

Some Suspects Believed to Have Fled From State

Sale Lake City—(U.P.)—A "one by one" drive against the leaders of Utah's estimated 5000 to 20,000 Fundamentalists may cause some of the polygamy suspects to leave the state, officials admitted today, but authorities said they would be glad if that is what happens.

Latest man to be arrested in the campaign that began Wednesday was Heber C. Smith Jr., who gave himself up at Salt Lake county jail during the night and was booked on an "unlawful cohabitation" charge. Smith brought a bondsman to the jail with him and was released on $2500 bond.

Previously Arrested
Smith was arrested in 1944 on a charge of conspiring to practice polygamy in Utah but the charge was later squashed. He reportedly had been living with three women, according to County Attorney Frank Moss.

Previously two men with 10 wives and 51 children were arrested. One other, David Brigham Darger, still eluded deputies who have warrants for his arrest. "Our jobs aren't big enough to hold them all," said Attorney General E. R. Callister Jr. "We know that since we started a special investigation some of these people have left the state, but that's just fine."

The Fundamentalists, whose members have been involved in at least three polygamy drives in Utah and Arizona in 12 years, is a group whose members claim to be following the original teaching of the Mormon faith. However, the established Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints disavowed the practice of polygamy in 1890.

Louis A. Keisch, 49, whose five wives have 31 children, was released on bail after his arrest Wednesday on a charge of unlawful cohabitation.

Carl Eugene Jentsch, 54, chief electrician at the Navy's big Clearfield supply depot near Ogden, faced a similar charge after his arrest yesterday, but was released from Davis County jail on $1000 bail. Jentsch has five wives and at least 20 children.

Unlawful cohabitation complaints were filed against Heber C. Smith and David Brigham Darger, but they evaded arrest.

Salt Lake County Attorney Frank Moss and other authorities said the wives whose husbands had been jailed or had left home would be allowed to remain with their broods and would be given state welfare aid of necessary food and clothing. Moss also reported that habitual criminal charges carrying a life sentence would be filed against any men who had previous criminal convictions, "so we can end this thing in Utah once and for all."

Central Point Officials Sign Obligation Bonds

Central Point—Mayor Donald E. Faber and Recorder Arden Pinkham have signed $12,165.64 worth of general obligation bonds for the city of Central Point. The bonds recently were sold to the First National Bank of Portland.

When processing is completed, the city will receive a check to pay for protested warrants issued in connection with recent street improvements.

Carnival Planned At Eagle Point High

Eagle Point — The annual Eagle Point High school carnival will be held starting about 7:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 4, in the school gymnasium.

A queen will be selected from four candidates. They are Freshman Glenda Swanson, Sophomore Maxine Woodward, Junior Cathy Eccleston and Senior Patty Hall. The queen will be named about 10 p.m. the night of the carnival.

Proceeds from the annual event go into the student body fund.

Reformation Day Services Planned; Speaker Announced

"A Festival of Faith" community observance of Reformation Sunday will be held under the auspices of the Medford Ministerial association at the Medford High school auditorium at 8 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 30.

A choir of more than 125 voices from participating churches, will sing under the direction of Allen Lehl. Mrs. C. R. Adamson will be the accompanist, Herbert Daniels, baritone, will be soloist and a men's quartet will sing.

Philip Hitchcock, former state senator from Klamath Falls and at present president of the Oregon State Council of Churches, will speak. Participating in the program will be the Rev. Thomas McCamant, the Rev. George R. V. Bolster, Dr. D. Kirkland West, and Dr. Raymond E. Balcomb.

"Martin Luther," a dramatic moving picture of the life of the Protestant reformer, will be shown under the auspices of the ministerial association Reformation day, Monday, Oct. 31 at 8 p.m., in the Medford Assembly of God Church, 1108 West Main st.

The public is invited. No admission will be charged.

Revival Will Open Sunday at Prospect

Prospect — Evangelist E. G. Lawrence of Gustine, Calif., will commence revival services at the Prospect Assembly of God Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Services will continue daily at 7:45 p.m., except Monday and Saturday.

The Rev. Mr. Lawrence has done extensive evangelistic work throughout the Western states and Alaska. He held a campaign last year at Prospect.

The Rev. Leslie Owens, a recent graduate of Bethany Bible college, Santa Cruz, Calif., is now the pastor of the Prospect Assembly of God.

COLTISH ANTICS

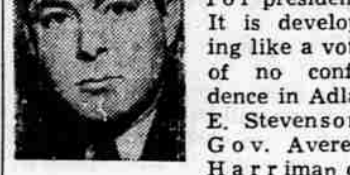

Rushville, Neb.—(U.P.)—Rancher Art Roosevelt will think twice before parking his car in a horse pasture again. Colts rubbed the paint from the entire rear end, dented the body with their teeth and chewed on the upholstery through an open window.

The male seahorse carries the eggs of its young and supplies them with oxygen through his blood stream. At the end of the incubation period, 40-50 days, he expels the eggs as seaolts.

Ohio Governor's Nomination Boomlet Could Become Serious

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Correspondent

Washington —(U.P.)— There is more than meets the eye in the boomlet to make Gov. Frank John Lausche of Ohio the 1956 Democratic nominee for president. It is developing like a vote of no confidence in Adlai E. Stevenson, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

Lyle C. Wilson New York and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

Lausche will be 60 years old next month. He is a son of immigrant parents, a lawyer, five times elected governor of his state. Lausche is a Catholic. He also is a somewhat unpredictable politician.

Only this week in New York, Lausche referred to President Eisenhower in terms scarcely to be expected from a leading figure in the Democratic Party. Speaking before New York's Ohio Society, Lausche said Mr. Eisenhower had brought "unity and confidence" to the nation. That raises a fair question.

If Mr. Eisenhower brought unity and confidence to the nation, whom does Lausche hold responsible for the previous shortage thereof? Lausche didn't answer that one.

Statements in Character

Such statements are in character for Lausche. They might, and probably do, mean that if Mr. Eisenhower were a candidate, Lausche would not care to take him on. But there is serious doubt that the President will run again. Friends of Stevenson suggest that Lausche's political independence would prevent his nomination.

The Lausche boomlet is South-bred. Sen. Richard B. Russell returned this week from Europe to say that the Ohio governor would be a "formidable" Democratic presidential candidate. Russell said it was too early for him to be committed to anyone, but his kind words for Lausche as a "middle of road" statesman still stand.

Russell was defeated for the 1952 Democratic presidential nomination and took no part in the campaign to elect Adlai E. Stevenson. He was the candidate of Southern conservatives but insists he will not seek the nomination again.

Saluted by Texan
Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas saluted Lausche Thursday as a "moderate" which means about the same as middle-of-the-road. He said the Democrats would "be showing alertness and intelligence" if they nominated the Ohioan. Shivers balked Stevenson in 1954 to support Mr. Eisenhower.
Two singers don't make a chorus, but there is something stirring in the South for Lausche and there are others in that area thinking of him for 1956 who have not yet been heard from. Lausche calls the movement a dream of friendly persons. He says he will seek elective office next year and that he considers either a contest for reelection or a go at the Senate to be open to him.
Evidence of responsible Southern Democratic enthusiasm for Lausche is a political switchover from 1928. In that presidential election Herbert Hoover broke into the Solid South to overwhelm Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York. Smith's Catholic religion was a major factor, but so was prohibition, which Smith opposed.
That was 26 years ago and times may have changed.
