The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez
Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

years' experience just wrote to thank me for the column on the children who cannot learn to read properly because of some defect in their nervous system. As she said, "Poor kids; it is heart-breaking to see them mentored by their playmates and constantly scolded by their parents. Because their I.Q.'s are above average, usually the parents and the teachers are sure that the child could read if he would only make the effort. Because he cannot read, his schoolmates call him a dummy. But he isn't a dummy. How he needs our sympathy and understanding."

Why cannot we intelligent people some day learn that we all haven't the same faculties? Some of us are gifted and some are handicapped. Why can't we see that a Yehudi Menuhin can be playing in Carnegie Hall when he is a boy, while another person is unable even to hum a tune?

I marvel at the way in which the great physicist, Enrico Fermi, taught himself higher mathematics by the time he was 12, and made himself famous as a research worker by the time he was 17. And here I am, unable to add a column of figures without making mistakes!

Here I make a plea for all children who have trouble spelling, or reading, or writing with their right hand. Let us all be patient and kindly with such children: We do not all of us have the same inborn gifts. On some of us at birth the fairies showered gifts, while with others they were niggardly, or they gave a great gift and then failed to give the desire to use it or the will to work hard and develop it.

Peace Promised At Westinghouse

Columbus, O. (U.P.)—Union officials promised "peaceful" picket lines when 200 back-to-work employees attempt to march past 2,000 pickets at the Westinghouse Electric Corp. plant here today.

The back-to-work movement centered around a group calling itself the "Westinghouse Telephone Committee" whose members were scheduled to return to work this morning.

In New York City, meanwhile, negotiations were scheduled to resume today in an attempt to settle the six-week-old strike which has idled some 40,000 workers.

The local group asked protection from the Franklin county sheriff's office and Gov. Frank J. Lausche against possible violence. Some 4,500 are employed here.

An official of Local 746, International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO), said a strike "captain" would be on duty at each plant gate to guard against possible violence. Another union official said an attempt would be made to "stall cars entering the plant" without resorting to violence.

Portuguese Minister Visits U. S., Canada
New York—(U.P.)—Portuguese Minister Paulo Cunha arrived today on a two week good will visit to the United States and Canada.

Cunha will visit California in addition to paying officials calls at Washington and Ottawa, the Canadian capital.

Cunha said before leaving Lisbon last night the visit "will serve to strengthen further already strong ties between Portugal and the United States and Canada."
