Hopper Resigns As Skipper Of Portland Beaver Club

Portland—(U.P.)—General Manager Joe Ziegler said today a successor to Clay Hopper as manager of the Portland Beavers probably would be named late this week.
Hopper resigned as manager of the Pacific Coast League team late yesterday in a telephone conversation with Ziegler. The Bevo general manager revealed that Hopper's resignation was submitted to him in October but that he held it in abeyance until yesterday.
Hopper came to Portland in 1952 after managing Montreal in the International League. He finished fourth twice, eighth once and fifth last season in four campaigns as head of the Beavers.
Ziegler said he had contacted several "likely candidates" for a successor to Hopper but that nothing definite had been decided upon.
In a prepared statement, Ziegler said "after many conferences by telephone and serious consideration of the Portland baseball club's future plans, Hopper and I agreed that the mutual interests of the club and Clay can best be served by accepting his resignation as manager."

Sooners, Terrapins Picked For Easy Win This Week

Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl, is picked by 14 points over Clemson.
But West Virginia is given the nod by only three points over three-times-beaten Pittsburgh. It is a case of the oddsmakers believing that lightning can strike twice in the same place. Last year Pitt knocked West Virginia from the unbeaten ranks in a 13-10 thriller.

Grid Picking Looks Easy To Comedian

By SAM LEVINSON
Famed Comedian Pinch-Hitting For The Missing Hal Wood Las Vegas, Nev. —(U.P.)— Hal Wood still is in hiding from the effigy hangers after last week's disastrous pigskin-picking bout and he asked me to fill in for him.
He sneaked in here at the Dunes the other night and offered me a sure-thing job making this week's gridiron selections, which he guaranteed would be much easier than trying to beat the dice tables and the "21" games.
If the job is so easy, how come he picked Washington to beat California and Southern California to trim Stanford last week?
Shucks, we had eight kids in our family and you had to be a good football player to survive. We had more fights than the Ram-Forty Niner game. But we had the best referee in the world—my mother. She never lost an argument with us. If we disagreed, she banged our heads together—without helmets.
Compared with some of the arguments we used to have at home, this week's schedule looks easier than trying to grab the last meatball off the platter at dinner time.
UCLA over Washington: My mother wouldn't let the kids in our family play football. She was afraid we would get hurt and grow up to be idiots. We did anyway. Grow up, that is. Oregon Underdog
Stanford over Oregon: One time I told my father that I won a foot race. He wanted to know who was chasing me. He couldn't believe that anyone would run unless being chased. He thought the cops were after me.

Least Hurt Pro Teams Doing Best

United Press Sports Writer
The most important question you can ask a National Football League coach after a game is: How many of your players were badly hurt.
The 1953 and 1954 squad lists kept by NFL headquarters show that the most successful teams in those years generally were those which suffered the least injuries.
Last season, the Cleveland Browns won the Eastern Division and league championships. Twenty-six Browns appeared in all of the team's 12 regular season games and four others appeared in all except one.
None of the other 11 clubs had so many members of their 33-man squads play in so many games.
In 1954 Detroit Lions, a team three-deep in talent, won the Western Division crown with 21 men appearing in 12 games and eight others playing in all but one. The second-place Chicago Bears had 26 men who played in all their games and one who appeared in 11.
Green Bay, however, wound up fifth in the Western race last year although it also had 26 men who played in every game and one who took part in 11.
The teams which suffered least from injuries also were most successful in 1953. Detroit won the Western Division and league titles with 21 players appearing in 12 games and seven playing in all but one. Cleveland won the Eastern race with 25 men who played in 12 games and three who appeared in 11. The Philadelphia Eagles finished second to Cleveland with the same figures.
The Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco Forty-Niners were also-rans in 1953 and 1954 although both squads were loaded with talent. Both also were hit heavily by injuries.
The record shows that Coach Paul Brown's Cleveland team has had more men appear in 11 or more games than any other NFL club during the past two seasons.
The loss of a star because of an injury may play an important part in Sunday's "big" game between the Rams and Bears at Chicago. The Rams, leading the Western race by one game, may play without end Bob Boyd, a top pass receiver and probably the league's fastest man who is nursing a leg injury.
The Bears (4-3) are picked to defeat the Rams (5-2).
Sunday's other selections with season records in parenthesis: Eagles (2-4) over Browns (6-1) at Philadelphia; Giants (2-5) over Colts (4-3) at New York; Steelers (4-3) over Lions (1-6) at Pittsburgh; Packers (3-4) over Cardinals at Green Bay; Forty-Niners (3-4) over Redskins (4-3) at Washington.

