

All-Out Femininity Evident In Women's Fall Wardrobes

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Correspondent
New York (U.P.)—Women have stopped borrowing from men's wardrobes, ceased chopping their hair in little boy bobs and decreed an amicable separation of his-and-hers fads.

Now it's his and hers, without the hyphen. The split came without any noisy arguments—even the people who copied man-tailored shirts for women seem happy about it. They simply have added a girlish collar here and a puffed sleeve there and brought out the new all-girl versions of men's shirts.

Hair stylists talk in such phrases as "back to Venus" as curls began to reappear at the nape of the neck. And scarf makers, who a year or so ago heralded bow ties, string neckties and even miniature four in hands for women now talk of satin ascots and embroidered collars.

All-Out Femininity

Evidence that we're definitely launched on an era of all-out femininity in fashions comes by various authorities. A company that makes foundation garments did a detailed survey of what women were asking for when they went shopping.

"Their interest in sentimental shades like pink . . . in elegant fabrics such as satin . . . and in less see-through fabrics and more cover-up . . . was extremely significant," the survey concluded.

An executive of one of the nation's largest blouse and shirt manufacturers revealed that the strictly man-tailored shirt lost favor with women when the new "dress-up feeling of fashions" began to catch on.

"The man's shirt looks best worn under a jacket," explained William Netzky. "Women like the simplicity of shirt tailoring, but they want adaptations that make their shirt look more like the top of a dress."

Glittering with Embroidery

As a result women now have shirts with necklines that plunge unexpectedly below tailored reverses; pointed collars that can be turned up Italian style and collarless necklines to be topped with glittering embroidery.

We haven't been so feminine since the Middle Ages, one fashion source claims. That was also the period when the idea of romantic love came into general acceptance.

All of which indicates that while women are giving men back their bow ties and white shirts and clipped necklines they may expect something in return—like a seat in the subway or a courtly bow now and then.

Freshmen Attend 'Smarty Party'

Ashland—Thirty-five freshman girls who led their classes scholastically in high school were guests of Robes, upperclass women's service honorary Monday afternoon at Susanne Homes hall on the Southern Oregon college campus for the fall "Smarty Party."

Included were the Misses Norma Chisum, Barbara Hendrickson, Audrey Hite, Doris Jean Maesse, Donna Jean Neff, Patty Mae Read, and Barbara Ann Stickney of Medford; Marilyn May Bailey and Patricia Snook of Central Point; Bernice Joy Bigham and Ruth Ann Westover of Eagle Point; Kay Fisher, Phoenix; Katherine Long, Talent.

Both Miss Beth Eskow of Gold Hill and Mrs. Lois Vanderpool Smith of Phoenix are members of Robes.

Food Group Plans Chapter For Oregon

Dr. Joe D. Nichols, Atlanta, Tex., who believes that "natural food, grown on fertile soil, is the answer to many of the health problems of this country" will organize an Oregon chapter of Natural Foods Associates in Grants Pass Saturday, October 22.

Dr. Nichols will be assisted at the organizational meeting by Tom Lavin, executive secretary of the national group and J. Vern Shangle, Medford, state organizer. A group of Medford residents plan to be in Grants Pass for the day's program which includes a 2 p.m. demonstration of bread making using whole grain flour, a dinner at 6 p.m. and a public meeting at 8 p.m. All will be in the Grants Pass Junior High school building.

Another speaker at the evening meeting will be Dr. Roy A. Falconer of Lakeport, Calif., whose subject will be "Calcium and You."

Dr. Nichols is national president of Natural Food associates, a member of the American Medical association and the Texas Medical association, a past president of the Tri-State Medical association, is a member of the American Academy of Nutrition, chairman of the board of the Atlanta National bank, owns and operates a 25-bed hospital, a 1000-acre farm and is considered a nationally known authority on nutrition and health.

Medford persons interested in attending the dinner are asked to contact Mrs. Alma Smith, 911 Queen Anne avenue, telephone 2-2612.

About 10,800 rural persons were killed in collisions between motor vehicles in 1953.

Here's a sauce that's wonderful to put on ham, steak or tongue as a seasoning. Melt one-half can jellied cranberry sauce over hot water; mix in one-fourth cup prepared mustard. This will stand out when added to broiled steak!

Republicans Plan For Visit Here of National Chairman

Jackson County Republican Women are making plans for the appearance here of Miss Bertha Adkins, national chairman in charge of women's activities for the Republican party. Miss Adkins will speak at a luncheon set for Tuesday, November 1, at Rogue Valley Country club at 12 noon.

Both men and women are invited to hear Miss Adkins speak, and reservations are to be made with Mrs. Roy V. Rickard, telephone 2-2578, no later than October 29.

Miss Adkins has been assistant to the national chairman of the party since January 1953. She initiated and developed the 1953 and 1954 women's national and regional conferences in preparation for the 1954 campaign and similar for the 1955 presidential campaign. She entered the political field in 1946, has served as a precinct election official and is also a member of the Republican national committee, serving as a representative from her home state, Maryland.

Rub that leg of lamb, just before you put it into the oven of your gas range, with a little dried rosemary along with the garlic seasoning. This combination of flavors will be a pleasant surprise.

UN Booths Open Today

In celebration of the tenth anniversary of the United Nations, booths will open today at Mann's and the First National bank.

These booths will distribute free literature, display UNICEF Christmas cards, notepaper and place mats. Anyone interested in purchasing these various items will be able to obtain the address from these booths.

The literature will deal with the multitude of activities in which the United Nations takes part all over the world. This week is celebrated mainly in order to familiarize the people of the United States with various phases of UN work.

The booths will be manned by Mrs. Herbert Sampert, Mrs. Bert R. Elliott, Mrs. G. R. Ringo and Mrs. Marr Gibbons. Four members of the International Relations club of Medford Sen-
