

Children Said in Need of Positive Loyalty Teaching

Salem—(U.P.)—Children need positive instruction in loyalty and in the principles of democracy, Dr. Harold G. Shane, professor of education at Northwestern University, says.

And he told the Oregon Elementary School Principals Association here Monday that the teaching profession offers a real challenge to the instructors to share with the children the essentials of home life and government which have been found to be good.

Three-Year Cycle Used

Real-life reports on in-service programs in action were presented by representatives of five schools. Maynard L. Christensen of Astoria and Mrs. Betty M. Curtis of Lebanon reported three-year cycle programs being used by them.

Importance of an active in-service program to new or insufficiently trained teachers and to teachers returning to the profession was stressed by Dr. Clarence Hines, superintendent of Eugene schools.

Austin Haddock of Corvallis, secretary vice president of the association, presided at yesterday's session. An executive committee luncheon with Miss Lovina E. Wilson of Eugene, new president of the association presiding, concluded the two-day meeting.

Too Many Carrots As Bad as Weeds

Madison, Wis.—(U.P.)—Too many carrots growing close together are as bad as weeds when they fight each other for water, food, and light, according to John Schoenemann, vegetable crops specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Carrots up to six times as large as in unthinned rows can be grown by pulling all but one seedling plant every inch or two along the row.

Proper thinning is also very important to other small seeded vegetables such as beets, celery, head lettuce, seed onions, parsnips, and radishes.

Schoenemann says plants should be thinned soon after they come up.

Leave two to three inches between single beet plants, and space celery plants six inches apart.

Head lettuce needs 12-inch spacing, but three to four inches is enough for leaf lettuce. Thin onions to one plant every two to four inches, and leave three to four inches between parsnips.

RESULT OF RAMPAGING WATERS—Flood-strwn debris covers the New York, New Haven & Hartford freight yards in Norwalk, Conn., after the ravaging waters receded. Connecticut was the hardest hit of seven northeastern states from hurricanes and floods that took 50 lives. More than 25,000 persons were left homeless and damage was estimated at 500 million dollars.

Complaint Seeks $7,500 Damages

A complaint to force conveyance of real property and leases and to collect $7,500 damages was filed Monday by Rita C. Albachten, Ashland, according to records in the Jackson county clerk's office.

The complaint which lists Robert E. and Goldie Miller, Ashland, as defendants, charges that they failed to fulfill terms of an option to buy property in the Siskiyou area.

Albachten asks $7,500 for damages which she allegedly suffered. She also asks $20,000 damages in the event that the defendants cannot convey the real property and leases.

Dentist May Face Accuser in Murder Of Pretty Patient

Minneapolis—(U.P.)—A dramatic face-to-face showdown loomed today between Dr. A. Arnold Axilrod and the man who first linked him to the murder of one of his pretty young patients.

County Atty. George Scott said he would call as a witness Dr. Glen Petersen, personal physician of the slain Mrs. Elizabeth Mary Moonen, 21.

Axilrod, a 50-year-old married dentist, is on trial on charges of strangling her after she threatened to "tell the world" he made her pregnant.

It was Petersen who tipped police to the fact that Mrs. Moonen was pregnant last April, although her soldier husband had been in Korea for nearly a year.

Dentist Denies Responsibility

He called police April 23 after hearing over the radio that Mrs. Moonen's body was found in the fashionable Lake of Isles district and told them Axilrod had denied responsibility for her pregnancy.

Detectives then went to Axilrod's office above a nightclub, where he denied romancing the slain woman but admitted she had accused him of causing her condition.

Today's expected showdown followed the failure of a defense bid to collapse the state's entire case with one fell swoop.

Defense attorney Sidney Goff had filed a motion to strike from the record the testimony of Dr. Erling Brauti, 29-year-old assistant autopsy surgeon. Dr. John I. Coe, senior pathologist at the autopsy is ill and unable to testify.

Goff, who had subjected Brauti to stinging cross-examination, said the young surgeon admitted he studied pathology for only four months and that, in effect, he didn't know what he was talking about when he testified Mrs. Moonen was killed by manual strangulation.

If the defense motion had succeeded, the state's case would have been hopeless because of a lack of testimony on the cause of death.

But Judge Leslie L. Anderson denied the motion, saying "I think Dr. Brauti has indicated sufficient background to regard him as an expert witness."

Earlier, Pfc. Mathia Moonen, 25, the slain woman's husband, took the witness stand for the first time and glared with hatred at Axilrod.

Axilrod stared back with calm curiosity, the same expression he has maintained throughout the trial.

Moonen's look changed to tears when he looked at two pictures of his wife's body and testified in a low voice, "That was my wife."

Moonen said his wife visited him at Fort Riley, Kan., in April, 1954, before he left for Korea. She moved to Minneapolis that year.

The next time he saw her, he said, was at her funeral.