Steelhead Luck Should Improve

Portland — (U.P.) — The weekly report on fishing conditions prepared by the State Game Commission:
Southwest—Striped bass angling in Isthmus slough has been fair to good with bullheads and pilchard best bait. An occasional steelhead is being picked up on eggs in the west fork the Millicoma river.
Steelhead fishing on Rogue river should improve. Good angling will be found in the Hellsgate to Galice area as a fresh run of fish moves up out of the canyon.
Salmon and jack angling in Tenmile lakes is fair to good. An occasional steelhead is being taken in the Sawyer rapids area of the lower Umpqua river, and angling is expected to improve with clearing water. Few winter steelhead have reached the upper Umpqua area, and angling is poor.
The season for all salmon 20 inches and over in length is closed in all waters above highway 38 bridge at Scottsburg.

Stater Passing Attack Crippled

Corvallis, Ore. — (U.P.) — Injuries and sickness are seriously crippling work on the Oregon State passing attack that Coach Tommy Prothro hopes to use against the California Golden Bears.
Tailback Joe Francis, top Beaver flinger and one of the coast's total offense leaders, was still sidelined with a painful shoulder injury that has responded very slowly to treatment. Ray Westfall, returned to the practice field yesterday still weak from a bout with the flu.
PHILLIES SLATE TOLD
Philadelphia — (U.P.) — The Philadelphia Phillies will not play any weekday afternoon games next season and have scheduled only 12 single day games for Saturday and Sunday. Nine double-headers are listed for Sundays and the Memorial and Labor Day holidays with the remaining 47 games all to be played after dark.

Campbell After Speedboat Mark

Las Vegas, Nev. — (U.P.) — Donald Campbell was scheduled to make an all-out attempt to break his own world speedboat record today on Lake Mead after falling just short of the mark Wednesday.
The English holder of the world speedboat mark at 202.32 miles per hour, pushed his jet-propelled Bluebird II to an estimated 201 miles per hour Wednesday.

John Saxton Gets Verdict Over Jones

By SCOTT BAILLIE
Oakland, Calif. — (U.P.) — Are the wraps off Johnny Saxton at last or does the former world welterweight champion fight better when outweighed by 10 pounds?
Sharp-eyed Johnny, who has drawn many a Bronx cheer in previous ring efforts, put on a masterful display of combination punching and aggressiveness Wednesday night here while unanimously outpointing favored Ralph (Tiger) Jones in a nationally televised 10-round bout at the Oakland Auditorium.
Everything seemed stacked against Saxton at fight time. He not only was outweighed 158½ to 148½ but was a 7-5 underdog to Jones, who nearly wrecked Ray Robinson's comeback. The word also was out that Saxton might not get another crack at the 147-pound crown if he lost, although he was in line to meet the winner of next month's Tony Demarco-Carmen Basilio title bout.
But the odds crumbled along with Jones' defenses after round one started as Saxton scored almost at will with one-two-to-the-face mixed with eye-catching "right-left-rights" to the same place.
Jones' best round was the eighth when he tore into Saxton after taking a solid right uppercut to the jaw and smashed over a hard right to the same place followed by a left.
Referee Fred Apostoli voted the fight to Saxton 56½ to 53½, Judge Jack Downey 57-53, Judge Eddie James 56-54 and the United Press 58-52.
"Meet the new Saxton," Manager Frank (Blinky) Palermo rapped afterwards in the dressing room. "He told me before the bout that he's going to be a real fighter from now on. Okay, see? Is he a fighter now?"
Saxton said that he changed his attitude after Gene Burgen, a former welterweight himself, took over as trainer.
"Gene stays right in with me now when we spar and won't let me get out of the ring until I've corrected mistakes," fast-talking Saxton said. "And I don't care whether I fight Demarco again or get Basilio."

