Airliner Sabotage Prevention Studied

Washington — (U.P.)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and other federal officials yesterday discussed various means of preventing sabotage of U.S. airliners.

An announcement from the Civil Aeronautics Administration said that Hoover and the officials discussed various types of preventive action including the careful examination of baggage and the possible development of devices to detect explosives concealed in luggage.

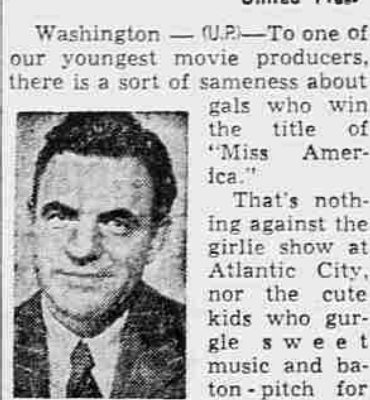

WHERE ELSE?

Louisville, Ky. — (U.P.)—Police were dubious after they searched Mrs. Mary Lehman's three-room apartment but failed to find the burglar she said she saw climbing through a window. Mrs. Lehman didn't give up. She found the man hiding under a bed.

A Nichol's Worth of ... Comment On This and That

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Feature Writer

Washington — (U.P.)—To one of our youngest movie producers, there is a sort of sameness about gals who win the title of "Miss America."

That's nothing against the girl who won the title at Atlantic City, nor the cute kids who gurgled sweet music and baton-pitch for the fame and lasting glory that belongs to the Miss A's.

Samuel Goldwyn Jr. wasn't exactly born on a Hollywood set, but he certainly fell heir to some know-how and a good set of looking-eyes from his illustrious dad, S. Sr.

"It isn't the fault of the girls, or anybody else in particular," young Sam said over coffee. "But most of the beauty contest girls don't have what we are looking for in the movies, exactly. Great feminine beauty comes from the head down to the shoulders. The rest of the body mostly doesn't count too much. I would like to emphasize that there is no quarrel with Atlantic City or the pageant. It's just that the movies are different. A pretty face isn't enough. Ability to act—or to learn to act—is the big thing."

"Take one of the kids who was chosen for a leading role in my movie. I'd like you to meet Karen Sharpe." Karen, a pretty, auburn-haired young lady, lifted her coffee cup in salute. Karen, the young man said, didn't have much to offer but a pretty face and a determination to learn the business.

"She sure did too," Sam Jr. said. Karen, by the way, never entered a beauty contest in her life. Too short for one thing, she said. Measurements didn't add up to the perfect woman either. That didn't hold her back.

The young miss from Texas first got notice from Leon Lance, a talent scout, who happened into a bakery one day. There the slender young miss sold and packaged him some corn bread. She was dishing out pastry part time while she was attending a Hollywood professional school. Lance saw screen possibilities. Pictures followed. Others likely will follow.

Jan Sterling Stars
Karen has her heroines and one of them is Jan Sterling, who is one of the stars in the "Man With the Gun."

"In the picture," she said, "we are supposed to look alike. And we do a little bit. But even though the movie was made in black and white, she—the real star—insisted on dyeing her hair the color of mine. Thought it would show up better, even without color. Imagine that!"

"See what I mean in women," the young producer said. "The face is the thing, plus ability. Hollywood is waking up by accepting people as they are and for what they can do. Remember one producer once turned down Clark Gable because his ears were too big. Clark always has been happy because his mama presented him with big ears."

We suppose that a real live sheep trying to sneak into the contest with a wool coat will be disqualified.

As We Live

Family Interests First
In Spite Of Busybodies
There are always "busybodies" who like to manage other people's affairs.

(Q) "I work in an office where there are a number of young married women. I am 18, just out of high school, and I am anxious to make a success of my work as I have a widowed mother and several younger sisters. I feel my mother has been carrying a heavy burden ever since Dad died and I want to help her. I enjoy my work and think my employer likes me. However, the other women are always trying to get me to date some of the men in the office. They tell me not to be so serious, and ask why I don't spend more money on clothes, implying that I am heading for old-maidhood. This makes me very uncomfortable. Should I try to get another job where this won't happen?" J. T.

(A) There are "busybodies" wherever you go and I doubt very much if you could escape from them, even if you went from job to job. Because you are young, inexperienced, and just out of school, these older women are trying to "bring you up" as they think you should be brought up.

It is, of course, disturbing to you to be with people who are constantly criticizing you, either directly or indirectly, and who are trying to get you to do things you do not want to do.

When they try to tell you what to do, such as buying more clothes with the money you earn, don't explain your actions. Merely change the subject. Don't let them see you are upset.

You are very wise and unselfish to put your family's interests first. Don't let anyone persuade you that this is foolish or that you are wasting your youth.

The time will come when you will find the man you want to marry. In the meantime, try to repay your mother for her sacrifices.
