OUT OF THE WOODS
by JIM STEVENS

The Paul Bunyan Shipwreck
The immortal story of the sinking of the Titanic in the midnight time of Sunday, April 14-15, 1912, has been told in many various ways. Never before have I read it in such a gripping record of hard-and-fast facts as in the new book, "A Night to Remember," by Walter Lord.

Just the bare facts of the colossal shipwreck stump the imagination. The Titanic was 882 1/2 feet long, 92 1/2 feet wide, 175 feet from keel to funnel tops, and she weighed 46,328 gross tons. "God Himself couldn't sink her," boasted one of her crew.

Then she sideswiped an iceberg on a midnight time of blazing stars and dead-calm sea. With a 300-foot gash in her hull, she sank. Two hours and 40 minutes after the collision she foundered and dived, taking 1,502 human lives with her.

The Brave Baker
One man, Chief Baker Charles Joughin, rode the stern from 150 feet above the water in the start of the dive, as Walter Lord narrates it. The man was quite at ease, having fortified himself in all respects with the best Scotch on the ship. Life belt on, he had toiled steadily to start women and children first on the way to rescue.

Mrs. Truman found the $20 near the entrance to the post office.

Sainburg telephoned the girl's grandfather, Neal Smith, from Hobbs, N. M., late Saturday night and said, "You will never see her again" if kidnaping charges are not dropped.

Sainburg allegedly kidnaped his son from a school in Ithaca, N.Y., Nov. 14. A district court at Longview ordered him jailed for refusing to return the boy.

Press Censorship in Brazil 'Temporary'

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil—(U.P.)—Acting President Nereu Ramos has told the Inter-American Press association that press censorship in Brazil was only a "temporary emergency measure."

Decorations Erected At CP Rural Station

Central Point—Central Point Rural Fire Protection district's fire hall is decorated for the Christmas season with a row of colored lights around it.

Firemen assembled the lights and put them up yesterday. Funds for the materials came from persons grateful for the firemen's efforts during the Blackwell hill and Table Rock fires of Labor day week.

The money given to the firemen to spend for themselves included one major donation of $50 by a man who felt the firemen should "have a dinner on him." Firefighters, however, decided to spend the money for something the public could also enjoy.

Fire Chief Richard Krupp said that the decorations were not quite completed yesterday. It is planned to add to the materials each year.
