present to strengthen this argument.

The speaker said this nation should do everything it could "to reduce the capacity of the Kremlin to impose its will on the rest of the world," and should never forget that Russia's land force, tank force, submarine forces and air forces are the largest and strongest in the world. He added that the U.S. Navy is still superior to any other.

He spoke of this country's effort to aid underprivileged nations and said it had been proved that to give money and tools wasn't the right way. "Give them ideas—the secret of our way of life," he said. "Don't just try to make them over in a pale imitation of ourselves. Ideas come from people, not from governments. Let us uphold the right of the individual everywhere—give them an opportunity to get ahead—that is the great thing."

Must Not Relax

Congressman Judd closed his talk by saying "We cannot relax until the Communist conspiracy fades or changes; if we just stand on our laurels we are invincible." After commenting on the illness of President Eisenhower, the speaker said "the team must hang together as we must all start acting as if we were grown up."

In The Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

In Chicago the other morning, three couples arrived at the airport together. All planned to take the ill-fated plane that crashed later on 12,000-foot Medicine Bow peak in Wyoming.

There was room on the plane for only two of the couples. So they flipped a coin to see who would get to go and who would have to stay behind. The winners went aboard and died a few hours later. The LOSERS stayed behind and lived.

Luck is a strange jewel, with many facets.

A QUESTION:
Why should I give to the United Fund?

THIS, I think, is the answer: You wouldn't want to live in the kind of town that refused to meet its community responsibilities.

HERE'S another reason; you will find it in Acts (XX, 35): "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

All cynics to the contrary, that is true.

THE OTHER night, a crowd of curious and interested people PACKED the big auditorium of Mill school (in Klamath Falls) to hear Sen. Richard Neuberger and Rep. Sam Coon debate the question: "Agreed: The John Day Dam Bill is in the Public Interest."

It should be explained here that the John Day Dam, if it is built, will be in the Columbia river, above The Dalles. Rep. Coon has introduced a bill in the congress permitting private power companies to advance the money (some $273,000,000 to provide the power facilities and take their pay in power to be produced at the dam. The federal government would put up the money to provide for flood control and navigation aids.

Coon supported the affirmative, arguing that if private power companies are permitted to participate in the financing of the dam (taking their pay in power to be produced later) it will save the taxpayers money and will result in much earlier completion of the dam. Neuberger upheld the negative side, contending that the federal government, which has pioneered the development of power in the Columbia Basin, should build the John Day dam also.

SO FAR as Southern Oregon is concerned, the issue involved in the debate is purely academic. The dam (if built) will be built on the Columbia river. The power it will generate will be used in the basin of the Columbia—that is to say, in northern Oregon and the state of Washington. It will feed industries up there, not down here.

It was generally recognized that if at any time in the reasonable future far Southern Oregon is to get adequate power to develop industry HERE the power will have to come from development of our own rivers.

So the crowd came to see the show—not because of direct local interest in the subject of the debate.

IT WAS a good show, and the good-natured audience enjoyed it thoroughly. I'm sure everyone present learned something about power—and so went away better informed on the subject.

In addition, everyone present saw two of Oregon's public servants in action and drew conclusions from what was said and how it was said and what was not said, and thus was able to form a better opinion of these men we send to Washington to represent us in the nation's capital.

All in all, it was FAR BETTER than the normal bunk and bushwah of the normal modern political campaign. It carried us all back to the cherished tradition of PUBLIC DEBATE OF PUBLIC ISSUES. I'm sure that everyone present benefited.

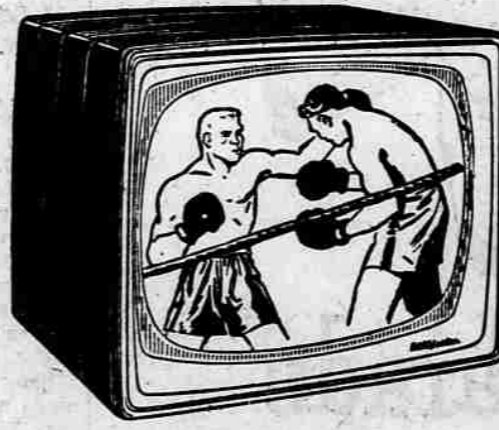

I hope this sound and admirable tradition of public debate that has been revived by Sen. Neuberger and Congressman Coon will spread in Oregon.
