

Neuberger Raps Proposed River 'User Charges'

Portland—(U.P.)—Two days of hearings by a Congressional subcommittee on the Hoover Commission's water and power resources report ended here yesterday and the group moved to Los Angeles.

Proposed river "user charges" came under fire yesterday by Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.). He said he considered this a blow at public power development because of the connection between navigation and power development in multipurpose dams. "The private utilities hope to discourage both navigation and power projects because power and navigation are twin results of river development, and an increase in federal power is regarded as a threat to monopolies in this field," he said.

State Control Threatened

Lewis Stanley, state engineer, said Oregon felt that a U. S. Supreme Court decision giving Portland General Electric company a go-ahead to build Pelton dam threatened state control of water rights. He asked the subcommittee to support legislation assuring state sovereignty over its non-navigable waters.

Vivan Janes, assistant superintendent of Tacoma City Light, urged legislation for "partnership" power construction and sale of present such facilities to regional public bodies. He said Washington was holding the city's proposed Cowlitz river dams.

Sufficient Approval Doubted

Allan Smith, attorney for Pacific Power and Light, said private utilities are interested in continued federal construction of power projects but that he doubted Congress would approve all that was needed in the next 10 years.

The Hoover report recommended creation of a national water resources board and that the government build power projects that were beyond capabilities of local areas. It also recommended against overlapping jurisdiction of several agencies in the field.

Thornton Rules on Subdivision Layouts

Salem—(U.P.)—The governing body, or county court, may adopt subdivision regulations governing laying out of blocks, streets and alleys—including width and location of streets—without prior authorization by voters of the county, Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton ruled today.

He gave his opinion in response to a question by Marion county District Attorney Kenneth E. Brown.

Building codes may likewise be enacted by the county court without such prior authorization, he said.

However, if a favorable vote of the people has been made on the question of the enactment of zoning and land use regulations by the county court, the powers of the county court in adopting subdivision regulations would be broadened to permit including requirements to provide for adequate water supply, sewage and drainage, recreation and other such needs.

Union Blacklist of Solons Said Planned

New York—(U.P.)—Henry G. Riter, III, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, today charged the new AFL-CIO planned to send a "union blacklist" of congressmen to its 16,000,000 union members.

He loosed a blast at the recent merger of the two big labor organizations in an address kicking off the 60th Congress of American Industry.

Riter told 3000 top industrialists from all over the nation that the union merger was a threat to the basic American concept of "individual freedom and individual responsibility."

Operations of Tank Learned in Bird Cage

Ft. Knox, Ky.—(U.P.)—An $18,000 bird cage.

The Armored Training Center here has a cage constructed out of wire mesh and steel tubing into which three men crawl to learn the operations of a tank.

The tank crew trainees can operate gun controls, radio found in the average Army tank, while the wire mesh makes it possible for the instructor to observe his pupils in action.
