Christian Science Subject of Lecture By J.H. McReynolds

Happiness and peace of mind are gained through love for God and respect for His law, James Harry McReynolds, Dallas, Tex., said in a public lecture at the Medford High school auditorium last night. McReynolds spoke on an invitation from the Medford First Church of Christ Scientist.

McReynolds said the lack of obedience of the first commandment, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," is the source of all fears, mistakes and failures. McReynolds is on an extended tour as a member of the Christian Science board of lectureship. He spoke on the subject, "Christian Science: The Way of Obedience to Divine Law."

"The straight line of obedience to the first commandment. . . . is the quickest as well as the only effective way to overcome any inharmonious condition or successfully achieve any legitimate purpose," McReynolds said.

Fallacious Propaganda

He described as fallacious propaganda the contention that peace is not possible between men and nations. Permanent peace will be found to be practical, he said, "when we come to have faith in God, divine love, and are willing to exalt and uphold peace instead of half-heartedly supporting it."

Man's ability to cope with hardships, disappointments, and suffering is proportionate to his loving obedience to the unchanging law of God, McReynolds said.

"Peace of mind is never attained at the expense of others, but true enjoyment and satisfaction comes through obedience and righteousness." Spiritual understanding of God is essentional to peace of mind as well as peace in the world, McReynolds maintained.

McReynolds said that when mankind learns that God is wholly good, divine life, truth and love, he will have no difficulty in turning to God for help, guidance and support.

Neuberger Criticizes Idaho Power Permit

Washington—(U.P.)—Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.), said yesterday that development of Hells Canyon power by the Idaho Power Company could bring "economic stagnation" to the entire Pacific Northwest.

In a statement issued by his office here, Neuberger criticized the administration for approving the Idaho Power Company plan instead of backing a federal project in Hells Canyon.

He said this decision "threatens the entire Pacific Northwest with the economic stagnation that has occurred in Idaho under the reign of that company."

Neuberger said Idaho Power had the "highest rate structure" of any major company in the Pacific Northwest and charged that this had retarded Idaho's growth.

Eisenhower Issues Order for Conduct

Gettysburg, Pa.—(U.P.)—President Eisenhower has issued an order requiring unpaid government consultants to "abide by the same high standards of ethical conduct which are demanded of all government officials."

The order tightens up the so-called "conflict of interest laws." It applies to those officials who advise the government on defense production matters.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said it would apply to such cases as that of Adolphe Wenzell, who acted as adviser to the Budget Bureau while a member of a New York bank which advised the Dixon-Yates combine on a since cancelled government contract.

Quotes From the News

By UNITED PRESS

New York—Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, former editor and publisher of La Prensa, on the decision of the Argentine government to return the confiscated newspaper to its rightful owners:

"It is wonderful news for all of us who have worked, and will work again, on the newspaper which served Argentina from 1869 to 1951. I believe all my countrymen will consider the return of La Prensa good news for them, too, because a part of our great national tradition is the people's right to know what only a free press can tell them."

Madras, India — Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin in a pronouncement against Portuguese colonialism designed to win Russian support in India:

"There is no justification by which any foreign country still has territory in India."

Gettysburg, Pa. — Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall on possible other candidates should President Eisenhower not run again in 1956:

"So far as I am concerned, there is no other candidate."

Washington—Mine Workers leader John L. Lewis on the need for policing union welfare funds:

"If some of these organizations would abandon their holier than thou attitude and forget what they are trying to do for the rest of the world and put their own house in order, welfare funds might have a better chance to survive."

Washington—President Eisenhower on the classroom shortage problem in the nation's schools:

"The private citizen, the locality, the state and the federal government all have a function to perform, all have a responsibility to meet."

Berlin—Rep. Harold C. Ostertag (R.-N.Y.) on being held at gunpoint with three other persons by Communist police in East Berlin:

"It caught us completely by surprise. As time went on we became more and more alarmed as to what might happen to us ultimately."

Paris—Premier Edgar Faure replying to a well-wisher before he went before the National Assembly for a vote of confidence:

"It isn't customary for the corpse to reply to a funeral oration."

Portland Man Named CIO State President

Portland — (U.P.) — Francis R. Lenaburg, Portland, yesterday scored an upset victory over incumbent Jess Bell to become state president of the CIO.

Lenaburg, a member of 5-92 of the International Woodworkers of America, piled up 2264 votes in mail balloting to 1661 for Bell, a Portland representative of the clothing workers.

George Brown, veteran executive secretary, was reelected without opposition.

Chosen for executive board positions were Willis Carver, Portland; Charles Rilea, Forest Grove; Hal Geiger, Klamath Falls; Michael Burkhartsmeier, Portland; Kenneth Smith, Portland, and John Ball, Sweet Home.

Rogue River Man Returns From European Employment

Rogue River—Robert B. Worrall, 29, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Worrall, Rogue River, recently arrived here to visit for several weeks with his parents after spending the last year and a half in Europe.

Young Worrall, a 1952 graduate of the Harvard graduate school of business administration where he received his M.A. degree, decided he wanted to see Europe after completing school and before settling down to steady employment.

He and a friend went to England by boat, and soon landed positions with the Bata Develpment Ltd., of London, one of the world's largest shoe companies. They were with the firm for several months, and during that time organized a conference of shoe dealers from all over the world, held in Switzerland. Their headquarters were in London.

To Germany

They stayed with the English company for seven months, and then decided they wanted to see more of the continent and moved to Germany. Job opportunities there were scarce, he reported, because of restrictive labor permit regulations, and because of the langauge barrier. But they finally got employment in the office of the retail merchandise manager of the European exchange system, which operates U.S. armed forces PXs throughout Europe. This gave Worrall a chance to travel rather extensively in Europe.

He returned to this country last month by boat, and drove a new car west from Detroit for an Oregon dealer. He has been at his parent's home for several weeks, but plans to go job-hunting in San Francisco soon.

Previously he was a civilian employee of the Navy in Hawaii, and served in the Army for two years, before attending college.

Skeleton in Desert Identified as Accountant

Palm Springs, Calif.—(U.P.)—A skeleton of a man found in the desert near here Saturday by hikers has been identified as Roland Bishop, 51, Redlands accountant missing since May 1954.

Sheriff's officers said Bishop apparently met foul play. The skull had been crushed with some type of heavy instrument or a rock, the sheriff's office said.
