

Greece Pulls All But 10 Men Out of Korea Units
 Seoul, Korea — (U.P.) — About 180 men comprising the Greek Expeditionary forces went home on Sunday, leaving a 10-man contingent to represent Greece in the United Nations command. The withdrawal reduced the once powerful 16-nation Allied fighting force in Korea to two American divisions, a British Commonwealth division, a battalion of Turks, a company of Thais and a small force of Ethiopians.

Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY
 Hollywood — (U.P.) — Yul Brynner, bald head and all, is expected to sizzle the nation's females next year as a new type of screen Romeo. But the actor yawns he'd rather be a director. Brynner's gleaming pate will decorate two of Hollywood's biggest 1956 films, "The Ten Commandments" and "The King and I." Both roles are designed to make him a threat to the young romantic Rocks and Tabs of Hollywood.

But for Brynner's next film he wants a story he can both direct and star in—or just direct. "Directing is for me the most fascinating work," he decided today as he walked his German Shepherd dog around the 20th Century-Fox stage between scenes of "The King and I." "I'm watching for both acting and directing chances. In fact, when Fox asked me to do "The King and I," I suggested I direct it."

Brynner rhymes with winner hopes his next movie will be modern. He rose to stardom in "The King and I" on Broadway and hasn't been back to hair and charcoal gray suits since. For four years he played the king on the stage in those Siamese draped pants and now he's repeating the familiar role for the screen.

His only break from the part came when he starred in Cecil B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments." As Ramses he swept about in short skirts, magnificent gold-lined capes and without hair. "If a part requires it, I would shave my head again," he insisted. "I have no feeling about my looks."

"I've been shaving my head every day since 1951, except last summer when I was home on vacation and was too lazy." Is in Old Movie
 Fans who wish to see Brynner with hair can spot him in his old movie now making the rounds on television, "Port of New York." Despite his 1,500 performances as the king, Brynner is not bored with repeating the lines, this time to Deborah Kerr, who sings for the first time in the role of the late Gertrude Lawrence created on the stage. The film, he says, will be "less stylized" than the play—and more lavish. The colorful set of the harem quarters alone put the studio back $60,000. In one scene are 25 Siamese harem girls in beautiful costumes costing $300 to $650 each, designed by the famed Irene Sharaff.

Lie Tests Slated for Suspects in Slaying Of Nebraska Student

Omaha, Neb. — (U.P.) — Police announced today they planned to give lie detector tests to two suspects in the killing of Carolyn Marie Nevins, pretty University of Omaha honor student. One of the men, a 35-year-old former cab driver, was described as the best suspect yet in the three-day-old investigation. The other was a 26-year-old Negro, whose alibi was undergoing a close check by detectives. Inspector Ernest Brown said much more checking remained to be done before formal charges could be filed against either man. He kept his entire force on an around the clock hunt for clues. Body Found Saturday
 The bullet-riddled body of the brunette honor student was found on the university campus early Saturday. She had been shot four times, either late Friday night or early Saturday. Police were convinced it was a sex slaying. Carolyn's clothing was disarranged, her shoes were found 40 feet from the body, and her panties were 30 feet away. The girl was last seen waiting for a bus in front of a university building at about 11:15 p.m. (CST) Friday. Two witnesses said she was talking to a tall Negro. Detective Inspector Ernest Brown, investigating the former cab driver's alibi, said he had learned from the man's daughter that he had been away from home until after 11 p.m. Friday. Leaves Compared Leaves found in the man's car were compared with leaves in the campus area and police were also considering whether to give the man a lie test. He has agreed to take such a test, Brown said. The murdered girl, who recently won a local Masonic beauty contest, had left her part time job in the student library at 10 p.m. Her father, an insurance executive, had planned to meet her, but was late.

"Clever gal, my Carol!"

► I'm tickled pink with the smart way my Carol handles her housework. Take wood floors for instance. Most gals complain about all that scrubbing and waxing. But not my Carol! She cleans and waxes them in one easy operation with Bruce Cleaning Wax. It takes her half the time and a lot less elbow grease. And we've yet to have a guest who hasn't commented on our beautiful wood floors. My Carol and her Bruce Cleaning Wax really make easy work of a hard job. I'm mighty pleased with both of them.
