

Portland May Vote On Exposition Center

Portland—U.P.—Portlanders may decide by vote what site they want for the city's $8,000,000 exposition-recreation center, if it isn't too late by voting time.

Homer Allen, executive secretary of the Citizens Committee for a Greater Portland, said he would ask the city council to place the issue on next May's primary ballot. He said if this was rejected his group would start an initiative action for a vote. This would require 18,316 signatures.

The city council last week in effect turned down the Delta Park site by refusing to approve its transfer from the city park bureau to the Exposition-Recreation Commission.

But there appeared one stumbling block. City Attorney Alexander Brown said that the E-R commission, in his opinion, could select a site at any time before the primary election and that this site would be the legal one.

Yugoslavia Releases Last Catholic Churchman

Belgrade, Yugoslavia—U.P.—The semi-official news agency YugoPress reported today that Yugoslavia had conditionally released the last high-ranking Catholic churchman still held in jail.

Newspapers May Be Forced To Up Prices

New York—The bitterly denounced $5-a-ton increase in newspaper prices went into effect today despite warnings the price you pay for your favorite newspaper may have to be raised.

The possibility of a congressional investigation of the newspaper industry loomed in the background.

The price hike, first announced Oct. 18 by St. Lawrence Corp., Canada's fourth largest newspaper producer, brings the price in New York to $131 a ton. Delivered prices across the country vary only slightly from those in New York.

Back Stairs: Ike Windshield Stickers

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

Denver—U.P.—Backstairs at the temporary White House:

Manny Ress, the New York badge and button manufacturer, began producing shortly after President Eisenhower's heart attack a series of auto windshield stickers proclaiming: "Get well Ike, America needs your heart."

After he mailed the stickers around the country, Manny began to wonder. Maybe his original sticker indicated, as he put it, "political connotations."

Whereupon he came up with a new batch of stickers which say "Get well Ike and please relax."

Winter scene at Lory Air Force Base: Just outside the White House offices is a large apple tree. Children of Air Force personnel on the way home from school stop off to shake the fruit from the tree.

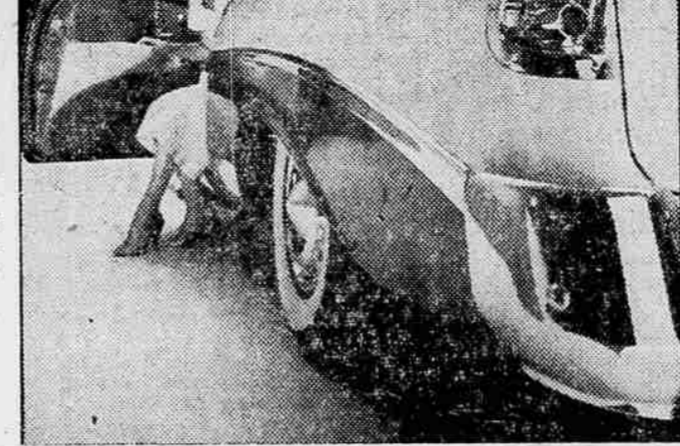

One of the President's friends who saw him in the last few days came away from Fitzsimons Army Hospital with the idea that the chief executive might remain in Denver as late as Nov. 15.

In the current Collier's magazine, there is a story about the President and his pastor in Washington, the Rev. Dr. Edward L. R. Elson of the National Presbyterian Church.

The article, written by Casper Nannes, says that when Mr. Eisenhower suffered his heart attack on Sept. 24, "One of the first persons to whom Mamie Eisenhower turned for help" was Pastor Elson.

The article says that Mrs. Eisenhower sent Elson a message from Denver asking him to pray for the President's recovery and to relay her appeal to other Protestant, Catholic and Jewish religious leaders.

Actually it was Elson who called Denver after he heard of the President's illness. He called several times during the night of Sept. 24, asking if he could be of assistance.

He did not reach Mrs. Eisenhower, but someone in her behalf apparently relayed to him a suggestion of gratitude for any prayers offered in the President's behalf.

Elson then relayed the suggestion to the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Washington. He also called "a leading rabbi."

The article in Collier's shows some of the problems a president faces in following his faith in any semblance of dignity. Once at the National Presbyterian Church off Connecticut ave. in Washington, one worshipper was so enthusiastic about the President's presence that he lifted his wife high in the air as the rest of the congregation was bowed in prayer.
