

Many Visit For Holidays; Others Return

Traditionally the time when families get together, Thanksgiving day brought many visitors to the valley. Most of them will remain for the entire week end, while others will be returning home from gatherings elsewhere.

Joe Francis, Oregon State college football team halfback, is a houseguest this week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Neathamer, 119 Jeanette street. He accompanied the Neathamers' daughter, Miss Dixie Lee Neathamer, from Corvallis, where she also is a student.

Mr. Francis is from Honolulu, Hawaii, and has been selected as a member of the second team for All-Coast football honors.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Hamaker, Horse Creek, Calif., with their two children, are visiting in the valley this week with numerous relatives. In Medford they have been guests of Mrs. Marion Smith, Mrs. Hamaker's sister, 215 North Columbus avenue. On Thanksgiving day they attended a family dinner at the home of Mr. Hamaker's mother, Mrs. J. B. Noble, and Mr. Noble, Jacksonville. Today they are observing his birthday at a dinner at the home of his sister, Mrs. Milton James, and Mr. James, also in Jacksonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Hackert, Albany, Ore., are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Calhoun, Camp Baker road. On Thanksgiving day they were guests in Jacksonville of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hackert, South Oregon street.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Allen Jr. and daughters, Kathleen and Jean, 48 Windsor avenue, were to return today from Berkeley, Calif., where they spent Thanksgiving with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Gilbert, and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrus Smith and children, Milton and Sharon; Mr. and Mrs. Marion Smith and daughter, Sylvia, and Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Smith, all of Medford, were dinner guests yesterday at the home of the men's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton C. Smith, Jacksonville.

'Pinto' Colvig, Wife Visit Relatives Through Holidays

Among the many interesting visitors to the valley for the Thanksgiving holidays are Mr. and Mrs. Vance DeBar Colvig I, of Hollywood, Calif. Mr. Colvig is more popularly known as "Pinto," a name which he received through the many years he has spent in show business. He was born and raised in Jacksonville.

This is Mrs. Colvig's first trip to the valley. In addition to seeing numerous relatives of Mr. Colvig, they are making trips about the valley and visiting in Jacksonville.

Mr. Colvig in particular popularized the character, "Bozo, the Clown."

They were guests at a family dinner Thanksgiving day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Warner, 519 South Oakdale avenue, a brother-in-law and sister. Another sister, Mrs. Helen Colvig Cook, Portland, arrived Wednesday evening for the family gathering. The Colvigs came by plane Tuesday evening and will leave the first of the week.

Visit Aunt. Included in their visits about the valley is one to the pioneer Birdseye home north of Gold Hill on the Rogue river, to see his aunt, Mrs. Effie Birdseye.

Mr. Colvig attended Oregon State college, "where they have three-fourths of a diploma for me with an inch of dust on it," he said in an interview Thanksgiving day. "I never could seem to make it through the month of May," he said, explaining why he never quite graduated.

The first time he put on white makeup to impersonate a clown was at Lewis and Clark exposition in Portland in 1905. For a time he did newspaper work and another of his interests was cartooning. His first cartoon was published in the Medford Mail Tribune in the "early 1900's."

Cartoonists, he said, are all clowns at heart, but "they do it the lazy way."

Always Called. So, no matter what serious interests Mr. Colvig had, always the call to clown was forecast and he'd take to the road again.

He is under contract to Capitol records for which he furnishes "animal voices." He also works for Walt Disney pictures and through the years has done "Grumpy" and "Sleepy" in Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs; "Goofy," the "practical pig," in the Three Little Pigs, and many others. "Why they picked me to be the practical pig I'll never know, for I am so impractical," the entertainer said in his jovial manner.

National AAUW Leader Receives Federal Post. The only woman to be appointed to the bipartisan commission which will review the Federal security program for government employees is Dr. Susan B. Riley, Nashville, Tenn., immediate past president of the American Association of University Women.

News of Dr. Riley's appointment was received today by Mrs. Emerson Anderson, president of the Medford AAUW branch. The 12 members of the commission on government security were appointed by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Vice-President Richard Nixon, and House Speaker Sam Rayburn. Dr. Riley's appointment was made by Vice-President Nixon, at the suggestion of Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson.

This assignment is not Dr. Riley's first call to serve on a Federal body. She has been a member of the Citizens Advisory Council for the Foreign Operations administration.

A professor of English at George Peabody college for Teachers in Nashville, Dr. Riley had long been active in AAUW before her election to a four-year term as national president in 1951.

New Fur-Like Synthetics Just Like Nature's Product

New York—(U.P.)—The day will come when a woman asks her furrier—"Is it real mink or synthetic?"

For thanks to man's skill in the laboratory, new fur-like synthetics are coming to market. And the makers say the test-tube product looks as much like fur as the real thing. Also, it's cheaper.

They haven't perfected the mink yet. It still is in the experimental stage. But you can buy synthetic beaver, sealskin and persian lamb, which the industry says are so much like nature's own product they demand the same care except for the need of cold storage in hot weather.

The man-made furs are combinations of orlon and dnyel, or all dnyel. The manufacturers say the new furs not only have the deep pile but also the feel and sheen of the natural product.

At least three big fabric houses are in the man-made fur business on a large scale. The George W. Borg Corp. says its product is "more like fur than fur itself."

Another, Princeton Knitting Mills, is making white, platinum and nutria-colored beaver, black and brown seal and black persian lamb. S. B. Silverman of Princeton says breath-of-spring mink is in the laboratory stage.

"We will have some mink on the market by late fall," said Silverman. "And the day is coming when a woman will take her choice of the synthetic or the real thing."

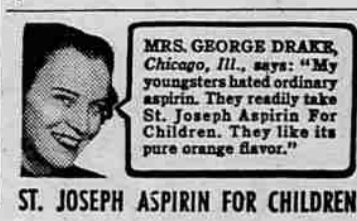

Another firm, Sidney Blumenthal and Co., last year made imitation ermine and mink from rayon. But Robert Swett, an executive of the firm, said they were "fun furs" and actually weren't intended to ape nature's own. He said the difficulty in producing synthetic mink is in getting realistic shadings of the fur. But he agreed with Silverman that test-tube mink is on its way.

Designers In On Play. Silverman said several of the nation's top designers already are working with the synthetic furs for their fall collections—Vera Maxwell, Bonnie Cashin, Greta Plattry, Emily Wilkens and Claire McCardell, to name a few.

What effect will the synthetics have on woman's desire for genuine fur? Silverman said the synthetics aren't trying to compete with the real thing... just supplement it. A woman might want to own a real beaver coat, but want to add to her "fur" wardrobe with a cape, muff or cardigan of the man-made product. "One thing we accept," said Silverman, "when a woman has her heart set on a mink coat, she's not likely to settle for a synthetic."

MRS. GEORGE DRAKE, Chicago, Ill., says: "My youngsters hated ordinary aspirin. They readily take St. Joseph Aspirin For Children. They like its pure orange flavor."
