

Wartime Salt Problem of Pretzel Bakers Settled To Satisfaction of Industry

Washington—(U.P.)—The pretzel bakers of America have been having a salt problem but they think they have it licked.

This news was a highlight of the 15th annual convention, just concluded here, of the National Pretzel Bakers Institute.

Theme of the convention was "The Miracle of the Pretzel Industry," the miracle being the way the industry has grown.

According to Alex V. Tisdale of Pottstown, Pa., executive secretary of the institute and editor of its monthly publication, The Pretzel Baker. Americans now eat 250,000,000 pounds of pretzels a year. The industry, he said, will do $80,000,000 worth of business in 1955.

One of the more important events of this year's convention, according to Tisdale, was the report of the institute's salt committee.

Before World War II salt companies supplied pretzel bakers with a special high quality coarse grained salt that stood up without melting under oven temperatures of 550 to 660 degrees.

Salt People Switch

But during the war, the salt people switched to methods which produced a salt the pretzel bakers didn't like. For one thing the grains were too hard around the edges. They cut the cellophane bags, letting in air and moisture.

Well, the salt committee reported, the salt makers are now making a salt, similar to the salt produced before the war, which is completely satisfactory.

Actress Veronica Lake Rushed To Hospital

Detroit—(U.P.)—Actress Veronica Lake, famous for her peek-a-boo hair style, collapsed early today and was taken to receiving hospital, where physicians said she suffered a probable coronary occlusion.

Miss Lake, appearing here in the play "The Little Hut," collapsed in the lobby of her hotel. Police rushed to the scene and took her to the hospital, where Dr. Norman Goldston said the actress was suffering from an illness "of a serious nature."

Miss Lake, film star of "Sullivan's Travels," "Slattery's Hurricane," and other movies, gave her name as Mrs. J. A. McCarthy. She and McCarthy, a New York song publisher, were married recently at Traverse City, Mich., where she was appearing in summer stock. She gave her age as 33.

UO Inspection Team Takes To Stairways

Portland—(U.P.)—Thirteen members of a state education board inspection team found at least one thing wrong yesterday as they toured the new University of Oregon medical school teaching hospital.

They stepped into an elevator and dropped 10 floors into the elevator pit.

Thanks to a plunger at the bottom of the shaft, and brakes, they emerged unharmed, but were satisfied to finish their inspection via the stairways.

SAVE MY CHEE—ILD!

Owosso, Mich.—(U.P.)—Owosso firemen sped to the scene when a woman reported "my baby is up in the tree." The baby, firemen learned upon arrival, was a parakeet.

Quotes From the News

By UNITED PRESS

Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in a dispatch written exclusively for the United Press, on the outlook for the Big Four talks at Geneva:

"If a basis for agreement can be reached . . . I am confident that we shall be on the threshold of an era of genuine peace, an era which will draw mankind closer together in common humanity rather than condemn us all to the fraternity of the damned."

Thomas K. Finletter, former Secretary of the Air Force on administration attacks on "individual freedom" through the security program:

"The invasion of basic American rights, although somewhat less extreme than it was a year ago, is still serious and American opinion should be aware of this state of affairs and should do something about it."

Frank Russo, 30-year-old New Jersey egg candler after being told he had won $20,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes:

"I'm so upset, I feel funny all over."

A prosecution attorney at the Washington trial of Mrs. Katherine Ann Haynes, accused of shooting her husband's 19-year-old mistress after he boasted of his infidelity:

"I don't think he has a moral fiber in his body, but no matter how much this woman put up with, it can't justify a killing in cold blood."

CIO President Walter P. Reuther when asked if rank and file union members would approve the unified CIO-AFL labor movement:

"If the rank and file had made the decision we would have had labor unity a long time ago."

Francis Scott, 14, rescued from the waters of St. Andrews Bay by an Air Force crash boat, after spending three days on a snake-infested island without food:

"While I was out there drifting all over the place, I sort of prayed to the Lord just to put me on land."

