Air Crash Toll Increases to Six

North Hollywood — (U.P.)—The death toll stood at six Saturday from a tragic air accident in which a private plane flown by a millionaire playboy crashed into a North Hollywood apartment house.

The two latest deaths were those of Miss Shirley Preston, 25, and Frank Marchica, 38, who succumbed Friday night at North Hollywood hospital.

Three persons were killed outright when the small monoplane, flown by Joel W. Thorne, 40, crashed through the roof of the apartment house last Monday night and one other person died shortly afterwards.

Four other persons injured in the air mishap remained in critical condition at the hospital.

Meanwhile, funeral services for Thorne, wealthy sportsman pilot, were scheduled to be held here Saturday.

Engineers Won't Back Port Orford Project

Portland — (U.P.)—Army Engineers have announced in Portland that they have recommended against improvements to the harbor at Port Orford on the Oregon coast.

Port Orford interests had asked federal funds for construction of a breakwater and for dredging to permit berthing of deep-draft vessels.

Engineers said "the benefits that would accrue from this improvement are insufficient, compared with the cost . . . to warrant federal participation in such a project at this time."

Grand Jury Clears Arnold Y. Valencia

Portland — (U.P.)—Arnold Y. Valencia, 34-year-old transient, has been cleared of a second-degree murder charge.

The Multnomah county grand jury returned a "not true" verdict in favor of Valencia, who had been accused of the Sept. 30 knife-slashing of 24-year-old

Portland Police Nab Youth After Wild Chase

Portland — (U.P.)—Police Saturday held an 18-year-old youth who was captured after a wild, 12-block chase following the shotgun holdup of a north end tavern by a masked bandit.

The suspect identified himself as Harold Terry, 18. He had $1857 in his pockets when police found him hiding in the back seat of a car.

During the chase, one shotgun blast was fired but it hit no one as four men followed the bandit from the tavern.

Terry did not resist when arrested. He was booked on charges of assault and battery while armed and assault with intent to kill.

Stocks Show First Weekly Gain Since Ike Became Ill

New York — (U.P.)—Stocks registered their first weekly advance this week since the market fell out of bed on President Eisenhower's illness.

The gain which amounted to 13.79 points in the industrial average was the best for that figure since the post-election boom of 1954—the week ended Nov. 5, 1954. The average closed at 458.47.

Best Recent Gain
The rail average closed the week at 151.45, up 2.98 points, best gain since the week ended Sept. 9. Utilities finished at 62.51, up 1.03, their best rise since July 22, 1955. The 65 stock average finishing at 162.59, up 4.05, made the best gain since March 4.

Trading declined from the recent pace. Many reasons were advanced for the turnaround. The principal one was on oversold condition in the market which developed last week.

Also there was a big batch of highly favorable earnings reports and dividend actions, plus more to come. Business held high. Investors returned to the buying side.

Monday's market revealed a change of first-of-the-week activity. The market broke its jinx of sharp Monday declines and industrials rose more than a point.

Reserves Warned To Get Results Or Face Discharge

Ft. Benning, Ga. — (U.P.)—Army Secretary Wilbur M. Brucker warned commanders of military reserve units Saturday to push the administration's reserve program or face discharge.

He told a news conference the thousands of unit commanders throughout the nation are expected to play the key role in building up Army reserve forces in 1,692,335 men.

"There's no reason they should not accept this job" of getting young men into the reserves, Brucker said. "We're going to put it right up to the unit commander that he's the guy."

Must Produce
If a unit commander does not produce over a period of time, "there is no reason why he should expect to continue as a unit commander," he said.

Brucker delivered his warning at a time when the Army is under intense criticism from the Reserve Officers Association for ordering a sweeping reorganization of the reserve structure. It is wiping out several hundred reserve units, organized chiefly for wartime supply and post-war occupation duties, and substituting combat units. The ROA contends the move is ill-timed and will hamper reserve recruiting.

Mother of Tiny, Abandoned Polio Victim Being Sought

Boston — (U.P.)—Sentimental police and charitable organizations teamed up Saturday in attempts to reunite an unidentified mother with her abandoned polio-stricken baby boy by offering her aid and a promise not to prosecute.

"We are not arrest-minded . . . the police would like to help the mother," said Police Sgt. Joseph D. McGilivray who heads the search for the admitted poverty-stricken widow, mother of an 18-day old boy reported recovering from polio at Boston City Hospital.

