Medford Unit of Health Association Prepares Christmas Seals for Mail

The coming of the holiday season brings the appearance of the annual Christmas seals in the mail. This year, as has been the case each year in the past, Medford unit of the Jackson County Public Health association has been hard at work preparing the seals for distribution to each family and business of the community.

The Medford unit enjoys the unique distinction of being one of the few units in the state of comparable size which uses entirely volunteer help in this project. On an average of 24 local women contributed three hours a week for four weeks in addressing and stuffing the envelopes for delivery. This is approximately a total of 284 hours spent supplying the tuberculosis seals to the townspeople.

Among the women who worked during this period were: Mrs. Reese Alexander, Mrs. Floyd Baker, Mrs. William Barker, Mrs. Charles Barnes, Mrs. Russell Barnes, Mrs. C. H. Barrell, Mrs. L. W. Bates, Mrs. L. C. Burt, Mrs. Norman Capsey, Mrs. Ray Casterline, Mrs. Francis Cheney, Mrs. Roger Clark, Mrs. Sam Colton, Mrs. Fred Conrad, Mrs. Chandler Drew, Mrs. Robert Elliott, Mrs. W. H. Fisher, Mrs. Ray Frisbie, Mrs. Bayard Getchell, Mrs. Sam Gilbert, Mrs. Ivan Harrington, Mrs. R. B.

Knight, Mrs. D. M. Lambert, Mrs. George Lewis, Mrs. Lee Mellish, Mrs. Owen Middlekauf, Mrs. Dick Phair, Mrs. Tom Polk, Mrs. John Price, Mrs. Harvey Robertson, Mrs. George Schuler, Mrs. Ray Sorenson, Mrs. Bruce Stanley, Mrs. Frank Tamney, Mrs. Frank Van Pelt, Mrs. Paul Walker, Mrs. R. E. Watson, Mrs. J. L. Welch.

Lions Auxiliary In Eagle Point Names Director

Eagle Point—Mrs. Stewart Hopper was appointed to the board of directors of the Eagle Point Lions club auxiliary when the group met Tuesday evening at Eaton's dinner house. Mrs. Vern Bonebrake, president, made the appointment and Mrs. Hopper's position fills a vacancy on the board.

Mrs. J. E. Olsen was named as chairman of the kitchen committee to finish the Teenage kitchen. The next board meeting will be held November 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Lee Hayes. Mrs. F. L. Warner Jr. and Mrs. Charles Martin became members during the meeting and Mrs. T. H. Grainger, Maclefield, England, was a visitor. Mrs. Grainger is visiting for the winter months with a daughter, Mrs. Mark Hoeft, at Eagle Point.

Two Lessons Given For Howard Unit; Visitor Attends

Howard Extension unit met Thursday, in Harmony hall of Friends' church for lessons on basket weaving and gift wrapping.

Mrs. Chester Peterson and Mrs. Verl Walker opened the meeting at 10:30 a.m. with the "eye-opener" gift wrapping lesson. Members had brought packages wrapped in their favorite style, and each told how they had wrapped their package and for what occasion it was intended. The leaders assisted those present in learning to tie colorful bows from sashen ribbon.

Mrs. Henry Friesen directed the basket weaving lesson in the afternoon session. Members made a variety of products from reeds, including flat trays and baskets, round baskets and mats.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. J. S. Lydiard, Mrs. John Benson and Mrs. William H. Seibert. The tables were decorated with contoneaster berries and baskets of fall fruits. Mrs. Ernest Gleason, unit chairman, conducted the business meeting. Twenty-four members and one visitor, Mrs. R. George from Los Angeles, a guest of her cousin, Mrs. L. R. Bailey, attended the meeting.

Dead line Sunday Classified is at noon Saturday; 10 a.m. Monday for Monday; other days 5:30 previous day.