U.S. Rep. John M. Vorys (R-O.) comparing the present Washington climate with that of the Truman administration, at a Columbus, O., Republican dinner:

"It is out of style to give them hell anymore."

Scope Still Used To Log Golden Gate Ship Traffic

San Francisco—(U.P.)—Ed McCarthy, 63 and gray-haired, swung the big, brass-bound telescope into position and squinted through the 50-power eyepiece. "Powell River . . . three-thirty-one p.m.," he said.

Across misty San Francisco Bay, the Powell River, outward bound for Vancouver to bring back newsprint, chewed at the choppy waves, a "bone in its teeth," speeding with the ebb tide through the Golden Gate.

The time noted by McCarthy was "official" and would hold water in any maritime court. Departures and arrivals of vessels through the Port of San Francisco are marked by their crossing of the imaginary line from the Marine Exchange waterfront lookout on Meigs' Wharf to the tip of Alcatraz Island.

106 Years

"We've been doing this for 106 years," McCarthy explained after logging the cargo ship. "Since the gold rush of '49 our watchers have seen the Sea Witch, the Flying Cloud, the sails, give way to steam and wood to steel hulls. We've logged in and out every ship in all that time."

"I started with the Marine Exchange the year of the big fire in 1906. I was a kid, you know, on the waterfront, and this was a good job. They can talk about wireless and radio telephone all they want, but visual reporting of ships still's got 'em all beat."

Even Navy ships, which use the Golden Gate bridge to mark their arrival and departure time from the port, are logged by the Exchange. The simple business of reporting this ocean traffic still remains important. The Marine Exchange, like Lloyds of London and the New York Maritime Association, performs its unique function for all shipping interests.

Radio Not Enough

"The men who own the ships, those who work them, those who handle the cargoes and outfit them all want to know exactly where that ship is when it approaches port," McCarthy explained. "Radio won't do it because that's on the ship. It takes land-looking."

"True, wireless has made this less important than in the old days. Then, the Exchange, meeting the ship at sea, was the first to bring back the manifest—the cargo it was bringing in, news from the East, the passengers. It's still important today to know the ship's exact position on the approach. Time and overtime is at stake—money."

"Our subscribers (between 500 to 600) now want to know where that ship is every inch of the way. They want to know whether it's abeam of the lighthouse, 11 miles out, whether it's passing Point Lobos and Point Benita, the headlands. Three miles out it is met by a pilot boat and takes on a pilot. We get that news first."

At the waterfront lookout, the Exchange watchers board a launch and meet the vessel "in stream."

Hardship Exceptions

"We give the ship its docking instructions, either written or verbal," McCarthy said. "Ours is the final word. Instructions may have changed since the pilot went aboard. It is the Exchange that notifies quarantine, agricultural, customs and immigration officials of the arrival. All are alerted to prevent delay."

Some ships—like those of the American President Lines and Matson lines—already have cleared with authorities in Hon-

MEDFORD (OREGON) MAIL TRIBUNE—NINE

Pickin' Pears

By BILL HURN

The VFW Auxiliary-sponsored dance at Camp White Monday, Oct. 17, was well attended. Music was furnished by Merrill's orchestra in lieu of the Camp White musicians, they being the dinner-hour entertainment for the Shrine club party at the Rogue Valley Country club that night.

Blue Star Mothers of America of Grants Pass were at Camp White on Wednesday, Oct. 18, for their fourth annual entertaining of the men of Ward 1, the group formally "adopted" by them four years ago. A fried chicken dinner with all the trimmings was served at noon by the committee headed by Mrs. Ardena Kretschmer and her assistants, Mrs. Ruth Otto and Frances Wilson. Twelve ladies comprised the serving group for the dinner for the 29 members of the ward.

In return, Tommy Thompson acting as emcee, presented a program, honoring the ladies, of orchestral music by the Camp White "Raettes", an accordion quartette from the Prentice studio, a vocal number and a dance act.