Hard bitten and obviously moved policemen combed the low-rental Roxbury section where the child was found in a paperbag on a doorstep Oct. 6—the day after he was born. He was stricken with polio four days ago with his arm partially paralyzed.

Dr. John F. Conlon of City Hospital said the baby "possibly" may be suffering, too, from pneumonia in the upper left lobe of one lung.

Boston newspapers circulated an open letter to "dear mother of baby X," from Augustine H. Parker Jr., president of United Community Services, offering "the facilities of all red feather agencies will go into immediate action to help you."

His appeal came only hours after the woman wrote hospital authorities identifying herself as a poverty-stricken widow who abandoned her infant so that he

Ships Collide In Puget Sound

Bremerton — (U.P.)—A tanker and a ferry collided in the fog-shrouded waters of Puget Sound Saturday but no one was reported injured and damage to both vessels was slight.

Passengers aboard the ferry Chippewa said they were alerted to the danger of a collision by frantic shouts of "Look out, we're going to hit!"

Passengers in the bow of the ferry, which was en route from Seattle to Bremerton, said they saw the tanker Dispatch loom out of the fog only 300 feet away. The Chippewa veered to port as passengers rushed to the stern to brace themselves against the impending collision. The ferry took the impact on her starboard bow and the Dispatch right on her bow.

The ships grated past each other, but both vessels were able to proceed. The ferry went on to Bremerton while the Dispatch went to Seattle.

Funeral Services Held for Hodiak

Hollywood — (U.P.)—John Hodiak, 41, known as one of Hollywood's few quiet, retiring and modest actors, was buried Saturday afternoon after what might have been Hollywood's most quiet and conservative funeral service.

There was no teeming crowd, no noisy onlookers and no Hollywood touch.

The private services lasted only 10 minutes and were held at a small mortuary's chapel with about 200 persons present, many of them film industry friends of Hodiak.

Some 50 persons looked on from across the street. The Catholic ritual was said by Fr. Lavinus, a Carmelite priest from the Church of Our Lady of Grace in nearby Encino. Those attending included actress Anne Baxter, divorced wife of Hodiak. She died her eyes several times with a handkerchief and later avoided photographers by quietly slipping out a side door.

News About Books From the Library

By MISS HELEN WEBSTER
Medford Librarian

As the world-wide observance of the 10th anniversary of the United Nations reaches its high point in the United States, on Oct. 24, American libraries feel they have a particular reason for celebrating it.

One of the great accomplishments of the United Nations during the past decade is its championship of a principle to which libraries are dedicated, "the freedom to read."

Unesco Work Cited

"Unesco's library projects, established where there were none before, and making all the facts available to all the people, have become both a symbol and a useful work," says Ransom Richards, editor of the Bulletin of the American Library Association. "To libraries the words of the UN General Assembly are as blood and bone: 'The Freedom of Information is the touchstone of all freedoms to which the UN is consecrated.'"

Libraries on their part can do no better than help to make the achievements of the United Nations more widely known.

Your Medford Public library offers you Eichelberger's "UN: The First Ten Years," a picture in a few bold strokes of the development of the UN and the crises with which it has to deal. You may also borrow Trygve Lie's book, "In the Cause of Peace," a record of political action on the highest level, and an account of the personal experiences of a secretary-general. The Lie memoirs are candid, informative, and highly readable.

Written chiefly for young people but of interest also to adults is Thomas Galt's "How the United Nations Works," a history of the development of the United Nations organization and an analysis of its functioning. You'll find this an indispensable background book.

Other UN Books

Men and women who are interested in the world in which they live will find it worth while to read Dorothy Canfield Fisher's "A Fair World for All," with its interpretations of the 30 articles of the Declaration of Human Rights, and in Kathleen McLaughlin's "New Life in Old Lands," entertainingly written vignettes of some of the day-in and day-out jobs being done to improve life for millions in under developed countries. It demonstrates what the technical assistance programs of the UN have done in the battle against ignorance, famine, and disease.

In Carleton Washburne's "World's Good: Education for World-Mindedness," the author presents methods that can be used to help young people grow up as citizens of the world. He also points out the work that the UN is doing to further the feeling of world-mindedness.

Any of these titles will be gladly reserved for you at the Medford Public library.
