Idaho Governor Favored as GOP Keynote Speaker

Boise—(U.P.)—Gov. Goodwin J. Knight of California said yesterday Idaho's Gov. Robert E. Smylie would make a "splendid choice" for keynote speaker at the 1956 Republican convention in San Francisco.

In a press conference at the Idaho statehouse, the California chief executive said he would be "heartily in favor of Gov. Smylie as keynote speaker" and added he thought it would be "highly in good taste" if the speaker came from the West.

Knight Not Candidate The California governor, who has been mentioned as a presidential possibility if President Eisenhower decides not to run in '56, parried reporters' questions about White House potential among Republicans.

"I am not a candidate for President," he said flatly. Asked about the possibility of Chief Justice Earl Warren throwing his hat in the ring, Knight said, "He (Warren) has said repeatedly he could not. I served for eight years under Mr. Warren as lieutenant governor and I learned he is not given to casual and offhand statements."

"Of course one cannot say what would happen if a tremendous draft were levied against the former governor and now Chief Justice," Knight added.

Vending Machine Hikes Egg Sales

Colon, Mich.—(U.P.)—A rural cousin to the automatic vending machine is paying off in increased egg sales for a gadget-wise farmer near here.

Robert Mowry took several lengths of tubing, a small electric drill motor, a conveyor belt and other spare parts and pieced together a contraption that enables egg customers to serve themselves from a drive-in dispenser.

Neuberger Claims Wild Charges Made

Portland — (U.P.) — Sen. Richard L. Neuberger yesterday said Rep. Clare Hoffman (R-Mich.) was making "wild charges" of politics in connection with the current Congressional hearing into federal timber policies.

Sen. Neuberger, referring to a statement by Rep. Hoffman in Washington, D. C., last week, said the Michigan Republican "should try and document his wild charges" that the hearings were motivated by a desire to discredit the Eisenhower administration.

Neuberger declared that many millowners had predicted shutdowns and labor leaders unemployment unless more federal timber were made available, and that Indian families had complained timber held in trust for them was being sold too low.

The Oregon Democrat declared the hearings were an "impartial survey" and not a "preconceived scheme to discredit the Eisenhower administration."

A motorist approaching the Mowry farm first sees a sign reading, "In One Minute." The next sign says "You Can Buy," a third sign proclaims the product, "Eggs!"

The prospective egg-buyer then merely pulls up to a tube protruding from the basement of the Mowry home, lifts up the cellophane flap on the tube—and out pops a dozen fresh eggs. On the principle of the honor system, a tray containing small change offers a customer change for a bill.

When the egg carton is removed from the dispenser, the change in weight starts the small drill motor in the Mowry basement. This starts a conveyor belt in motion, which carries another dozen eggs up to the mouth of the tube.

A heating element operating on a thermostat heats the eggs on chilly nights and the Mowrys never put more than one day's supply of eggs on the conveyor at one time. This insures customers always getting farm-fresh eggs for their money.

Parts of the contraption cost Mowry $25. And the customer needn't worry. Since gambling is illegal in Michigan, the machine always pays off.

THEY GOT HIM

St. Paul, Minn.—(U.P.)—Guy L. Trafton's name was drawn for jury duty in district court here twice in less than a month. He had been eligible for jury duty 21 years previously without ever being called. In each case, his name was the 146th drawn from the jury panel from a total of 225.

Two Women Slain; Theft Theorized

New York — (U.P.)—The body of a red-haired beauty specialist and the nude body of a girl customer sprawled clutching a rosary were found in a Jackson Heights Bridge club last night.

Police said the women apparently had been slain during a robbery.

The victims were identified as Marie Gazzo, 32, Fairlawn, N.J., who runs an electrolysis parlor, and Kathleen M. Egan, 25, an American Telephone and Telegraph company clerk, who lived in New York and was to be married in two months.

Police said they found an appointment book, indicating that Miss Egan had an appointment for an electrolysis treatment. The appointment book contained her correct address but listed her under the name of "Ferris." Detectives could give no immediate explanation.

The women's empty pocketbooks were found near the scene of the slayings, pointing toward robbery as a possible motive.

CARNATION UPKEEP

Memphis, Tenn.—(U.P.)—P. K. Seidman, a certified public accountant, figures it has cost him $1,500 to keep a white carnation in his coat lapel over the years. He started sporting a boutonniere at Columbia University. Wearing one got to be a matter of principle because of the ridicule of his classmates. The Navy is responsible for his never wearing a hat. "The Navy took away my flower and made me wear a hat," he explained.

Airliner With Vertical Takeoff Successfully Flown

Moffett Field, Calif. —(U.P.)—A scale-model airliner that can take off and land almost vertically by tipping back its engines has been successfully flown, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics reports.

The revolutionary aircraft was developed by scientists at the committee's Langley laboratory in Virginia as part of the NACA's concerted drive to cut down on the area needed for airports and make landings and takeoffs safer.

Development of the craft was announced at the triennial inspection of the committee's Ames Aeronautical laboratory here. The revolutionary aircraft was developed by scientists at the committee's Langley laboratory in Virginia as part of the NACA's concerted drive to cut down on the area needed for airports and make landings and takeoffs safer.

When the plane is airborne, the wings and engines rotate back to the normal position for conventional flight. The NACA did not reveal the manner by which the wings are turned.

"This principle permits hovering and landings and takeoffs in small space, plus reasonably high performance in cruising flight," the NACA announcement said.

The announcement gave no clue as to when the unusual airplane might be perfected for actual full-scale flight.

The NACA is also continuing research on another type of vertically rising plane. In this type the thrust of the propellers would be deflected downward by turning the vanes that look like a large venetian blind.

The objective is a system which can produce vertical lift while the airplane remains nearly horizontal but which can be retracted to provide a clean wing for normal flight.

A scale model transport using this system has been able to hover, takeoff and land while the fuselage was nosed upward a maximum of 15 degrees from the horizontal.

A third system, one the NACA said offers "much promise" to jets, provides a smooth air flow over the wings at slow speed to retain effective lift. Tests on high speed military fighter planes show it can reduce landing and takeoff speeds by a "significant amount."

Using the jet engine for an air pump, the so-called boundary control system, blows air through the wings of the plane to speed up and smooth out the disturbed air flows over the wing, thus improving the lift effectiveness of simple wing flaps.

Gold Hill Group Gets Chest X-Rays

Thirty-two residents of the Gold Hill area came to Sacred Heart hospital Monday evening for a special Gold Hill x-ray project. This was the first of the outlying communities to participate in the program, to locate an estimated 100 unknown cases of tuberculosis in the county.

Other chest conditions are also revealed through the x-ray.

The first of the Gold Hill contingent arrived at the hospital at 7:20 p.m. and the last film was taken before 8 p.m. leaving plenty of time for other evening activities, according to those in charge.

Mrs. Paul Molloy was in charge of the project and served coffee following the x-rays.

The x-ray unit will be open to the public at Sacred Heart hospital tomorrow from 2 to 5 p.m. The hospital auxiliary provides volunteer help for this program.
