Robert Sherwood Has Heart Attack

New York (U.P.) — Robert E. Sherwood, 59-year-old playwright, biographer and speechwriter for the late President Roosevelt, suffered a heart attack early Saturday and was rushed to New York hospital where his condition was described as "satisfactory."

The nature or seriousness of the seizure was not disclosed, but a 2 p.m. medical bulletin said Sherwood's condition was "satisfactory and somewhat improved from this morning."

Sherwood, who has won four Pulitzer prizes, suffered an attack at 12:30 a.m. at his Sutton place home. Three months ago he underwent an "emergency" operation for an undisclosed ailment and had appeared to be improving when he was stricken yesterday.

The lanky author has written some of the greatest stage successes of modern times. He received Pulitzer prizes for writing "Idiot's Delight" in 1936, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" in 1938, and "There Shall Be No Night" in 1941.

Lack of Inquiry Into Intimidation Charges Rapped by Two Solons

Washington (U.P.) — Two Democratic senators Saturday accused the Justice Department of making no effort to determine whether an attempt had been made to intimidate a witness involved in the Dixon-Yates case.

However, Warren Olney III, assistant attorney general in charge of the department's criminal division, testified that on the basis of the information which the department received it was decided no investigation was "warranted." The facts, Olney said, did not indicate any violation of a federal law.

But Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), termed the Justice Department's failure to act "deplorable." Kefauver is chairman of a Senate Anti-Monopoly subcommittee which resumed its investigation of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract.

Kefauver told Olney: "You just didn't undertake to find out whether there was an effort (at witness intimidation) or not." "Brushed Off"

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), commented that "this thing was brushed off and thrown into the wastebasket without an investigation when

Narcotics Seized May Have Broken World Crime Ring

Montreal (U.P.) — Canadian and United States investigators yesterday checked the possibility that a $10,000,000 narcotics seizure here may have broken an international crime syndicate with headquarters in Communist China.

A spokesman for detectives in three Canadian and U.S. agencies said such a prospect was "under serious consideration" following the discovery of 31 pounds of pure heroin aboard the french freighter St. Malo here Thursday.

So far, only one man, ship's fireman Robert Bianchi Maliverno, 30, of Pliang, Vosges, France, has been arrested. He was expected to be arraigned on an attempted smuggling charge.

Other Arrests
Royal Canadian mounted police said other arrests probably would be made here, and possibly in New York, when they get enough evidence to make cases against Canadians and Americans for whom the narcotics were bound. They said that might take anywhere from a few days to several months.

It was believed that the heroin was destined for the United States market and originated in Communist China. Police said they had spent several years investigating the illegal drug trade directed from China, which has been exploiting the traffic to build up new markets in North America and obtain hard-to-get dollars.

Natural Causes Claim Three In Family

Detroit (U.P.) — Three members of a "closely knit" family died Friday of natural causes, two of them after they received word in Wisconsin of the death of the third.

The victims were Raymond A. Chartier, 56, Detroit, his sister-in-law, Theresa Glugla, 67, Antigo, Wis., and her sister, Julia, 54.

Chartier, secretary-treasurer of the National Transit Corp., died in a hospital here. The sisters, who lived together, died of heart attacks within three hours of each other after they were notified of Chartier's death.

A niece of the three said the family was closely knit and the Detroit relatives visited Wisconsin every summer.

Navy Abandons Search For Missing Radioman

Honolulu (U.P.) — The Navy has abandoned its search for Radioman Jerry Caywood of Cincinnati, O., the last of five airmen who parachuted into the ocean from a crippled C-119 Flying Boxcar Wednesday night.

The other four members of the stricken plane's crew were rescued by the Navy seaplane tender USS Floyds Bay Wednesday night and early Thursday.

The intensive sea and air search for Caywood was given up as hopeless Friday, about 40 hours after the abandoned cargo plane plunged into the sea some 650 miles northeast of here.

Paratrooper Turned Woman Breaks Up With New Spouse

Sacramento, Calif. (U.P.) — Tamara, the ex-paratrooper turned "woman" through surgery, broke up with her husband Friday because he "just couldn't stand men ogling" her on the stages of burlesque houses.

Ed Devere, personal manager for Tamara, Edsel Rees Courtland, announced the break in the five-month-old marriage. He said hubby J. E. Courtland III, a former Hollywood hair stylist, was believed on his way to Seattle.

Tamara, once known as Robert Egan Rees, is holder of a half-dozen World War II decorations, including the Purple Heart and bronze star.

But since her "operation," she has been lecturing in burlesque houses on "psychology"—mostly an interpretation of her own experiences.

"She's been doing a little stripping, too," Devere admitted, pointing out that she now gives her "natural" measurements as 35 1/2, 24 and 36.

Devere said the breakup came because Courtland "just couldn't stand men ogling his wife." "Men lusting after her caused him mental concern," Devere said. He wanted her home. He just didn't want her appearing in clubs, that's all.

Devere said Tamara shed womanly tears over the breakup.

The bullet struck him in the forehead. A neighbor, Tony Lipinsky, drove the boy to the Eugene hospital but he died shortly after his arrival there.
