

Democrats Demand Prosecutions in Dixon-Yates Contract Controversy

Kefauver Plans Additional Probe Of 'Wrongdoing'

Washington—(AP)—Democrats today kept alive the Dixon-Yates issue by demanding prosecutions in the controversy and promising additional investigations.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler demanded that the administration prosecute officials responsible for what he called the "now-admitted wrongdoing" involved in the abandoned power contract.

Butler said the Dixon-Yates matter would provide a "real test of Republican promises to deal vigorously with any misconduct in government."

His statement was prompted by the Atomic Energy Commission's announcement Wednesday night that it considers the contract invalid.

The AEC said there was a possible violation of the conflict of interest law in negotiating the contract and that it would pay no cancellation costs on it unless ordered to do so by a court.

Kefauver Pledges Probe
Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), chairman of a Senate subcommittee investigating the Dixon-Yates matter, said that the AEC's action is "not the end of the fight."

He said his group will "continue our investigation of the connection between the Eisenhower administration and the private power lobbies."

The AEC said the possible violation involved the activities of Adolphe H. Wenzell, New York investment banker who acted both as consultant to the government and as an official of the firm which handled Dixon-Yates financial arrangements.

Butler said that in view of the AEC's finding the administration should explain why President Eisenhower and Budget Director Rowland Hughes said they regarded Wenzell's role in the contract negotiations as proper.

Butler Hails Opposition
Butler said "the two-year fight of the Democrats to stop the Dixon-Yates deal is a splendid example of how a vigilant opposition can serve the public interest."

Blocking the deal saved the taxpayers more than $100,000,000 in excess power costs, and now there should be another $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 saving of cancellation fees because of

Pentagon Houses 30,000 Population; Self-Sufficient

Washington—(AP)—The Pentagon, world's largest office building, housing a daytime population of 30,000, is about as self-sufficient as a city.

It feeds, clothes and shelters its inhabitants with facilities that include banking service, medical and dental clinics, post office, barber shop, uniform and tailoring shop, shoe repair shop, railway and airline ticket office, dry cleaning and laundry shop, florist, bakery and jewelry store.

Feeding employees in its many restaurants, cafeterias and snack bars is a tremendous task—they consume 60,000 pounds of food and 30,000 cups of coffee a day.

This huge hunk of steel, concrete and glass has 65,000 light fixtures which require 1,000 bulbs as replacements each day. Operation and maintenance of the building uses the services of 600 persons, including carpenters, painters, electricians, locksmiths and mechanics.

Security Sections
Cleaning the five acres of windows employs a crew of 10 washers a day. It takes them about one month to clean every window in the place, and then they start in all over again.

Security precautions restrict many segments of the Pentagon to the general public. This includes the place occupied by the joint chiefs of staff, which is about the closest guarded section in the building.

Over 170 security officers roam the hallways, carefully screening and escorting visitors.

The nerve center of the United States, the Pentagon has led a stormy life since it was completed in January, 1943. It is still the butt of jokes and is considered by many to be a "white elephant."

Critics of this five-sided building predicted that after World War II it would become useless and a financial drain on the government. Now filled to overflowing, it is said to be the most efficiently used government building.

It is estimated that it will pay for itself in six to 12 years, based on the rental of an equivalent area of Washington office space.

ings if they weren't centralized in the Pentagon.

Its history dates back to 1941 when the old War Department was spread out in 68 different buildings. Congress was talked into voting about $35,000,000, but wartime labor and material costs almost doubled the original appropriation.

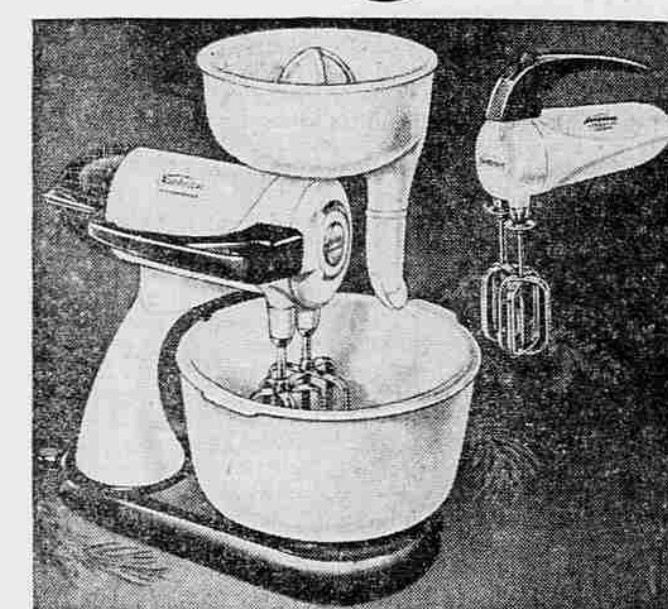

The superstructure was completed in less than two years with thousands of workers maintained at a 24-hour schedule. Some 300 architects worked on the designing alone.

Erected at an estimated cost of $73,000,000, it has three times the floor space of the Empire State building in New York City. In fact, the national Capitol would fit into any of its five wedge-shaped sections.