Time Versus Money Values Surveyed on Food Question

Pullman—Which is more valuable, time or money? Miss Lila B. Dickerson, Washington State College Extension home management specialist, says this is a question that mothers and working wives frequently ask themselves. Most often, she adds, it's in connection with foods. The problem is whether to buy more expensive ready processed foods and save time, or buy raw or partially processed "makings" for meals and save money.

A recent study of this problem, she says, has just been made by researchers in the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. She offers this interpretation of the results.

With ready-to-serve foods, all meals for a day take about an hour and a half to prepare. A day's meals from partially-prepared foods take about 3 hours. It takes about 5 hours a day to prepare meals using food bought raw, separate ingredients for baking, and other items given a minimum of commercial processing. That's the situation as to time saved. Menus were the same for all three approaches.

Here's the cost picture: A day's food for four persons cost $6.70 at chain store prices in Washington, D. C., for menus using ready-to-serve items. The same menu using partially-prepared foods cost $5.80 for four persons for a day's food. The same menu cost $4.90 to prepare when the cook did all possible work for herself. That means a saving of 90 cents for meals using partially-prepared foods, and $1.80 saving for the meals made practically from "scratch" by the cook.

The point each homemaker has to decide for herself, Miss

Dickerson says, is whether a money saving of $1.80 is more important than a time saving of 3½ hours.

There is a considerable difference among families, of course, as to relative emphasis put on saving time and money. One homemaker participating in the study had full care of two small children and did all of her own laundry and cleaning. Her view was that she could not regularly spend as much time as the fully home-prepared meals called for without neglecting other activities more important to her family. Homemakers with paid employment might reach the same conclusion. On the other hand, a homemaker with more time on her hands, might prefer to do more home food preparation to cut the cost.

Window Dummies Lead Hard Life, Say Repair Team

Atlanta — (U.P.) — The shop window mannequin has an age and figure problem too.

Just like the smartly-dressed woman she is supposed to resemble, the window dummy needs her hair done frequently, her face "repaired" with a new coat of cosmetics. Even her figure occasionally must be altered.

This almost real life of shop mannequins means big business for a couple of Atlanta sisters—Mary and Arthreene Carter. They are experts in repairing and remaking old models and manufacturing new ones.

The sisters say there's an art in making a mannequin life-like.

In their original state, the dummies look like bald statues—no eyelashes, eyebrows, hair or facial details.

From these beginnings, the sisters study the "personality" of the model, decide on a hair style and color for a wig, usually following the latest coiffure.

Mary usually makes up the mannequins' faces. First a base coat, then the rouge and lipstick, but in oil paints instead of cosmetics. The Carters use regular finger nail polish base on the mannequins' nails.

Window dummies apparently lead a hard life. The Carters say they need repairs about every six months. An expensive model will last 20 or 30 years, but most models are "old" after 10 years.

The sisters say their career has led them to many amusing experiences. One of their favorites is the time a tire blew while they were delivering several mannequins. They had to unload the undraped figures and put them alongside the road while they changed the tire.

It wasn't long until police arrived, sirens blaring, to investigate what appeared to be a terrible accident.

Cook Chicken by Cut Food Specialist Says

Madison, Wis. — (U.P.) — Chicken, like the red meats, should be cooked according to the cut. University of Wisconsin food specialists say.

Meaty pieces can be broiled, broiled or barbecued. But the back, neck and wings don't offer enough meat and are difficult to eat when cooked by any of these dry heat methods.

The "bargain cuts" of chicken should be cooked with moisture. Cover with water and add chopped onion, celery, and herbs for flavor. Simmer for about an hour or until the meat easily flakes off the bone. Use the broth for soup or thicken for use on dumplings or toast.

The pre-cooked bony pieces and broth also can be canned in a pressure cooker for later use in chicken a la king, salads or sandwich fillings.

North Yarmouth, Me. — (U.P.) — Mrs. Dorothea Doughty was mighty proud of the five apple pies she had baked for a church social until she discovered that the white substance she poured into the filling was salt and not sugar.
