

Evans Valley Club Hears Program on Dry Arrangements

Rogue River — Highlighting the October meeting of Evans Valley Garden club was the talk on "Dry Arrangements" given by Mrs. John Goldt. She outlined the entire procedure from harvesting the material to the finished product. When picking the plants, strip off foliage from them, then hang upside down in a cool, dark place to cure. Containers best suited to this type of arrangement are of brass, copper, pewter or pottery; or hollowed out gourds or hard shelled squash. Color may be added by dying the weeds. The arrangement Mrs. Goldt displayed was of cattails, teasel, milkweed pods and queen anne's lace, with dogwood leaves added for color, all placed in a copper foil covered container.

Mrs. Thomas Mauchliffe showed an interesting arrangement made from various kitchen spices.

In reporting the Siskiyou District meeting recently held in Eagle Point, the delegates, Mrs. John Goldt, Mrs. Thomas Mauchliffe and Mrs. Harry Winters, all stressed the value of every possible member attending these meetings where experts on different phases of gardening are heard.

Roll call was answered with material or interesting weeds, including comments on their habits and varied names.

At this meeting, Mrs. Ellouise Counts was welcomed back to the community and to the club as a new member.

The next meeting was set for November 30 at the W. M. Stringer home with Mrs. Mauchliffe as co-hostess with Mrs. Stringer.

Three Dimensional Paper Dolls Make Money for Grandmother and Artist

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Correspondent
White Plains, N.Y. — (U.P.)— Small girls have been cutting out paper dolls since scissors were invented.

But it has taken a 49-year-old grandmother and a young New York advertising agency artist to turn this child's play into adult income.

Mrs. Louis Tiernan, wife of an insurance executive and grandmother of three, and Miss Carol Ann McKenna, the artist, make three-dimensional paper dolls and wardrobes, and package them in assemble-it-yourself kits for the kiddie. With each doll goes a story the child can read.

Their first doll came out last year and was an immediate hit. It sold through toy shops and department stores. This year, their second doll—they plan one design each year—is a bride with paper hair, satin paper dress, but real tulle veil and real ribbon sash. She will be sold by mail order only.

Works At Home
"We just decided the only way we can keep this business from getting too big is to keep it direct mail," said Mrs. Tiernan.

Mrs. Tiernan, who does all her own housework, cuts and assembles the doll parts and wardrobes in "my studio"—one room of her house. Miss McKenna works either at her office after hours or her home in Bronxville, N. Y., giving the professional touch to drawings and painting the dresses and doll features.

Mrs. Tiernan, a native of Omaha, Neb., said that, "Eighteen or 20 years ago, I studied puppets and modeled papier-mache dolls. I also took costume design. So all my training just fitted this doll business."

She first made doll wardrobes of real fabrics and sold F. A. O. Schwarz, the famous New York toy store.

Sold Shop
Eventually she opened a doll repair shop in White Plains, and specialized in restoration of valuable antique dolls for dealers.

"The shop got to be full-time, so I sold it," she said.

"But I'd had that idea of paper dolls for a long time... now seemed a good time to go to work on it."

The women started with $500 capital and "made money right from the beginning," said Mrs. Tiernan. But the profit has been plowed back into production as orders multiplied.

Mrs. Tiernan advised any woman planning to start a project to seek professional advice before spending capital.

"I took a sample of my doll kit to the woman's program," she said. "They gave me a lot of guidance." She referred to the woman's program of the New York State Department of Commerce. The program, only one of its kind in the nation, specializes in helping women with problems of pricing, registry of name, insurance, expansion and distribution of their products.

The BB rifle shoot, with Harry Heidenreich of the National Rifle association in charge, will be one of the features of the carnival. Other booths will be a country store, fishpond, bean guess, boat ride, dart game, penny throw, ring toss, baseball throw and novelty stand.

Refreshments will be on sale in the cafeteria which will also serve as a TV room.

Relatives Visit In Medford Home

A group of relatives have been guests at the home of Mrs. John Wilkinson, 726 South Keeneway drive, in recent days. Here were her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. MacLauchlan, Eugene, another daughter, Miss Dolores Wilkinson, a service club director at Ft. Lewis, Wash., and Mrs. Wilkinson's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Thoman Bickerstaff of California.

The MacLauchlans spent the week end here, the Bickerstaffs left Monday and Miss Wilkinson Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Wilkinson's son, Donald T. Wilkinson, an airman first class in the United States Air Force, is spending the week with his mother. The young man is assigned to duty at Portland International Air base.
