

Some 246,000 Trees Planted in National Forest This Winter

Planting of 246,000 seedling trees on 363 acres of cutover land is being completed this month in Rogue River National Forest. Present plans call for larger number of trees to be planted next spring.

Trees planted this fall include 80,000 Douglas fir, 120,000 sugar pine, and 46,000 ponderosa pine. Sugar pine are planted in the blister rust control unit in the area north of Prospect, where they will be protected from blister rust disease.

Age of Trees

Trees for planting in the Rogue River Forest are between one and three years old and are grown at Forest service nurseries at Carson, Wash., Bend, Ore., and McCloud, Calif., usually from tree seed collected from seed cones of parent trees in Rogue national forest.

Most of the planting being done this year is on areas from which timber has been harvested recently by patch-cutting.

In some instances broadcast scattering of tree seed is substituted for tree planting. Douglas fir seed-scattering by airplane is planned for 200 acres near Middle Fork of Rogue river where forest fires occurred in September. Seed is treated with a rodent repellent to protect it from mice and other seed-eating rodents.

More Economical

Costs of seed protection from rodents, and other causes of tree crop failure, make it more economical in many instances to grow the trees in nurseries for hand planting. Scarcity of tree seed also favors the tree-planting method.

Improved practices have contributed to survival of up to 500 trees per acre in most local forest areas. Foresters believe about 400 young trees per acre will assure a satisfactory future crop if well spaced.

Portions of patch-cut or burned areas often reproduce naturally from seed produced by surrounding uncut trees, especially along south and west borders, or steeper slopes below the uncut timber stands. Planting or artificial seeding is done in areas where natural seeding cannot be expected to produce a new crop naturally within reasonable time limits.

OSC Dormitory Plans Authorized

Portland—(U.P.)—The State Board of Higher Education yesterday authorized President A. L. Strand of Oregon State College to put architects to work on plans for a second student dormitory unit.

One men's dormitory is in preliminary planning stage at OSC. Strand's request that architects bring in plans for a project for married students also received tentative approval.

Dr. Strand said there are 1100 married students at OSC.

The board also gave tentative approval to drawings for a one million dollar student center at Portland State College.

The board authorized President Elmo Stevenson of Southern Oregon College of Education to hire an architect to draw plans for a men's dormitory.

Also approved were preliminary plans for a proposed physics and chemistry building at Oregon State, money for which will be asked of the next legislature.

The new teaching hospital building in Portland will be occupied March 1, it was announced.

Medford Hospital To Receive Benefits

Portland—(U.P.)—The way has been cleared for federal approval of $776,082 in additional Hill-Burton act grants in Oregon during the present fiscal year, the State Board of Health said today.

Dr. Harold M. Erickson, state health officer, said the way was cleared by federal approval of the 1956 revision of the Oregon plan for construction of hospitals and public health centers.

He said hospitals in Portland, Medford, Hood River, Newport and Prairie City were scheduled to benefit from the action.

The plan provides that $1 in federal funds can be granted for every $2 of local money for approved hospital construction projects. Since the act was passed in 1947, it has helped in construction of more than $20,000,000 worth of new or remodeled facilities in Oregon.

Dr. Erickson said the 1956 revision of the state plan establishes priorities for communities throughout Oregon which the board follows in determining how available funds are to be allocated.

British Army Goods Said Going To Middle East

London—(U.P.)—The Foreign Office has admitted that dealers in surplus British army stores are selling modern army equipment in the Middle East.

R. H. Turton, Foreign Office under-secretary, told the House of Commons Monday night that "certain reports" have been received that war surplus goods originally intended for export for civilian purposes have been reconditioned as war material.

He said the government was "taking steps" to prevent further consignments being shipped.

Witnesses To See Photo Of Suspect in Murder

Sioux City, Iowa—(U.P.)—Police said they were going to show pictures today of a man being held at Reno to witnesses who may have seen the killer of 2-year-old Donna Sue Davis last July.

The man told authorities he killed the girl, but later backed down on his confession, police said. Sioux City authorities said, however, they still considered the man "the best suspect we've had in a long time."

The girl was abducted from her crib July 10 and her body was found the next afternoon.

Vacationer Has Rough Time Changing $1,000 Bill in Miami Beach Resort Spots

Miami Beach—(U.P.)—An electrical engineer from St. Louis complained today that you can't have much fun in a tourist spot if someone calls the police every time you flash a $1,000 bill.

"This is a fine thing," said Thomas McGinnis, 31. "You'd think in Miami Beach where all the money floats around, a man could change a $1,000 bill without having the cops jump all over him."

Detectives picked up McGinnis in a night club where he was trying to cash the bill. Officers said McGinnis had been going from one night spot to another unsuccessfully trying to cash the greenback.

"This is no racket," McGinnis said. "I'm insulted. When the bartenders declined to cash the bill, I paid them with a few small bills I had on me."

But McGinnis wasn't as eager to surrender the bill to police who booked him on a charge of vagrancy and held him, of course, on $1,000 bond. McGinnis held onto the banknote and called a bondsman to get him out of jail.

"If I'd given it to the police, I'd be stuck with $34 in cash and you can't live on that in a tourist spot," he said.

Police checked McGinnis' story that he had been given the money by a friend when he set out to Florida to get a divorce. They found the money was good.

McGinnis still must go before a judge Wednesday to answer the charges filed against him. But a detective said, "confidentially, there's nothing to hold him on."

U.S.-Red China Peace Talks Asked

New Delhi—(U.P.)—India and Russia today jointly called for high level peace talks between the United States and Communist China.

A mutual declaration by Premier Jawaharlal Nehru of India and visiting Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin praised the four-month-old Geneva talks on the ambassadorial level between the United States and Red China but urged "wider" understanding through meetings at higher levels.

Both premiers "deplored" Red China's lack of membership in the United Nations. They said the "legitimate rights" of Communist China to coastal islands and Formosa "should be satisfied."

Early Dating Shows Happy Home Life

Berkeley, Calif.—(U.P.)—If little Mary starts dating before you think she's ready, don't get angry—she's just reflecting a happy home life.

After studying the relationship between a child's environment and his inclination toward the opposite sex, Dr. Judson T. Landis, University of California sociologist, said that a youngster from a pleasant home will start dating earlier, have more dates and will be generally more successful in boy-girl relations.

The doctor also said there is a distinct association between a youth's dating habits and the marital happiness of his parents.

"The child of a successful marriage," he explained, "lives with a man and woman who have developed good feelings toward the opposite sex. The child accepts what he lives with, and therefore has an advantage in establishing the same type of relationship with the opposite sex."
