Unscreened Turbines Seen Possible Chief Factor in Rogue Fish Run Decline

Unscreened turbines may be the No. 1 factor of decline in fish runs on Rogue river, Cole Rivers, Oregon State Game Commission biologist, told members of the Jackson County chapter of the Izaak Walton league Monday night.

Rivers, who listed catch, floods and disease as other factors affecting fish runs, gave information on fish mortality and damage at Savage Rapids dam. Waltonians seek installation of screens at the site to prevent downstream migrating fish from injury or destruction in the turbines used in pumping water into Grants Pass Irrigation district ditches.

Chapter President Norton Smith listed the screening as one of the main objectives of his administration this year. Construction at the dam has left place for the four screens which reportedly will be required but a special Congressional appropriation is necessary to provide for installation.

Get McKay To Ask
Smith told chapter members at the meeting at Jackson hotel and the Game Commission that the matter is now in the hands of Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay, whom, he said, is familiar and in sympathy with it. The main job, Smith declared, is to get McKay to ask for the money from Congress and then to appeal to Congress.

The president reported that Grants Pass Irrigation district officers are in favor of the screening but cannot afford to finance the installation. He said also it is hoped to get the support of Ashland, Grants Pass and Jackson County Chambers of Commerce. A resolution advocating the screening was passed at the state convention of the IWL last month.

Rivers gave figures from intensive study in 1947, 1948 and 1949 on the north side diversion at Savage Rapids which employs a pumping system to take water into the ditches. From plottings taken from "good samples" it was figured that 210,000 fish were pumped into the two high-line ditches in a season. Because of other information since learned, the figure must be regarded "very conservative," Rivers said. Later tests, he brought out, showed 38 per cent of the fish brought into the ditches were damaged in the process. A sampling indicated 25,000 fish mutilated out of those going through the tailrace back into the river.

$244,000 Loss
The biologist, from information on the years tested, listed $244,000 loss per year from the economy of the valley from fish damage.

Rivers pointed to a material decline in the past 25 years in the fish runs of the Rogue. But he said that one should not get too alarmed concerning the river. Others have declined, also, he said, and a picture of the development of civilization can be seen. By study certain factors can be correlated from the various streams concerning fish runs.

Catch on the Rogue river is being controlled, the biologist mentioned. Bag limits are the protection. Floods have affected salmon particularly with eggs deposited being flooded and washed from the gravel. However, Rivers said, gigantic progress is being made in watershed protection. Logged areas are going back into cover which holds the water.

Picture on disease is just now being gotten, Rivers reported, and disease is not unique to Rogue river. The more that is found out about disease the more that can be planned for control, he pointed out. He reported that most of the mortality this year appeared to be in the mouths of the cooler tributaries where the fish appeared to "hole up."

Pond Weed Harms
Pond weed was given as a cause of fish losses last summer. It thrived because of the lack of a "scouring flood" and choking the river caused stagnant water. Lack of oxygen in the water was figured to have caused some fish deaths.

Unscreened turbines at Ideal Cement company diversion near Gold Hill and at Gold Ray dam were mentioned. Rivers reported an 8 per cent mortality rate among fish going through turbines at Gold Ray and 13 per cent at the other location.

Rivers reported the spring chinook salmon count at Gold Ray as 16,550, lowest in history. He said the summer steelhead was one-half the normal run and gave a Gold Ray count of 1,123. A lot of steelhead holed up at the mouths of cooler tributaries in the lower canyons, however, he stated.

The biologist reported a good trout catch this year, saying the low water helped.

Advantage To Crop
Concerning the ease of catching trout at Fish lake in late season because of the low level of the water, Rivers remarked that it is to advantage to crop off the large fish under the stocking program. He said that the trash fish, roach, are coming back and said that treatment of the lake is being eyed and may be accomplished as soon as 1958.

Charles Shepard, Game Commission field man for the area, reporting on the hunting season in this locality, said that he believes the buck deer kill exceeded 1954 but that the total kill may be lower since the hunter's choice kill along Rogue river apparently was "not enough to do us any good."

The game man said that having the hunter's choice controlled season in September proved not to be successful in harvesting the deer that feed on farmers crops and "kind of defeated our purpose." Shortly after the short controlled season ended, according to Shepard, he began to receive the usual damage complaints. He reported three active cases presently in the Gold Hill area. One man reported 52 deer on his seven acre property. A neighbor listed 28. A third man did not mind to deer browsing on his oats but objected to the trampling.

Must Harvest Deer
"There are just too many agricultural deer and we'll have to harvest them," Shepard declared.

Shepard said that herd composition studies so far have shown a good ratio of bucks to does, 33 per hundred. He indicated a ratio of one buck per doe in the

SEATTLE PACIFIC WINS
Klamath Falls—(U.P.)—Seattle Pacific regained its winning stride last night with an 86-77 basketball victory over Oregon Tech here on the sharpshooting of Bill Marston and Max German, each of whom scored 22 points. Seattle Pacific lost its first game of the season to Pacific Monday night.

Butte Falls area which is heavily poached. Poachers don't discriminate between does and bucks. He called the situation unfortunate and said the area is hard to police because of the many roads in and out of the area.

A good pheasant season next year was forecast by Shepard despite the larger bag limit this year. He said that roosters survived in good numbers, that the birds appear in fine shape and feed is good. "We have quail coming out our ears," he added.

Chapter president Smith stated that another big objective of the local group this year is better sportsman-landowner relations.

Phoenix High 85-50 Victor

Phoenix—Phoenix high turned the tables for a previous loss by thumping the Glendale basketball team 85 to 50 here last night.

In a previous contest Glendale used a pressing defense to come from behind and lick the Phoenix club 51 to 49. This time the same tactics worked to the Douglas county club's disadvantage. Phoenix, normally a set style club, took to fast breaking when Glendale ganging of the ball handler left other home club men unguarded. It meant a lot of easy baskets for the Pirates.

Phoenix also did some good rebounding to help its cause with Ray Dahl and Bill Madden the big guns on the boards.

The home club rolled up margins of 18 to 12, 34 to 18 and 37 to 37 at intermissions. Charles Wall scored 26 points, Jim Korth 22 and Madden 15. Berg had 18 for Glendale. Phoenix made 31 of 40 free shot tries.

NC Tar Heel Coach Fired

Chapel Hill, N.C.—(U.P.)—The University of North Carolina started looking for a new football coach today to replace the fired Coach Barclay, and persistent reports said the job may be offered to Maryland's highly successful Jim Tatum.

Barclay, Tar Heel mentor for three losing seasons, was informed Tuesday night that his contract will not be renewed when it expires Jan. 1. The action had been long-expected, but Barclay refused any comment.

Moore Moved Up On Duck Squad

Eugene—(U.P.)—Bill Moore of The Dalles has moved into a first-string berth on the University of Oregon basketball team as Coach Bill Borcher seeks ways to find a winning combination.

Moore, a non-letterman, was at a forward post in scrimmage yesterday. He scored 13 points against Brigham Young last week.