PGA Honors Doug Ford

Chicago — (U.P.) — PGA champion Doug Ford today was named winner of the annual award as "professional Golfer of the Year" by the Professional Golfers' association.
Ford, from Yonkers, N.Y., received 230 votes for the trophy compared to 190 for runner-up Jack Fleck, the National Open champion. Cary Middlecoff, runner-up for the PGA title, was third with 135 and Julius Boros, fourth with 106.
Ford won two other tournaments during the year, the All-American and the Carling's Sponsors classic. He played 121 competitive rounds during the year, more than any other player in history.

Webfoots Should Be in Top Shape

Eugene, Ore. — (U.P.) — Coach Lee Casanova says his University of Oregon Ducks should be in their best physical condition of the season for Saturday's game against the Stanford Indians.
The Ducks worked hard and long yesterday on their unimpressive passing game. Casanova said the Oregon ground attack, best in the Pacific Coast Conference, needed relatively little work.

Sharp-eyed Johnny, who has drawn many a Bronx cheer in previous ring efforts, put on a masterful display of combination punching and aggressiveness Wednesday night here while unanimously outpointing favored Ralph (Tiger) Jones in a nationally televised 10-round bout at the Oakland Auditorium.
Everything seemed stacked against Saxton at fight time. He not only was outweighed 158½ to 148½ but was a 7-5 underdog to Jones, who nearly wrecked Ray Robinson's comeback. The word also was out that Saxton might not get another crack at the 147-pound crown if he lost, although he was in line to meet the winner of next month's Tony Demarco-Carmen Basilio title bout.
But the odds crumbled along with Jones' defenses after round one started as Saxton scored almost at will with one-two-to-the-face mixed with eye-catching "right-left-rights" to the same place.
Jones' best round was the eighth when he tore into Saxton after taking a solid right uppercut to the jaw and smashed over a hard right to the same place followed by a left.
Referee Fred Apostoli voted the fight to Saxton 56½ to 53½, Judge Jack Downey 57-53, Judge Eddie James 56-54 and the United Press 58-52.
"Meet the new Saxton," Manager Frank (Blinky) Palermo rapped afterwards in the dressing room. "He told me before the bout that he's going to be a real fighter from now on. Okay, see? Is he a fighter now?"
Saxton said that he changed his attitude after Gene Burgen, a former welterweight himself, took over as trainer.
"Gene stays right in with me now when we spar and won't let me get out of the ring until I've corrected mistakes," fast-talking Saxton said. "And I don't care whether I fight Demarco again or get Basilio."

Least Hurt Pro Teams Doing Best

The most important question you can ask a National Football League coach after a game is: How many of your players were badly hurt.
The 1953 and 1954 squad lists kept by NFL headquarters show that the most successful teams in those years generally were those which suffered the least injuries.
Last season, the Cleveland Browns won the Eastern Division and league championships. Twenty-six Browns appeared in all of the team's 12 regular season games and four others appeared in all except one.
None of the other 11 clubs had so many members of their 33-man squads play in so many games.
In 1954 Detroit Lions, a team three-deep in talent, won the Western Division crown with 21 men appearing in 12 games and eight others playing in all but one. The second-place Chicago Bears had 26 men who played in all their games and one who appeared in 11.
Green Bay, however, wound up fifth in the Western race last year although it also had 26 men who played in every game and one who took part in 11.
The teams which suffered least from injuries also were most successful in 1953. Detroit won the Western Division and league titles with 21 players appearing in 12 games and seven playing in all but one. Cleveland won the Eastern race with 25 men who played in 12 games and three who appeared in 11. The Philadelphia Eagles finished second to Cleveland with the same figures.
The Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco Forty-Niners were also-rans in 1953 and 1954 although both squads were loaded with talent. Both also were hit heavily by injuries.
